It was around 11 o'clock, on a peaceful Sunday night, May 1, 1898, when boys crying a Post extra awakened the sleeping city with the news that Dewey, at Manila Bay, had made the United States a World Power. Once again we honor the memory of the great sailor who blazed the trail of manifest destiny into the Far East. As the buttons we used to wear in our lapels then so graphically expressed the Nation's idea, "Dewey Did It!"

The measured words of a member of the Canadian Parliament, "Your Nation has not only become the Colossus of the Western Hemisphere, but you are now probably the most potent single political power of the world," ought to remind us of the responsibilities to others that go with strength. There used to be a time when the speeches of flowery Senators were sprinkled with Biblical quotations like a spring lawn with dandelions, but in recent years acquaintance with the Book hasn't been a marked accomplishment of our public men, and the rafters of the Capitol rarely ring any more with witty references to "Sodum and Gomorry," or Lot's wife being turned into a pillar of salt. Jim Watson makes a quick-witted comparison to Joe Robinson's conversion to the equalization fee, on the road to Damascus, so to speak, and finds the nimble Arkansas solon right up on the Scriptures and able to turn the point away from himself.

ULTRA DRY HITS RUM SLAYING IN PLEA TO HOUSE

Representative Kvale Asks Body to Take Applause From Record.

DECLINES TO CONDONE SHOOTING OF RUNNER

MAN SHOT, 4 NABBED IN LIQUOR-CAR CHASE

Authorities Seek Plan to End Bootlegger Smoke Screens; Endanger Motorists.

An ultradry representative called applause by the House over the slaying of a rum runner "a return to the jungle stage."

The public order committee of the Board of Trade recommended the cooperation of every citizen in the fight to prevent use of deadly weapons by criminals.

One man is near death, the result of wounds received in a rum chase, and four others are in jail.

Two automobiles and a large quantity of whisky are in the hands of police.

Innocent motorists in five instances reported themselves victims of the latest practice of bootleggers.

These are the developments of the last 36 hours in the "smoke-screen" situation which has police of the District of Columbia, sheriffs and State police of Maryland and Virginia, senators and representatives and ordinary citizens seeking a solution to prevent a recurrence of events of the last few days and to protect citizenry at large from the dangers of rum runners using smoke screens.

Kvale Voices Opposition.

Representative Kvale (Farmer-Labor), of Minnesota, who was elected on the plea that he was "drier than Volstead," raised his voice in the House yesterday against the applause registered by that group when the report of the killing of Ottmer Fleming, 21-year-old rum runner, by Policeman Clyde O. Rouse was placed before it. Rouse fired through a smoke screen to halt the car, one bullet striking Fleming in the head.

Kvale's plea to have the word "applause" stricken from the House record in connection with the Fleming killing closed a two-hour debate, in which lawyers wrangled over the legal aspect of the slaying, and which broadened out into a discussion of the habits of "the younger generation."

Representative LaGuardia (wet Republican), New York, furnished the high spot of the discussion when he asserted that "the youngsters of 19 to 25 years of age have all tasted strong liquor." Loud cries of "No, no!" greeted this declaration.

Kvale, holding a picture of the nine children in the Fleming family, made an impassioned plea:

"Look at this and think of the slaying of the boy who stands there in uniform. Think of the sorrowing, suffering family which has been done an injustice by the ignorance heaped upon this case.

No Right to Kill.

"I'll not condone the crime. I'll even concede that the boy may have been guilty. But I maintain that we have no right to sit in judgment. I am, indeed, sorry that anything such as is recorded should have happened. It was a return to the jungle stage, and I appeal, for the sake of the sorrowing family of this boy, to have the record expunged."

Kvale failed to make a formal motion and no action was taken by the House.

Another storm was aroused when LaGuardia declared that had there been Education Body Appoints His New Aid; Approves 1931 Budget Total.

The Board of Education yesterday reelected Dr. Frank W. Ballou as superintendent of public schools for a term of three years, beginning July 1 next. At the same time the board elected Jerry J. Crane, of 5829 Chevy Chase parkway, as assistant superintendent of schools, in charge of buildings and grounds.

The board also approved the sum of $13,710,202 as the total estimates for school expenses for the 1931 budget. This figure represents an increase of $1,725,602 over the 1930 appropriations.

Included in the estimates is an item for $2,565,000 for new buildings. This represents an increase of $730,000 over the amount appropriated for buildings in the 1930 fund. The largest single estimate is for teachers and librarians, which totals $6,384,632. This represents an increase of $402,032 over the appropriation for 1930.

Estimates for the care of buildings and grounds total $818,590, while those for repairs and improvements to buildings total $535,000. Estimates for compliance with health and fire department requirements total $375,000.

Orient Is Called World's Next Great Field for Commercial Development.

Prohibition enforcement, the tariff and development of closer relations with Canada and the people of the Orient, together with four important resolutions, occupied the attention of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States yesterday, in its annual four-day convention, which closes tomorrow, at the organization's headquarters.

After a general session in the morning in which the international interests of the United States were discussed frankly by three prominent speakers, the convention, during the afternoon, resolved itself into six round-table conferences for the consideration of a wide range of topics.

Introduction of the four resolutions, all to be voted upon at the closing session tomorrow morning, precipitated mild discussion. The resolutions deal with calendar reform through international conference, increased Federal highway appropriations, noninterference by Congress with railroad rate-making, and removal of handicaps to American shipping.

I'm Alone Sinking Assailed.

C. H. Cahan, of Montreal, Quebec, member of the Canadian Parliament, in a sweeping survey of major problems concerning Canada and the United States, stamped the recent sinking of the Canadian rum craft, I'm Alone, by the Coast Guard as "not authorized" by any article of the convention of January, 1924, nor by the recognized rules of international law.

"It has been our constant desire to live in peace and harmony with the people of the United States, and to obtain, at all times, amicable solutions of the problems which inevitably arise between two neighbors," Mr. Cahan began. "The maintenance of cordial relations between your country and ours is of prime importance to the business men of both countries.

"In this connection may I allude very frankly to the suggestion appearing from time to time in your press that upon Canada rests the moral duty and obligation to assist in enforcing the provisions of your eighteenth amendment and of the Volstead act. We understand that your constitutional amendment and your Federal laws providing for its enforcement impose no penalties upon the purchaser or the consumer; and that your citizens are still at liberty, under your Federal laws, to purchase and consume intoxicating beverages even within the territorial jurisdiction of the United States.

Extra Courtesy Granted.

In times past, when certain of our Canadian provinces prohibited the sale of intoxicants within their respective jurisdictions, it never occurred to the Canadian government to request your Federal Government to prohibit the sale and exportation to Canada of the Bourbon whisky then freely distilled in the United States and exported to the Canadian provinces. Stalin Offers to Quit As Communist Leader

Soviets' "Steel Man" May Go on Long Vacation. Resignation Refused.

Moscow, May 1 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Joseph V. Stalin, the "steel man" of the Communist party, who has sat firmly in the Russian political saddle since emerging victorious from his bitter struggle with the Trotskyists, which ended in the exile of their leader, the former chief of the Red army, today submitted his resignation as secretary general to the sixteenth All-Soviet Communist party convention.

Although the sessions, which concluded today after being in progress a week, were held behind closed doors in the Kremlin, it was learned that the delegates declined to accept Stalin's resignation.

They appointed T. Molontoff, one of the secretaries of the central committee of the Communist party, as a substitute to Stalin. If the "steel man" should soon take a lengthy vacation, transferring the duties of the secretary general of the Communist party to Molotoff, it will not be a surprise.

Molotoff, who within the coming weeks may be the new dictator, is an Above concisely are the outstanding events marking the celebration of May Day, 1929. Offsetting them, however, came reports from Brussels of quiet parades, more sparsely attended than any in ten years, from rural France depicting outdoor oratory but no violence, and from southeastern Europe, South America and Central America recording exceptional quiet.

London, May 1 (U.P.).—The Daily News' Berlin correspondent reported tonight that there were fires in quarters of the capital as a result of the fighting between Communists and police on May Day.

A Daily Express dispatch from Kovno tonight reported that "many persons" were killed or wounded in the Lithuanian capital when police fired on May Day demonstrators. The demonstrators were Communists, the dispatch said.

An Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Warsaw reported that 40 persons were wounded when police charged a mob of May day demonstrators in the Polish capital. The police used bayonets and swords to scatter the demonstrators, the dispatch said.

Kovno Reports Killings.

Kovno, Lithuania, May 1 (A.P.).—Several communists were killed and many wounded today by police who fired on demonstrators who had defied an order forbidding May day assemblages.

Berlin, May 1 (A.P.).—Communists, in an attempt to "conquer the streets" for May day, caused an ugly riot tonight in the working-class quarter in northern Berlin. They erected barricades, using street repair material, and held off police with rifle and pistol fire, until armored cars forced the obstructions and enabled the authorities to clear out the surrounding houses.

At midnight the casualties for the May day had mounted to 8 dead and 78 seriously injured. Hundreds of others suffered bruises from missiles or policemen's clubs.

Rioters Erect Barricades.

The rioters erected barricades in the main thoroughfare of the Parkstrasse and its side streets. The police charged them repeatedly with batons until the commanding officer realized that his force was too weak for these tactics and ordered his men to open fire. Then armored cars were brought up and the police finally captured the barricades.

Communist ambulances and first-aid squads were overwhelmed by the number of victims brought from the fighting front.

Fighting was also reported from eastern and southeastern parts of the city. Those sections were plunged into darkness.

The Pankstrasse and the Poelinerstrasse were under repair, and a quantity of paving material, including blocks, was lying about. The Com-

SCHACHT ABANDONS REPARATIONS HOPE

LOOKS TO U. S. DELEGATES

Berlin, May 1 (A.P.).—The German delegation to the second Dawes committee foresees no solution for Germany's reparations problem at the present conference and possibly not even at a later one, Dr. Hjalmar Schacht intimated in final discussions with members of the cabinet and banking and industrial leaders before his departure for Paris tonight.

Dr. Schacht hinted, however, at an understanding already reached at Paris by which three memorandums would be submitted before the close of the conference. One would be from the creditor nations, a second from Germany and a third by Chairman Owen D. Young treating of Germany's capacity for production as well as for payment.

These memorandums were expected to present a more feasible basis for continuation of discussions between the different governments with a view to reaching an earlier and a more satisfactory settlement of reparations than is indicated as possible at present.

Dr. Schacht was noncommittal, however, particularly as to whether this plan for direct negotiations would serve as a starting point for other conferences or make such conferences superfluous.

French press reports stressing the fact that a conference of diplomats or politicians would be undesirable and urging the conference of experts to find a present solution have been interpreted by German official circles as an indication that Germany's creditors belatedly have realized her precarious economic situation. Officials say that the allied delegates fear that if the Dawes plan continues they may find themselves holding the bag.

Official circles believe that since Dr. Schacht sees no possibility of changing his standpoint, it is up to the allied or American delegates to come forward with new, acceptable proposals.

HEFLIN REPUDIATED BY SENATE, 70 TO 14

ACTION PALES ALABAMAN

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

When the Senate got through with the senator from Alabama, Mr. Heflin, yesterday his face was as white as a sheet and he was mumbling to himself.

It refused, by a vote of 70 to 14, to disapprove the throwing of a beer bottle at him at Brockton, Mass., two weeks ago; the galleries applauded when Senator Tydings, of Maryland, suggested he was "insane," and then Senator Jones, of Washington, added the crowning touch by explaining that the reason the Senate did not vote for the resolution was because of Heflin himself.

Only two Republicans voted with Heflin—Sackett, of Kentucky, and Robinson, of Indiana—the latter with a brand-new six-year term ahead of him, and therefore having no reason to fear Heflin's threats to visit the punishment of the klan upon those who voted against him.

There were eleven Democrats standing by his side though, many of them who went bravely through the recent campaign on the side of tolerance. Perhaps they thought they had contributed enough to the advancement of mankind and had now better scuttle for their political lives. Those Democrats who joined Heflin were:

Black, of Alabama; Blease, of South Carolina; Fletcher, of Florida; George, of Georgia; Harris, of Georgia; McKellar, of Tennessee, Sheppard, of Texas; Simmons, of North Carolina; Thomas, of Oklahoma; Trammell, of Florida, and Tyson, of Tennessee. The action of George, McKellar and Fletcher created considerable surprise. The others voted true to form.

Robinson's vote on the Republican side was characterized as unpardonable by his Republican colleagues who were trying to stand solidly together on the question. His is a great klan State, but it is Watson, the Republican leader, who must face the music next year not Robinson, and the fact that the latter voted for the resolution will add to any embarrassment which Heflin may make for Watson. The indications are, however, that Heflin will be so busy with his own State next year that he will have no time to try and punish those senators who voted against him.

Heflin sought to speak before the vote was taken in order to renew his threats. To this end he had already inserted in the record a tabulation of those senators coming up for reelection next year. He wanted to give them a last-minute warning. But he could not.

After the vote he spoke for three hours, assuring those senators who would not frown upon the throwing of a beer bottle at him that they were writing bloody history from which the country would hear for 100 years. Rather than listen to these dire words nearly everybody left the chamber, the number on the floor falling several times to five.

Senator Tydings came in once and remained long enough to be angered

CITY MAY BUY ARMED CAR OF SPECIAL TYPE

NEEDED FOR POLICE USE

Following an inquiry of the police departments of Chicago, St. Louis and New York, which developed that none had the type of armored motor car which they had in mind for use here, District police officials have communicated with one of the large automobile manufacturers of the country relative to the development of such a projected automobile as they contemplate, Maj. Henry G. Pratt, superintendent of police, disclosed yesterday.

The type of armored motor car desired for the protection of District police in clashes with desperate and dangerous criminals is considerably different from the usual type and may have to be especially designed, Pratt said.

The most formidable armored car in use by the police of any other city is that used by the St. Louis police department. Replying to the inquiry sent there by the District Police Department, the St. Louis police department forwarded a photograph of their armored car, together with a description of it.

It is heavily protected and practically covered by armor. The glass is bullet-proof and the car has a turret on top through apertures in which a survey may be had in all directions. It is built on a truck chassis and is used to protect pay roll cars and the transfer of other valuables.

"Such a car would be too cumbersome and heavy for us," Pratt said.

The Chicago police department told District police officials that the cars they used in their gangland battles were protected by bullet-proof windshields, but had no more protection for the body than the ordinary touring car. The Chicago police machine, however, is something approaching a rolling arsenal, equipped with riot guns, rifles and an ammunition box attached to the rear of the front seat.

Neither did the New York police department report possession of a machine which would meet the views of District police officials, and inquiry was made of an automobile manufacturer.

COL. MANN IS VICTOR IN PATRONAGE COUP

VISIT BROWN AGAIN TODAY

Col. Horace A. Mann, first disowned by the Republican national committee, then designated Hoover Southern campaign manager, then toppled from a self-assumed throne of Southern patronage dictator into temporary oblivion, has made a patronage "comeback" at the expense of Postmaster General Walter Brown.

The coup will be completed today, the infuriated Georgia Republican leaders, effecting their own reorganization at the President's request, having brought to the Capital yesterday their protest at the intrusion of the Postmaser General. Brown informed the new organization set up for patronage under the guiding hand of Col. Mann, that it was not acceptable to him and tried to set up one of his own. The Mann organization, however, is acceptable to the President, and that is all that counts.

The Postmaster General has invited the delegation of five Georgians to confer with him today. The delegation conferred yesterday with Walter Newton, Presidential Secretary in charge of political liaison work, and departed satisfied.

In annihilating Republican State organizations in Georgia, Mississippi and South Carolina recently, because of disclosures of bartering in patronage, President Hoover told his supporters in those States to set up new organizations, including Hoover Democrats in each case. When such organizations have been effected and given Presidential approval, they are to control patronage in their territory.

The new Mann organization was set up acording to Presidential instructions, stand-pat Republicans sharing control with Hoover Democrats. Submitted as a matter of courtesy to the Postmaster General, whose department has the bulk of Federal patronage, Brown informed the Georgians that the organization was not acceptable.

In suggesting a substitute organization, Brown included four of the Mann

Woman Is Spirited From Hospital Bed

Man, Believed Mate, Carries Night-Gown-Clad Poison Patient Away.

Spirited away in her night clothes from Casualty Hospital early this morning, Mrs. Margaret Leedy, 17 years old, of 2008 First street northwest, is the object of a search by hospital attendants and police of the Eighth Precinct. They are also looking for her husband.

Mrs. Leedy was taken to the hospital Tuesday night suffering from the effects of poison said to have been taken by mistake for cough medicine. Her condition was not serious, and at 11 o'clock last night attendants reported that she was sleeping soundly.

Shortly after midnight, one of the night supervisors at Casualty saw a man at the head of the stairway on Mrs. Leedy's floor, and on closer inspection saw a woman in a night gown behind him. When he questioned the man, believed to be the young woman's husband, Ralph Leedy, 23 years old, the supervisor said he snatched Mrs. Leedy in his arms and ran down the stairs and outside to a waiting automobile.

Mrs. Willebrandt Helped Set Rum Vessel Free, Is Charge

Senator Moses Also Intervened, Says Aid of De Groot.

New York, May 1 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, assistant United States Attorney General in charge of prohibition, and United States Senator George H. Moses, of New Hampshire, Eastern leader of the Hoover campaign, played an important part in restoring to its owners possession of the notorious rum runner, the Ansonia, according to copies of telegrams and other facts which came into possession of the New York World tonight.

The Ansonia was captured in New York Harbor. She carried a liquor cargo valued at $500,000. Fifty men, who were waiting for her arrival at Downey's dock in Brooklyn, were captured. She was restored to her owners several months later without a single penalty being assessed against them.

munists erected barricades from this material and from behind them received the police with pistol and rifle volleys.

Shots Fired From Windows.

Shots were also fired from windows of nearby houses, and when the armored cars arrived their searchlights were turned upon those vantage points and the rioters were quickly driven from them by well-directed police fire. The houses were invaded after the police had stormed and carried the barricades and many of the sharpshooters were found and arrested.

Mexico City, May 1 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—A mob of 1,000 Reds, carrying red banners and flags and proclaiming their affiliation with Russian Reds, assembled in front of the American consulate in Avenida Juarez at noon today. They planted crossed red banners in the entrance of the consulate and then proceeded to pay their respects to the United States of America. From all parts of the throng went up the shouts: "Death to the gringos, death to the Yankees, death to the Americans!"

When Consul William Dawson appeared in the open window of the consulate the reds assailed him with obscenity, and American tourists and passersby also got a picaresque earful.

Policemen Scatter Rioters.

From the back of a Ford car the poet Salazar was going full tilt on the subject of American civilization, capitalism and imperialism when the police wagon dashed up to the consulate. A squad of 25 lusty young teenicos swung into a swift attack on the reds. They scattered the mob with the butts of their rifles and the throng dashed to the right and left. The squad drove one section of it down Avenida Juarez and the other into Avenida Iturbide.

When the red lifted up protesting voices, the police shoved them along unceremoniously. A score of obstreperous objectors were thrown into the patrol wagon. At the sight of the fire department the reds broke and ran helter-skelter. The Mexican police captured their incendiary banners.

A Crom and Communist organization, so-called, also paraded, carrying red and black banners. These were orderly labor demonstrations. Government offices were closed for the day and business was generally suspended. Street cars, however, operated on May 1 for the first time in several years and the automobiles went about as usual.

Thousands Held in Paris.

Paris, May 1 (U.P.).—Paris passed a quiet May day, but police were busy arresting 3,287 persons, many of them foreigners, who will be deported because they do not hold the proper papers for entry into France.

All Communist assemblages were raided and other radical meetings were broken up by police, who were stationed throughout the capital as a precautionary measure against parades and other forbidden manifestations.

Public utilities were normal, but about 80 per cent of the union men were absent from their jobs and building trades were shut down.

Three editors of the Communist newspaper L'Humanite were arrested as they went to work because the paper had urged "everybody" to get in the streets for demonstrations.

Austria and Hungary Quiet.

Vienna, May 1 (A.P.).—With the exception of a few sporadic clashes in the provinces between Radical and Fascist elements, May Day was without serious trouble in Austria. Reports to the Associated Press from Greece, Bulgaria, Rumania, Hungary, Jugoslavia and Czechoslovakia showed that all attempts at mass manifestations, either by Socialists or Communists, were rigidly forbidden by police and that the orders were enforced.

Hungary's cities resembled armed camps, and no agitators dared to utter a word in them today. The national government of Hungary has been on Communism since the overthrow of the Red Terror under Bela Kun.

In Vienna, under control of the Socialist municipal government, nearly 1,000,000 workers, with their wives and children, forming a continuous civilian cavalcade, marched for eight hours. Peddlers of sausages and beer did a tremendous business in the streets.

Kapfenberg Reports Clash.

Out in the provinces of Austria there was a different story. At Kapfenburg a fight broke out between Fascists and Socialists when one of the latter, a member of the government, attempted to address a workingmen's meeting. One Socialist was seriously wounded and eight Fascists were badly beaten.

A similar collision occurred at Bruck. Troops occupied the streets there with machine guns, but there were no casualties.

New York, May 1 (A.P.).—New York's celebration of May Day centered in a parade and later a mass meeting that packed Madison Square Garden. The entire celebration, carried on in a drizzling rain, was quiet and orderly.

Ten thousand marchers, the majority wearing some bit of red, marched in the parade through streets about Union Square. Among them were 400 school children carrying red balloons.

At Madison Square Garden the doors were closed shortly after 2:30, when every seat and every bit of standing room in the vast auditorium had been filled. In the center of the audience sat 1,200 children, who had marched in as a body.

Marching at the head in the parade were five strikers from the Gastonia, N. C., textile mills, among them a woman, and in the procession were large delegations of striking cafeteria, textile and needle trade workers.

TORCH SLAYER'S ACT IS HELD DELIBERATE

State Plans First-Degree Case Against Man Who Garrotted Wife's Body.

BREAKS DOWN IN HORROR

White Plains, N. Y., May 1 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—District Attorney Coyne announced today that he would seek a first-degree murder indictment against Earl Francis Peacox, who is now "very sorry" that he strangled and robbed his young wife and five days later incinerated her body in a rocky hillside grove near Scarsdale.

Evidence which Coyne hopes will show Peacox premeditated the murder will be presented to the grand jury of Westchester County May 6, if it is prepared by then. The prosecution hopes to bring him to trial May 13.

Peacox thought he saw the flaming body of his young wife in his cell today. He shut his eyes and cried out, but the vision still remained. Presently he was on the verge of hysterics and said he wanted to die.

Denies Planning Murder.

He has told police and the district attorney that he did not plan the murder. Coyne believes he did. The 21-year-old radio mechanician has attempted to match his wits with the police in the hopes of establishing that he killed his wife either in self-defense or at least without cunning forethought.

Further details of his confession were made public by Coyne today. These additional parts of his story point toward self-defense as a motive. He said his wife tried to hit him with a book end and that he drew his pistol to frighten her. She took it away from him and pointed it at his head. He ducked behind her, throttled her, wrenched the weapon from her hand and brought it down on her skull. The police have a book end in their possession, but will not comment on his assertion.

The mystery of what became of the victim's pony-skin coat and the brown cloche hat she wore the night she was killed was partly dispelled when the district attorney said Peacox had told of soaking the cheap fur coat in gasoline on the night of April 25 along a road near Hastings.

Rope Tied Around Neck.

He threw the hat away at the same time. He has also confessed that when he left the body under the apple tree the morning of April 22 he drove about a mile down the road when a curious fear gripped him. He was afraid his wife would get up and walk home. He cut a piece of rope from his automobile tow line, went back to the body and garroted her. When he came back the following Saturday morning, drenched the body with kerosene and lighted it, the rope was burned in the flames.

It was also disclosed today that a week before Peacox strangled his wife he received a summons for speeding. The summons was returnable the following day, and he appeared in traffic court and paid a $3 fine.

The diamond ring and wrist watch he took from his wife as she lay dying on the floor of his diminutive apartment in Mount Vernon, were found by detectives in a New York pawn shop, where Peacox had pawned them for $20. They were brought to White Plains and turned over to the district attorney. The young man said he had torn up the pawn ticket.

Mrs. Catherine Peacox, the prisoner's mother, accompanied by Mrs. Ida Heusted, aunt of his murdered wife, visited him in his cell in Westchester County Jail this afternoon. The women have joined hands in their grief over the situation.

"Its a lie that my son had other women," Mrs. Peacox said today. "He only had one woman—that was Dolly, his wife."

"You will stand by him, of course, will you not, Mrs. Peacox?" she was asked.

"Yes, I'll stand by him," she replied drearily.

Persons in the jail reported the mother talked with the boy without a great display of emotion. He wept and said he was "awfully sorry" he had killed his wife and that he "didn't want a lawyer." He just wanted to get it over as soon as possible, he said.

Family Retains Attorney.

An attorney has been retained by his family to defend him, however. The lawyer is Robert E. Dempsey, of Peekskill, with offices in New York. Mr. Dempsey did not come to White Plains today, but is expected tomorrow.

The methods used by detectives to extract a confession from the young man became known today. At first he was vehement in denying the crime. They took their time and did not strike or threaten him, they say. At psychological moments they would show him a bit of evidence—a piece of blood-stained linoleum cut from his kitchen floor, a picture of his wife torn in four parts and bearing the inscription, "Earl, with all my love, Dolly," and other things.

The picture unnerved him. He had torn it up when he moved from his apartment a week after the death of his wife and he never thought it would be found.

Final details of Peacox's confession were forthcoming almost immediately after a detective tossed an enlarged picture of his scorched wife in front of him. His teeth rattled with horror as he gazed at it. Then he told everything.

Late this afternoon Mr. Coyne announced that he would question Henry Renee, proprietor of the filling station where Peacox bought gasoline to burn the coat, to determine whether a woman was with him at the time. There has been a persistent report that Miss Frances Newman, under arrest as a material witness, was with him when he burned the coat. If it can be established that the woman knew of the murder before she was seized in New York, the district attorney will have added a link to the chain of first-degree evidence he is constructing.

Frances Newman told the district attorney that Peacox had asked her to aid him in establishing an alibi for the night his wife was killed.

Hopkins Student Mentioned.

New York, May 1 (A.P.).—The New American tomorrow will say Eugene Bussey, Johns Hopkins University student, has identified himself as the "college boy" whose attentions to the young bride of Earle P. Peacox has come to the attention of the police investigating her murder. Peacox has confessed attempting to burn the body of his wife after strangling her.

Bussey formerly was Peacox's friend in the Yonkers, N. Y., High School they both attended, and joined him in his devotion to the science of radio. The American, however, quotes Bussey as declaring he had "done Earle Peacox a great moral wrong and now am willing to help all I can."

The Baltimore student describes his romance with Mrs. Peacox which progressed to his receipt of frequent letters couched in intimate terms. One of his letters, in reply, was found by Peacox, Bussey said, and that broke up their marriage.

"Earle called me up and was pretty angry," the American will quote Bussey as saying. "He told me I was treating him terrible and said if he was any where near me he would beat the life out of me.

'Before he got through with the conversation he was crying and hung up apparently not blaming me so much as his wife."

LOVE AFFAIR ENDS IN YOUTH'S SLAYING

BODY IS FOUND ON FARM

Portsmouth, Ohio, May 1 (A.P.).—Failure of William Sanford Wright, 18, baseball and basket ball star of Wheelersburg, Ohio, High School, to heed a warning to cease attentions toward a young woman in the neighborhood was blamed tonight by Scioto County authorities for his slaying late last night.

Wright's body was found on a wood cutter's block on the farm of Ernest Marsh, Powellsville, early today, riddled with shot apparently fired from a shot gun. Marsh summoned county authorities.

Meager clews to the murder were pieced together by county authorities, who are convinced that Wright was shot by a motorist while walking along the Atlantic and Pacific highway to his home, 2 miles east of Wheelersburg.

County authorities said they believed the body was taken into the automobile and removed to the farm where found.

Wadding from a shot-gun shell was found in Wright's clothing, indicating that the youth was fired upon at close range.

Wright was last seen near midnight by a companion, Wilbur Brown, who said the athlete started walking home. They previously attended a motion picture show at Wheelersburg High School.

Wright lived with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo Wright, in Burke lane, Hayport road, 2 miles east of Wheelersburg. His father is a clothing salesman.

County authorities said that Wright engaged in several fights in the past two weeks as a result of a warning to keep away from the young woman.

Suicide Believed Due To Character in Novel

Chicago, May 1 (A.P.).—Vernon T. Peters, 31, bond salesman and former Harvard student, had been reading a novel, "Beyond the Jordan," written by a college classmate and dealing with undergraduate life at the Cambridge institution. The name of one of the principal characters was "Drunken Peters."

Peters' body was found in his apartment today, the novel on the desk before him and a revolver nearby. He is thought to have shot himself in the belief that he was the prototype of "Drunken Peters."

He came here a few years ago from California, and was living apart from his wife.

Capital Residents Aid Divorce Suit

Depositions, Read at Trial in Omaha, Nebr., Side With Wife in Case.

Depositions of three Washington residents figured yesterday at Omaha, Nebr., in the divorce trial of Mrs. Loraine McCord against her wealthy husband, James McCord, whom she charges in her complaint with heavy drinking and familiarities with guests at drinking parties.

The depositions read in court were made for Mrs. McCord by Miss Angelina Rush, daughter of S. R. Rush, special Assistant United States Attorney General here; Mrs. Marthena Williams, a granddaughter of President Harrison, of 2700 Connecticut avenue northwest; and Capt. F. B. Hinman, now connected with the judge advocate general's office, and formerly stationed at Fort Crook, near Omaha. Miss Rush and Mrs. Williams formerly lived in that city.

McCord, who receives almost $50,000 a year from the estate of his father, in a cross-complaint, charged that his wife often would get him intoxicated and then carry on flirtations. William Barnaby, Chicago construction engineer, and Brook Leman, of Philadelphia, representative of a sporting goods company, were named as men she favored.

Mothers' Clinic Discussed at Junior League Session

Convention Would Broaden Maternal Vision on Problems of Child Health; Question of Expanding Work in Foreign Countries to Be Voted Upon.

New Orleans, La., May 1 (A.P.).—The advisability of conducting a clinic for mothers to broaden their vision on problems of child health was discussed today by delegates to the national convention of the Associated Junior Leagues of America.

The prime difficulty encountered by the league in its philanthropic work, several speakers pointed out, is encouraging parents to continue the recommended regimen after the patient is dismissed from the child clinics that are maintained in a number of cities. Several hundred members, socially prominent in the United States, Canada and Hawaii, are attending the sessions, which are executive.

Formal business sessions began today with affiliation of similar clubs in foreign countries, one of the principal objects of discussion. Mrs. Foskett Brown, of Nashville, Tenn., national president, declared the junior league is concerned with foreign expansion "for the promotion of world peace and understanding."

Among outstanding activities of the Junior League outlined today are the operation of a pediatric clinic at Sioux City, a baby shelter in New York, an educational center for the blind in St. Louis and a tuberculosis preventarium in Tampa.

Tomorrow when the vote is taken on the proposed inclusion of non-English speaking league and the election of officers is held the delegates will be aboard the steamer Capitol on the Mississippi River.

2 MEN BEING SOUGHT IN GAMBLER KILLING

Slaying of August Bruck, 30, in Cincinnati Hotel, Laid to Repudiated Bets.

REMUS AIDS POLICE HUNT

Cincinnati, May 1 (A.P.).—Race-horse betting and gambling in which handbook operators run off with wagers without paying bets, were involved by police tonight in the slaying in the Hotel Gibson here early today of August Bruck, 30, Newport, Ky., friend of George Remus, notorious bootlegger.

Bruck was found dead with four bullet wounds in his body by a hotel detective. The room was in disorder.

Bruck's assailants were not the only ones armed for detectives found a holster strapped around Bruck's shoulders in which was a fully loaded revolver.

Two Chicago men, Joseph Plunkett, 30, son of a former Chicago police officer, and Edward D. Hall, who had registered at the hotel several days ago and occupied the room where the slaying took place were the objects of a police dragnet tonight. Both were charged with murder in warrants signed by Mrs. Lottie Bruck, the widow.

Gambling Evidence Found.

Mrs. Bruck said Plunkett phoned her husband last night asking him to come to the hotel room. Since then the whereabouts of Plunkett and Hall remain untraced.

Remus put police in touch with John Monohan, another friend of the former bootlegger. Monohan admitted he was in the hotel room with Bruck talking race horse bets, but police declared he knew nothing of the murder.

Evidence was found in the room that handbook and gambling operations had been conducted on a large scale, police said. Telephone bills running into hundreds of dollars had been spent for calls to Chicago, New York, Washington, Detroit and other cities.

Notes were found addressed to Plunkett from girls telling about jockeys riding certain horses, tips jockeys had given them and thanking him for flowers. There were numerous such notes from a Detroit girl who signed herself "Your Lil' Pal, Patsy."

Remus was not involved in the crime by police.

Was Friend of Remus.

Detectives recalled today that Bruck was the man who sat at the steering wheel of an automobile which returned Remus here from the Lima State Hospital for the Insane last summer, to which institution the former bootlegger had been sent for observation for several months.

Chicago, May 1 (A.P.).—Joe Plunkett, 30, son of a former Chicago police captain, was sought today for Cincinnati police who asked that he be held for investigation in the slaying of August Bruck in Cincinnati last night.

The Ohio city authorities said he was to have arrived on a New York Central train at 8:35 a. m. with a man known as Edward D. Hall. Plunkett was not on the train from Cincinnati, however, and detectives were sent to an address given by Cincinnati police.

Aviator Attaches Air Legion's Plane

Instructor Claims $1,181.50 Salary Due Him; Owners Deny Charges.

An attachment sent out by Walter A. Brooke, former instructor of the organization, yesterday was placed against the airplane of the District of Columbia Air Legion at College Park, Md. The attachment alleges that the legion owes Brooke the sum of $1,181.50 for salary due him when he left the organization.

John A. Shaw, secretary and manager of the legion, which has offices in the International Building in Washington, last night denied that his organization owes Brooke any money. He declared that the suit was brought "merely to embarrass the legion and as an act of revenge."

The attachment was served at the airport by Deputy Sheriff A. W. Hepburn, of the Prince Georges County sheriff's office. The plane was placed in the custody of R. A. White, a field official. It is a three-passenger Lincoln-Page plane and is used by the legion for instruction purposes.

GIBSON'S PROPOSAL NOT OWN INITIATIVE

Concession Regarding Stand on Reserves Done Under Instructions.

STIMSON REVEALS ORDER

By ALBERT W. FOX.

Secretary Stimson made it known yesterday, after several hours' deliberation, that Ambassador Gibson had specific instructions from the State Department to abandon America's position in the matter of excluding trained reserves from limitation of land armaments now under discussion at Geneva. The Secretary's statement was prompted by reports from London that Mr. Gibson had acted on his own initiative and without specific instructions from Washington.

Mr. Stimson at first explained it would hardly be likely for Mr. Gibson to act contrary to instructions, but that he desired to examine the instructions again before definitely commenting on the London reports.

Answered in Five Hours.

The question of whether Mr. Gibson acted on specific instructions came up shortly after 12:30 and the reply came with Mr. Stimson's authority five hours later. It was in the one word, "Yes."

At the same time the State Department took steps to clarify a confused situation resulting from conflicting reports as to whether or not the Preparatory Commission at Geneva had voted to scrap the word "reduction" as a substitute for the word "limitation." Mr. Gibson made the suggestion that the word limitation be eliminated in his opening spech and high officials here commented publicly on the significance of this suggestion. Limitation, it was pointed out, might not mean reduction at all and might be an excuse for even increasing armaments under the guise of limitation.

Under these circumstances, there was surprise and disappointment here when press dispatches from Geneva all reported that the commission had voted against substituting reduction for limitation. Secretary Stimson promptly cabled to Ambassador Gibson asking for an explanation.

Reply from Gibson.

A reply from Mr. Gibson preceded the following statement made public by Secretary Stimson yesterday afternoon:

"With reference to press reports that the preparatory commission had scrapped the conception of reduction of armaments in favor of that of limitation only, Ambassador Gibson has reported that the only basis for such allegation was that a Soviet amendment, injecting quantitative considerations in the text of the draft convention under the guise of a commitment for reduction below levels prevailing on a fixed date, was rejected unanimously on a point of order. The whole commission made it clear that in rejecting the amendment on a point of order its position regarding reduction was in no way prejudiced."

Mr. Gibson's statement has apparently not disposed of the matter, however, and further information from him will probably be necessary. The official information conflicts so sharply with the Associated Press reports, the special dispatches and all other reports that it is believed that Ambassador Gibson may not have fully understood the purport of Mr. Stimsons message.

Reported Voted Down.

The Associated Press on Monday reported that the word reduction was voted down as a substitute for limitation, and that Lord Cushendun called attention to the fact that the League of Nations covenant merely called for "reduction down to a level compatible with security," that some of the powers may have already reached that level, and that hence "it would be better not to change the word limitation."

The statement of Ambassador Gibson respecting America's willingness to abandon her position respecting trained reserves has been telegraphed to the State Department, and the official version shows that the American concession, which filled some of the foreign delegates with such profound emotion, was in the following language:

"Allow me in a few words to recapitulate the attitude of the American delegation on this problem. We have always maintained that trained reserves should be included with peace-time armaments since both actually exist in time of peace.

Ready to Make War.

"In our eyes a nation which possesses an adequate and equipped trained reserve is in a position promptly to undertake offensive battle. Such a nation is therefore in a markedly more favorable position than one which must train its personnel and equip it. Untrained civilians can not be turned into efficient fighting men without many months of training. Starting with these premises, the American delegation reached the conclusion that logic and fairness called for trained reserves being included among peace time effectives in the draft convention.

"These principles for which we stood during the first session we still believe. Nevertheless, as I indicated the other day, I fully recognize that other delegations which hold opposing views believe their thesis with the same conviction. Therefore, if we are to reach an agreement—if we are to be able to join in a common draft—it will be necessary for concessions to be made not only on the part of one but on the part of every delegation here present. With this in mind, I am able to declare that the American Government as a practical matter is disposed to defer to the views of the majority of those countries whose land forces constitute their chief military interest and in the draft convention before us to accept their ideas in the matter of trained reserves."

They say "Opportunity knocks but once." Every day the Classified columns of The Washington Post carry opportunities in most every line of business.

PARTY CHIEFS CLASH IN SENATE WRANGLE

Robinson, of Arkansas, and Watson Hurl Charges in Farm Fee Fight.

RECALL SHIFTS IN VOTES

(Associated Press.)

Crowded Senate galleries yesterday enjoyed the unusual spectacle of a spirited debate between the floor leaders of the two major political parties as Senator Watson, the Indiana Republican, and Senator Robinson, the Arkansas Democrat, discussed their past and present attitudes toward the equalization fee in farm relief legislation.

Recent verbal exchanges on the latest vehicle for dispute over agricultural relief—the export debenture plan—were overshadowed by the pungent but good-humored colloquy. On their feet for nearly two hours, the two leaders hurled questions and charges back and forth while the gallery thongs leaned forward to listen and occasionally laughed at some pointed remark.

After the debate had subsided somewhat, Robinson looked toward his opponent and asserted with a smile that he hoped "my distinguished friend will soon terminate his tirade and come to luncheon with me."

The set-to occurred as Watson undertook to reply to a recent assertion by the Arkansas senator that Republican farm leaders had deserted the equalization fee for political expediency. Robinson himself, the Indianian declared, once voted against the equalization fee after describing it as "tax" levied without the consent of the person against whom it was to be assessed.

No Business in Tax Bill.

Recalling that Watson was once a leading advocate of the fee, Senator Robinson asked "Why should the senator from Indiana go wrong when the senator from Arkansas goes right?"

Senator Watson declared that the Democratic leader also had voted against the export debenture plan, which he now is favoring. Robinson replied that he voted against the plan because it was offered as a substitute.

"Oh, no," Watson came back. 'It was offered as an amendment to the tax bill."

"Well, it had no business being in a tax bill," Robinson shot back.

Challenged as to why he had voted to pass the fee over President Coolidge's veto, Watson said he was to this day in favor of the fee, but he knew he couldn't get it.

"I claim to be something of a practical legislator, and I am trying to shape my course to serve new conditions," the Republican leader declared.

The Democratic leader asked Watson if he had not advocated the passage of the fee, "veto or no veto," and whether he had said "I am not one of those who must go to the White House every morning to find out how to vote."

"Oh, I might have said something like that in the heat of debate," Watson replied. "Nobody knew for a certainty whether or not Mr. Coolidge would veto the fee a second time."

Explains His Opposition.

Senator Watson explained that he was opposing the fee and the debenture plan now simply because the political campaign had decided the issue.

"I wasn't for Mr. Hoover's nomination," he declared. "I wanted it myself. I had the disposition but not the votes.

"But after Mr. Hoover accepted the farm plank in the Kansas City platform, after I had heard his discussion of the tariff, I came to the conclusion that he was a man for me to support.

"I did not know Herbert Hoover when I opposed him for the Presidency as I do now.

"I never said a thing about Herbert Hoover for which I need apologize. And I am glad that I did not."

Watson declared that when Robinson ultimately voted for the equalization fee he had explained the action by saying that "Congress is justified in taking the economic adventure embodied in the measure," although the Arkansan previously had asserted it was "unconstitutional and unworkable.

"The conversion of Paul on the way to Damascus was not more astounding than that of the Senator from Arkansas," Watson said.

"It wasn't Paul, it was Saul," Robinson replied. "I'd rather be Paul after conversion than Saul before."

"The Senator ought to know because he was both," Watson said, while the galleries laughed and the chair rapped sharply for order.

ULTRA DRY HITS RUM SLAYING IN STIRRING PLEA TO HOUSE

no killing and had the liquor been seized in Fleming's car it could not have been used as evidence. It could not have been used, he said, unless the policemen knew ahead of time and before the seizure that it was liquor containing one-half of one per cent of alcohol. LaGuardia quoted from court decisions in an effort to prove this point and also to show that the killing of Fleming was not justified by law.

Judging from its attitude yesterday the House would uphold the killing of Fleming should a vote be taken. This attitude was best expressed by Representative Williamson (Republican), South Dakota, who declared that Fleming's car with its smoke screen, was more than a "deadly weapon." It not only endangered the lives of the occupants and the policeman, he said, but everybody else on the street.

Not Classed As Informer.

While this debate was taking place in the House, the committee on public order of the Board of Trade, at a special session in the City Club, with Maj. Henry G. Pratt, superintendent of police, present, decided to recommend to the organization which they represent an appeal for all citizens to report any knowledge of smoke screens, whether attached to automobiles or not, to the police.

The committee held that informing the police of such smoke screen equipment would not place the citizen in the light of the usual police "informer," inasmuch as operation or ownership of a screen is a felony and a Federal law provides that knowledge of a felony must be reported or the person withholding such knowledge is subject to punishment.

Garage owners and filling station owners or operators were especially requested to check on smoke screens. Maj. Pratt assured the committee members that names of informants would be fully protected by the police as has always been the custom of the Metropolitan force.

It was also decided to seek uniform firearms regulations in the District, Maryland and Virginia and to make a plea to other States through the annual conference of governors, the National Chamber of Commerce, the American Bar Association and the National Crime Commission for similar firearms acts in these States so that the effect would be Nation-wide.

Would Back Firearms Bill.

Present firearms regulations in the District do not require dealers to report sales until the end of each month. A bill now in Congress would require police investigation of the would-be purchaser before such purchase could be completed. The committee recommended that this bill be given the backing of all citizens. It was decided also to seek congressional approval of a vagrancy law with "teeth in it" and to seek further legislation preventing interstate shipment of firearms.

State Senator Frank L. Ball, of Virginia, who was in attendance, promised to introduce into the Virginia Legislature a bill similar to any act adopted in the District of Columbia. Others present at the conference were Harry Ridgeley, chief attorney, criminal division, Department of Justice; Odell Smith, chairman public order committee; Joseph H. Burkhart, chairman law committee; Rufus Pearson, chairman committee on dangerous weapon law; W. H. Callahan, chairman committee on vagrancy law; Walter H. Kelly, assistant solicitor Postoffice Department, and R. J. Cottrell, executive secretary Board of Trade.

Ernest Johnson, colored, is reported near death in the Alexandria Hospital while his companion, George Boone, also colored, is in Alexandria Jail, the result of a chase along the Fort Hunt road early yesterday morning. Johnson was shot by Policeman Charles Quartermouse, of Alexandria, the policeman reporting that he fired after Johnson had threatened his life. The automobile with 101 quarts of bottled whisky was seized. Wesley Smoots, another policeman, accompanied Quartermouse on the chase.

Three men arrested near the District line in an automobile suspected of being used for liquor running will face hearings in Police Court today. They are N. Joseph Jones, 20 years old, Atlas Hotel, Sixth street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest; Lawrence McNall, 22 years old, 200 block of K street northwest, and Albert Thomas, colored, 25 years old, 200 block of Oakdale street northwest.

A smoke screen used by two rum runners on the Southern Maryland pike enabled them to escape into the woods before policemen who had crippled their auto with bullets, could capture them. The machine, with both rear tires flat and a hole in the gasoline tank, was abandoned near T. B., Md., and 40 cases of liquor seized. Harry Robertson, Prince Georges County deputy sheriff, and Z. N. Nichols, county policeman, reported that they were forced to fire through a smoke screen during the chase.

Maryland police also had reports from five individuals that autos of rum runners passed them during daylight hours, the occupants laughing and jesting when they turned on a smoke screen, which caused the motorists to halt until it had cleared. J. C. Collington told authorities that he missed an accident by 2 feet after such an occurrence. Blinded by the smoke screen, Collington stepped on the brakes of his car and when the haze cleared, found himself within 2 feet of a concrete culvert along the road.

1929 Alcohol Deaths Are Highest Since 1917

New York, May 1 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Deaths from acute and chronic alcoholism in the United States and Canada in the first three months of 1929 mounted to the highest total for any similar period since 1917. Among the 175 deaths recorded this year, only four were of Canadian policy holders of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., which gave out the figures today in its quarterly report. These figures do not include deaths due to poisoning by wood or denatured alcohol.

The rate increase among the 18,000,000 policy holders, regarded as a competent cross-section of the total deaths in the two countries, jumped from 3.2 per 100,000 in 1928 to 3.8 for the first ninety days of 1929.

Douglas, Ariz., May 1 (A.P.).—The city of Agua Prieta, Sonora, and 1,500 rebel soldiers were taken over by Gen. Ignacio Flores in the name of the Mexican federal government today following the signing of an official agreement between representatives of the two factions at the American customs house here.

The agreement was reached after a 3-hour conference between Gen. Antonio Medina, commanding the rebels, and various consular and military representatives of the federal government, including Mexican Consul Fernando Chacon, at Naco and Gen. Abelardo Rodriguez, governor of Lower California, who were consulted by telephone.

An early morning federal bombing raid on Agua Prieta, planned at Naco, Sonora, was cancelled, and all federal troop movements against the city were halted after the truce, which guaranteed immunity to all soldiers and line officers of the revolutionary armies. Higher ranking officers, including those who participated in the peace parley, were denied such concessions, and returned to the Arizona side of the border to negotiate with American immigration officials for sanctuary in this country.

Mexican Consul Emiliano Tamez announced that a governing body for the Agua Prieta district had been appointed. Tamez said the amnesty had been dispatched to Gen. Marcelo Garaveo, commanding rebels near Pulpito Pass. Messengers also were sent to Federal General Juan Andreu Almazan, advancing from the east, to acquaint him with the situation and avoid the possibility of a clash between opposing forces.

Mexico City, May 1 (A.P.).—President Portes Gil in a public statement tonight said that he did not consider that the Roman Catholic Church, as an institution, was responsible in any way for the military revolution that has just collapsed. He added that "some servants of the church" in Jalisco, Michoacan and Guanajuato, forgetting their Christian morals, had committed acts of banditry under the pretext of defending the doctrines of their church.

"But contrasted with this attitude are other worthy representatives of Catholicism who counsel respect for law and authority," he said.

The president declared the government's attitude on the religious question remained unchanged. Priests may return to their churches and resume public service whenever they desire "if they obey the laws of Mexico."

ARMORED POLICE CAR SOUGHT FOR USE HERE

This inquiry was made through the Washington agent of the concern, which produces cars in the higher price field, both speedy and strong. Prosecution of this inquiry has been turned over to Hary N. Luckett, chief clerk of the police department, who will, Pratt said, consult with manufacturers of various types of cars.

No move toward other automobile concerns will be made, it was said, until the department has received the benefit of the investigation being made by the first concern of which inquiry was made.

The new type of car contemplated by police officials must be fast and durable and have as great maneuverability and be as easy to handle as ordinary high powered automobiles. In addition to having bullet-proof glass, it would be protected with armor of sufficient strength to afford safety to its occupants should they become the target for criminal bullets.

Department officials estimate that with the slight increase they will ask for in the annual estimates for the next fiscal year for purchase and maintenance of motor equipment for the department, together with a small balance expected to be left from the appropriations this year, funds for the purchase of one of the new type protected automobiles will be available.

Acquisition of the new type of car, Maj. Pratt declared emphatically, will not mark any change in the rule of the department governing use of firearms by policemen. Its purchase, he declared, would be a protective measure and distinctly not one of aggression and the prelude to an era of gun battles with rum runners.

RUM SHIP AID LAID TO MRS. WILLEBRANDT

the case for the Government, said tonight that every move in the case was directed from Washington by Mrs. Willebrandt.

Pisciotta made the first move in the case against the rum runner when he moved to libel the vessel for violation of the revenue act, rather than under the prohibition act. When the case was called for trial it was revealed that William B. Nelson, vice president of the Ansonia National Bank, of Ansonia, Conn., and a leading politician and financier in that part of his State, was the owner of most of the stock of the company claiming the ship.

Pisciotta began to receive instructions in the case soon after it was started. He said tonight that there were several letters and telegrams in the file of the United States attorney's office to prove this. He was finally approached by a man interested in the case, who said to him:

"Why haven't you dismissed that Ansonia case, as you were ordered to do by Washington?"

While the libel case was under way, Assistant United States Attorney Harry Chiert moved to punish the crew for violation of the Volstead act. Judge Inch had decided the libel action in favor of the Government, but upon learning that members of the crew had pleaded guilty to violation of the national prohibition act he vacated this decision because the proceedings were taken under two different acts. The result of this decision was the restoration of the ship to the possession of the owners.

Pisciotta was preparing to appeal when, on March 13, 1928, De Groot received a telegram from Mrs. Willebrandt telling him not to appeal the case. This telegram was signed by Mrs. Willebrandt and was followed by two others signed by Attorney General Sargent. In one of the telegrams Sargent informed De Groot that he saw "nothing in the files so far to indicate other than innocence of the owner." He also, in another telegram, directed that no costs during the delay period be charged to the claimant of the rum runner.

In the course of the discussion concerning the case, Chiert and Pisciotta had been informed that Senator Moses was a cousin of William B. Nelson and had interested himself in the case. Tonight in Washington Senator Moses denied that he was related to Nelson, but he admitted that he had introduced to officials of the Department of Justice F. W. Hartford, Mayor of Portsmouth, N. H., who desired to confer with the officials about the Ansonia case.

The New York World learned tonight that Mayor Hartford, who is the owner of the Portsmouth Herald and a strong supporter of Senator Moses, is also the father-in-law of the man who claimed the Ansonia, William B. Nelson, of Ansonia. Nelson is the man who got the ship back after it was seized.

Text of Telegrams.

The text of the telegrams sent by Attorney General Sargent in connection with the case follow:

Washington, D. C.,
March 15, 1928.

United States Attorney, Brooklyn, N. Y.:

Telegram 15th mistakenly sent out and now is superseded by following: Department has decided against appeal in the Ansonia case. Dismiss pending appeal. Whether you proceed, ship forfeiture under national prohibition act rests entirely with your office and depends on whether you have strong enough evidence to prove that interest of owner and mortgagee is guilty interest.

I have seen nothing in files so far to indicate other than innocence of owner, but it is your responsibility to weigh evidence you may have and make decision as to whether you will proceed under section 26. If you do, this department suggests that you secure immediate hearing and take every precaution to prevent further delays in this case. Wire your decision. SARGENT.

Second Telegram Sent.

The second telegram follows:

Washington, D. C.,
June 19, 1928.

United States Attorney, Brooklyn, N. Y.:

Since it appears you have failed to wind up Ansonia case persuant your letter of May 29 and in view of our request early in March for you to either libel or dismiss and do one or the other immediately without any further expense and irritation of delay, department's view is that your continued indecision and inaction is inexcusable. A goodly portion of costs have resulted from delay and you are directed to close this case within 48 hours if possible and charge claimant with no cost that has accrued since our telegram to you of March 13. SARGENT.

WALDORF-ASTORIA'S LAST MEALS SERVED

FURNITURE IS BEING SOLD

New York, May 1 (A.P.).—Festively, with all flags flying as if, in former days, in welcome to a president or prince, the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel passed out of existence tonight, victim of the mighty march of business up Fifth avenue.

With the removal of the famous hostelry to make room for an office skyscraper, the whole character of Thirty-fourth street and Fifth avenue, once the most fashionable neighborhood in the New World, will have completely changed. Even now, with the familiar old red walls still standing, ghosts of those dandies of "the age of innocence" and "the mauve decade" would have a hard time finding their way about.

More than 1,000 guests tonight rode up in taxis and limousines to the brilliantly lighted carriage entrance to eat the last dinner ever to be served at the Waldorf. There was one big stag dinner in the grand ballroom, attended by members of more than 40 organizations that for years have had their annual dinners at the hotel. In the beautiful old dining room overlooking Fifth avenue, in the grill and in the other smaller cafes, a $10 table d'hote, prepared under the direction of Oscar was served to individual diners.

After the dinners there was dancing and, around midnight, the last of Oscar's famous suppers.

Two hundred guests had reservations to pass the night there, but they'll have to get out early tomorrow morning to make way for the auctioneer, and they'll have to go out for breakfast.

Senator Royal S. Copeland and other notables spoke at the big stag dinner, and their speeches were broadcast. The dinner was the inspiration of Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University, who was unable to be present, as he is recovering from an operation.

The hotel will be torn down in about a month. Auctioning off of the furniture started today—with a dresser that brought $77 after the auctioneer had suggested that "perhaps before this dresser Anna Held undressed for her famous milk bath."

Antique Dealer Taken On Charge of Customer

Najib Hekiman, 43-year-old antique and oriental rug dealer, of 4811 Montgomery lane, Chevy Chase, Md., proprietor of a store at 1226 Connecticut avenue northwest, was arrested yesterday afternoon by Detective Sergt. Michael J. Dowd on a charge of larceny after trust.

Hekiman was arrested on the complaint of Mrs. Helen Clark, 1526 Eighteenth street northwest, who told police that Hekiman sold a picture she had turned over to her husband, F. B. Clark, for disposal, without turning over the money obtained by the sale to her husband. The picture, valued at $500, was sold for $250, according to detectives, the full amount of which was not turned over to Clark, police said. Hekiman was released under $500 bond.

Two Keyes Aids Held On Bribe Indictments

Los Angeles, May 1 (A.P.).—Two grand jury indictments charging Harold L. Davis and Donald Mackay, former deputy district attorneys, with conspiracy to give and receive bribes in connection with the prosecution of the fraud cases resulting from the stock promotion of the now defunct Julian Petroleum Corporation were given to the sheriff today.

The district attorney's office announced that payment of a bribe of $7,500 to Davis and Mackay for the "fixing" of an embezzlement action against A. I. Lasker, former automobile finance company official, was charged by Ben Getzoff, convicted Julian Petroleum Corporation conspirator.

The condition of Keyes, who is ill in the county jail, where he is awaiting the outcome of an appeal from a bribery conviction, was reported today as "alarming."

Hoover Praises Meyer As He Quits Farm Board

(Associated Press.)

Following announcement yesterday of a successor to Eugene Meyer, jr., as chairman of the Federal Farm Loan Board, President Hoover made public a letter in which he praised Meyer's work and regretted his resignation.

At the same time, however, Senator Brookhart (Republican), Iowa, declared Meyer's retirement a "most fortunate thing" and described him as a "decoy duck for the financiers."

150 Are Imprisoned In Long Mafia Trial

Sicilian Court Frees but 11 Defendants; Jury Out Seven Days.

Termini Imerese, Sicily, May 1 (A.P.). The great Mafia trial, involving 161 defendants, ended today in a verdict of guilty for 150 persons with sentences running as high as 23 years imprisonment. The trial lasted nine months.

The proceedings, it was said, cut the roots from the last feudist groups of the once blood-stained island. Lawyers of the defense, as well as several of the defendants, acknowledged in statements to the court before sentence was passed that the determined action taken by Prefect Mori, on orders of Premier Mussolini, had cleaned up sicily and given the population a chance to cultivate the fertile island in peace.

The jury was out seven days. It was faced with the task of answering 7,000 questions in making up its verdict.

The nurseries and clinics will be housed in one center, Heckscher said, and it is expected that a half dozen of these will be established in the three boroughs.

STALIN, SOVIETS' "STEEL MAN," OFFERS TO QUIT LEADERSHIP

ardent Stalinist who has fought both the Trotskyists and the right-wing Communists.

His appointment today, therefore, is regarded as a victory for Stalin in his struggle with the "rightists," headed by Alexey Rykoff. The main purpose of the present convention was to settle differences of opinion between Stalin and the Dykoff group, affecting chiefly the peasants.

Although superficially Stalin won a majority in the convention, it is, nevertheless, believed that substantial concessions will have to be made to the right-wingers because sentiment for the Rykoff group has been growing among the peasants, who oppose Stalin's policy by refusing to cultivate their fields.

Eagerness for American recognition of Russia was displayed in today's May Day street carnivals and other public demonstrations, in which hundreds of thousands participated.

While England, France, Italy and Poland were bitterly attacked in highly insulting caricatures and placards carried by the demonstrators, an exception was taken in the case of Uncle Sam. He was carefully presented as nothing but a huge black question mark, interpreted to mean "how soon will America recognize Russia?"

Fifty airplanes soared over Red Square today while an ocean of marchers below passed Lenin's tomb with banners flying and bands blaring from early morning until late in the evening. Despite the rain, the military demonstration was one of the most impressive Moscow has ever witnessed.

(Copyright, 1929.)

New York, May 1 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Behind the bare announcement in the above Moscow despatch that Joseph V. Stalin today offered to step down from the dominant place he has occupied in the inner councils of the Communist party lies the story of the bitterest political battle fought in Russia since Leon Trotzky, former red army chief, and the "Steel man" came to grips on National policy.

The protagonists in the present struggle are stalin on one hand and the "Rightists" on the other. The three outstanding figures in the group opposing Russia's dictator are Alexey Rykoff, Michael Tomsky and N. Bucharin.

The issue at stake is the internal policy of Russia as it affects the country's agricultural and industrial development.

In the face of strong "Rightist" opposition Stalin is sponsoring a 5-year program fostering mass production in both rural and urban Russia. Industrialization of the cities and encouragement of cooperative farming are the cardinal principles of this program. The right wing Communists favor a 3-year program concentrated upon agricultural development which they declare can most effectively be put into operation if the government interprets liberally the economic doctrines enunciated by Lenin in 1921, allowing individual farmers full play of their initiative.

Stalin's policy approximates pure communism. His political opponents, he charges, would abandon the doctrines of Lenin for more liberal ones, swinging toward socialism.

As secretary general of the political bureau, the all-powerful body through which the Communist party has controlled the Russian government, Stalin is spokesman for the country's 1,200,000 Communists, the majority of whom are concentrated in the cities.

Rykoff, Tomsky and Bucharin speak for the other 145,000,000 Russians, mostly peasants, who comprise the vast majority of the citizenry of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics. Rykoff is chairman of the Council of People's Commissars, the executive body of the U. S. S. R. Tomsky is the leader of the more modern elements whose political strength is derived from their control of the trade unions. Bucharin, regarded by many as the foremost political propagandist and one of the most brilliant economists in Russia, is supporting the policies espoused by Tomsky and Rykoff.

The significance of today's development can only be guessed at this distance from Moscow. On the surface, Stalin's tender of his resignation would appear to have resulted from recognition of strong popular support behind the Rykoff group. On the other hand, it is to be recalled that he made a similar gesture a year ago when his struggle with Trotsky, which ended in the latter's exile, was at its most bitter stage.

Another puzzling aspect of the situation lies in the fact that Stalin's own rise to political ascendancy in Russia was made with the help of the U. S. S. R. building up, but to which he now appears opposed.

Far seeing Men

FAR SEEING MEN

Henry L. Doherty was one of them. He set out as a boy with $6 in his pocket to become one of the country's leading public utility men. And it was said of him then,

"On a clear day, he can see ten miles ahead!"

Those same ten words can be applied today to ninety per cent of our successful men. Walter P. Chrysler, Henry Ford, Owen D. Young, Thomas Edison. Far seeing men. They looked ahead.

Three thousand business leaders are doing just that this week in Washington. They are meeting together for five days at the Seventeenth Annual Meeting of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

For five days they are surveying every branch of industry, every field of business. They are applying measuring sticks to economic tendencies. Using the microscope to examine and analyze minute . . but, important . . details. And their findings will report the "hows" and the "whats" and the "whys" of vitally exciting business trends.

Then the long look into the business future . . the use of the business telescope . . to answer the question,

"When?"

FOR business men have learned to look ahead to the rim of the business horizon. That bank of clouds and flash of lightning may mean an industrial storm . . or merely a passing squall. But which? Behind the fog of those trade barriers may lie concealed enough red ink to cover the books of a thousand established firms. And in the heart of that tornado of scientific research may be the padlocks for a thousand factories . . as well as the ground plans for a thousand more.

What is back of some particular rise or fall of the business barometer? Why does it develop so rapidly . . or slowly? How lasting will be its effect? Where will the blow of failure . . or the accolade of success . . fall? And . . when?

How effective are codes of business practice?

Is it true that as much as 80 per cent of all factories built prior to 1920 are uneconomically located to meet present day competition?

Should rate-making by the Interstate Commerce Commission give preference to "distressed industries"?

Should government enter the hydro-electric field commercially?

Does group action by retailers and by wholesalers and retailers combined indicate ultimate chain organization and distribution?

Will the individual wholesaler or retailer, operating independently, survive?

How will the increasing competition between chains affect their growth?

How flexible should a tariff be?

Is there a sufficient supply of credit for the normal expansion of American business?

What are the effects upon commerce and industry of the uses of credit on the stock market?

How does "no parking" affect retail business?

What have been the recent developments in company pension plans, other retirement systems, state legislation relative to pensions?

These are only a few of the pertinent questions under discussion at the 17th Annual Meeting. These are only a few of the problems on which the combined efforts of three thousand men are centered this week in Washington.

Of necessity, such work as this needs an interpreter. Nation's Business, official publication of the National Chamber, was established to fill that need.

In 1912, there were less than a thousand readers. Today, there are more than 300,000 regular subscribers. This growth and acceptance is proof that the need was there . . that the need is being met.

And each year, as an extra dividend to its subscribers and available at cost for distribution among non-readers, Nation's Business prints an Extra Edition. This Extra Edition reports the Annual Meeting of the United States Chamber of Commerce.

Covering the findings and conclusions of a great business congress, carrying a fund of important and valuable information, painting a vividly clear picture of business history, the 1929 Extra Edition of Nation's Business will this year take the message of the 17th Annual Meeting to business men in every branch of industry the country over.

DECISION ON CALLING MELLON ISSUE TODAY

Senate Committee Members Split on Need for Details of Business Activity.

QUESTIONING HELD TRIAL

(Associated Press.)

The Senate judiciary committee yesterday reached a cross roads in its inquiry into the right of Secretary Mellon to hold office and a decision is impending whether to call on the Treasury Secretary to testify or to rest the case on an interpretation of the law relating to his office.

Some committee members believe the Secretary should be questioned about his relations to the business world as a stockholder in various enterprises, while others contend such action would amount to a trial of Mr. Mellon for violation of the law and would be outside the jurisdiction of the committee.

The latter maintain that the committee has been directed only to state whether Mr. Mellon as a stockholder is serving in violation of an old statute forbidding the Secretary of the Treasury to be interested in carrying on trade or commerce.

Borah's Stand Made Known.

It is contended by some, including Senator Borah, of Idaho, that the committee in examining into the business activities of Mr. Mellon is, in effect, trying him for violation of the law. If that course is to be pursued, they insist that Mr. Mellon should be heard at an open session.

Senator Walsh, Democrat, Montana, has raised the point that Mr. Mellon went to Canada in 1925 in the interests of the Aluminum Co. of America, in which he is a stockholder. The Montanan is anxious for more details in that connection. He believes it is the duty of the committee to determine all the facts before passing judgment on whether Mr. Mellon's business activities conflict with the law.

A decision is in prospect today on whether to open the committee hearings for an investigation, or to rest the case on Mr. Mellon's statement that he is a stockholder.

Reed Shows Contract.

In response to the disclosure by Senator Walsh of the Canadian visit by Secretary Mellon at the time the Aluminum Co. took over a power development there from the Duke Tobacco interests, Senator Reed (Republican), of Pennsylvania, an intimate friend of Mr. Mellon, yesterday showed to the committee the original contract between the Aluminum Co. and the Duke interests for the Canadian project. He said Mr. Mellon's name was not on it. It did bear the name of R. B. Mellon, a brother of the Secretary and one of the directors in the Aluminum Co.

Senator Walsh had produced before the committee a deposition given by Mr. Mellon in a lawsuit involving the Canadian transaction. The deposition referred to a contract signed by Mr. Mellon.

The Montanan believes this point needs clearing up before the committee can pass judgment on whether Mr. Mellon is actually engaged in carrying on trade or commerce.

DRY HANGING SPEECH PRIZE IS PROFFERED

before my purely technical extinction is consummated.

"In the circumstances I feel quite sure that I should be far too nervous and distrait to think of anything appropriate, especially as I should be embarrassed by the presence of such a group of learned and exalted executives of the will of a sovereign State. It is my desire, therefore, to obtain and memorize an apt and graceful speech for this, my final appearance; and it is for this speech that the above prizes are offered.

"Some limitations, of course, must be set. The speech should not be so long as to bore the governor or send the witnesses to sleep, nor should it contain any allusions that might shock or puzzle the holy man provided to comfort me in this crisis. Nor should it contain any references to civilizations which, though they may be more suave, are still incomparatively inferior to that under which I have the honor to die.

"Again, it seems to me, no mention should be made of the vindictive provincialism of the drys nor the cowardly hypocrisy of the wets. As a matter of good taste, one should neither labor the obvious nor take advantage of a privileged position.

"I think it only fair that I have a copyright upon the selected speech, since it would surely be very dreary if all the thousands presently to be executed mumbled off the same periods like schoolboys with the Gettysburg address.

"Any further conditions which you may see fit to impose are, of course, welcome, and you are hereby constituted the sole judge of the contest.

"Yours very truly,

"HERMAN OELRICHS."

The New York World has informed Mr. Oelrichs that it can not serve as judge in his essay contest and has suggested that he either serve as his own judicial committee or appoint such a committee.

Mr. Oelrichs, who is the son of the late Herman Oelrichs, for many years agent for the North German Lloyd in this country, and of the late Theresa Fair Oelrichs, is a graduate of Columbia Law School in the class of 1914. During the exciting time before America's entry into the World War he served as an attache of the American Embassy at Berlin.

His mother, sister of Mrs. Fair Vanderbilt, was a daughter of the late Senator James G. Fair, pioneer Westerner, who amassed a large fortune in the California gold rush. Mr. Oelrichs' father was a descendant of a very old family of Bremen, Germany, whose first member came to America more than a century ago. Mr. Oelrichs married Miss Dorothy Haydel, of St. Louis, at Biarritz, France, in September, 1925.

SINKING OF I'M ALONE IS AIRED AT U. S. CHAMBER CONVENTION

tesy, our Canadian officials now promptly notify your officials whenever shipments of intoxicants are being made from our ports which are likely to reach the United States, so that your enforcement of your laws may be facilitated.

"By reason of your increasing financial, industrial and political strength, your Nation has not only become the Colossus of the Western Hemisphere, but you are now probably the most potent single political power of the world; and, therefore, your weaker neighbors, such as ourselves, naturally observe with interest, and sometimes with concern, not only the manner but the spirit in which you exercise the vast political forces which are now at your command.

"Violated International Law."

"For example, we, as one of the British Dominions, are a party to the convention which was made at Washington in January, 1924, to which we gave our adherence solely for the purpose of facilitating the administration of your tariff and sumptuary laws. Under Article I your Nation solemnly declared its firm intention to uphold the principle that 3 marine miles extending from your coastline outward constituted the proper limits of your territorial waters. By Article II it was expressly provided that the exceptional right conferred should not be exercised at a greater distance from the coast of the United States that can be traversed in one hour by the vessel suspected.

"We recently ascertained that an unarmed vessel of Canadian registry had been sunk over 200 miles off your coast by the guns of one of the vessels of your customs patrol. There is a widely prevalent opinion in our country that this event was not a reasonable exercise of the extraterritorial privileges conferred by the plain text of that convention, and, in brief, that it was neither authorized by the express terms of that convention nor by the recognized rules of international law.

Calls Tariff Financial Blow.

"Your Fordney-McCumber tariff was a severe blow to many of our producers, but we have now, in a large measure, compensated for our trade losses which were due to that enactment by procuring market openings in other countries.

"I think that all Canadians sincerely trust that you will fully appreciate our peculiar position and construe such measures as we may, from time to time, deem it advisable to take as readjustments of our economic policy, which are, in our opinion, necessary for the preservation of our economic life, and not as an expression of resentment against such changes in your tariff and fiscal policy as you, in your discretion, may deem expedient for promoting the general wellbeing of your own people."

Mr. Cahan spoke in detail of the proposal for the United States and Canada to jointly agree to completion of navigation channels and canals along the St. Lawrence waterways. He said that in his opinion "the project has not been enthusiastically entertained in Canada," and, maintained that it would have been received more favorably there, "if the problem had first been resolved into its simplest component elements." In conclusion, he declared Canada invited Americans to establish branch offices in the Dominion and to visit there at any time.

House Leader Talks on Tariff.

Representative Willis C. Hawley, of Oregon, chairman of the House ways and means committee, discussed various factors that are considered in enactment of tariff legislation.

"The tariff act of 1922 has fully justified its existence. It has restored confidence, rehabilitated industry, fostered agriculture, provided millions of wage earners with employment and brought prosperity to our people," he declared. "For the great majority of the articles for which it provided protection it is still efficient and sufficient. But the past six years have seen the most remarkable developments here and abroad ever made in any similar period of history.

"Competitive conditions have changed. We have fields of production and industry in which the forces of foreign competition are making serious inroads. It is necessary that the arm that protects industries be raised in their behalf. Notably among these is agriculture. For this reason we have undertaken a readjustment of the act of 1922 to bring the beneficial effects of the protective tariff abreast of modern times. We are repairing the defenses where the attacks are making inroads. All our people and all our industries are entitled to the same consideration.

Plan to Guard Industries.

"We have no intention of excluding foreign products from the market of the United States, but it is the purpose to admit them under such conditions and in such quantities as not to throttle our industries, imperil our wage scales and impede our development. Our foreign trade has practically doubled under the act of 1922 and has remained doubled and is the largest in the peace-time history of our country.

"May I say that in my opinion the most effective and satisfactory relief that agriculture can receive is not the opportunity to borrow more of other people's money nor any form of aid affording temporary relief, with a consequent increased burden when the day of settlement arrives, but for the farmers to receive money of their own by obtaining remunerative prices for their crops."

In his address on "Our Stake in the Pacific," Chester H. Rowell, San Francisco publicist and writer, championed the recognition of the peoples of the Pacific on a plane of equality.

"The ocean barrier has become a bridge," he asserted, "and have no illusion. The nations can not long meet on any other basis than that of equality. For the moment they are unequal. The West has power, wealth, organization, science, machinery and highly organized government. Only Japan has these things in the East. They do not ask, they demand the treatment of equal respect from us. We treat the Japanese with respect because they have a strong government, a great army and navy, and the mailed fist to make us do it.

"Understanding Is Needed."

"There ought to be more travel across the Pacific, and there ought to be more appreciation of the problems of the Orient and the relations to us. The first of these is not trade or politics, or even peace or war. It is understanding.

"Unless the great business opportunities which open across the Pacific are freed of the menace of war, there is nowhere on earth for business to find a field for expansion in the coming generation, such as it has found in the industrializa'on of Europe and the development of America in the generations just behind us. So our stake in the Pacific is in the whole of it, in its peace and progress, as well as its markets. America's face is turning West. We have entered on the Pacific age."

In conclusion, Rowell spoke of the gathering of the recently established Institute of Pacific Relations, to be held this fall at Kyoto, Japan. He announced the theme to be "Manchuria, the Most Dangerous Question in the World."

Many of the 3,000 delegates and guests in attendance last night attended dinner gatherings of the American Trade Association's executives, at the Mayflower Hotel; the National Association of Commercial Organization Secretaries and the dinner of the Exes, including former officers and former directors of the Chamber of Commerce, at the Willard Hotel.

CATHOLIC POLITICAL ACTIVITY IS DENIED

National Conference Official Answers Methodist's Charge in Copeland Row.

GROUPS HELD DISSIMILAR

Patrick J. Ward, director of the bureau of publicity and information of the National Catholic Welfare Conference, yesterday issued a public statement in regard to Dr. Clarence True Wilson's reply to charges of Senator Royal S. Copeland that the Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Christian Morals was endeavoring to "control legislation." Ward's statement takes issue with some of the claims of Dr. Wilson, secretary of the Methodist board. It is as follows:

"In his reply to Senator Copeland, Dr. Clarence True Wilson, of the Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Christian Morals, makes the statement that 'the Catholic Church has long had a headquarters here from which they have no hesitancy in conferring with senators and other Government officials.' In this statement he wishes to draw a parallel between the activities of the Methodist board and those of the National Catholic Welfare Conference.

"There is no similarity betwen these two organizations. The Methodist Board of Temperance and Public Morals is in party politics. It supports or opposes candidates for public office according to their accpetability or nonacceptability to the Methodist Church. Its purpose is political.

"The Catholic Church and the Catholic body in the United States have no political platform. The National Cahtolic Welfare Conference is not organized for any political purpose. It does not align itself with any political party in return for party favors or support, and it has never sought the defeat of any political candidate because of his stand on any particular piece of legislation."

BALLOU REELECTED BY EDUCATION BOARD

intendent of Washington's public schools, members of the board characterized him as one of the most noted educators in the United States and, as such, his continuance in office was necessary in order that Washington's public schools be kept on their present plane of high standards.

Mr. Crane was chosen for the recently created position of assistant superintendent, in charge of buildings and grounds, from among 75 other applicants. He is a registered architect, both in the District of Columbia and New York, and at present is employed in the office of the Supervising Architect of the Treasury Department, in charge of the designing of Government buildings.

His experience as an architect dates from 1906, when he first was employed in the office of the Supervising Architect of the Treasury. He left that post in 1911 to go to New York City. In 1912 and until 1921 he served as resident architect for the municipal sanatorium of Orange County, N. Y., a State hospital operated by the State health department.

Dr. E. G. Kimball, a supervising principal in the public schools, was retired by the board at its meeting yesterday in the Franklin Building because of age, despite numerous requests for his retention in service by civic organizations and prominent citizens.

The board decided on the names for three buildings soon to be erected. The new junior high school to be erected in the vicinity of the Reno Reservoir is to be named the Alice Deal Junior High School, in memory of the late Miss Alice Deal, a teacher.

Anthony J. Bowen is the name to be given to the new building to replace the old Bell-Cardozo School, and the building to be erected in the vicinity of the Kingsman School, at Thirteenth and D streets northeast, is to be called the Charles William Elliot Junior High School.

Abandonment of the Abbot School for use of the Columbia Junior High School was forecast by Dr. Ballou as soon as the new Alice Deal School is ready for occupancy.

The board granted leave of absence to Dr. Ballou for two days, beginning tomorrow, in order that he may attend a meeting of the committee on the research fund, department of superintendence, which is to be held in Atlantic City.

Tallulah Bankhead And Count Disagree

Engagement to Wed, Says Actress, Is Off by Mutual Consent.

London, May 1 (U.P.).—Tallulah Bankhead, American actress, has broken her engagement to Count Anthony de Bosdari, she announced tonight. An agreement to disagree was reached by mutual consent, Miss Bankhead said.

She added that she and the count were still devoted to each other, but "he has so much work to do and I have mine to do."

The engagement was announced last November and the actress said she intended to continue her stage work after the marriage.

Count de Bosdari, a naturalized British citizen, is a member of a distinguished Italian family. He previously had been divorced from the former Josephine Fish, Chicago society woman. The count has made a reputation as a business man since his residence in England.

at Heflin's threats. The portents that rolled from the Alabaman's lips, suggesting under the bright gleam in his eyes the sunlit waters of Great Falls, meant nothing to him, Tydings said. He voted as he thought was right. Then in an exchange, he exclaimed:

"You can't frighten me a damned bit by threatening me."

"Oh, whom the gods would destroy they first make mad," Heflin retorted gleefully.

"Then the senator must be insane now," rejoined Tydings. The Maryland senator's colleague, Senator Goldsborough, had been in the chair when the tilt started, but he scurried for a more hard-boiled parliamentarian, and Senator Moses came arunning. Nothing was done, however. The demonstration in the gallery was quickly quieted.

The interpretation of the Senate's refusal to vote for the resolution as a refusal to express disapproval of some one throwing a beer bottle at him is the senator's own, and on the vote alone that interpretation can not be gainsaid. The resolution said simply that the Senate did not like to see the people of Brockton throwing beer bottles at the senator. It specifically provided that the Senate was not taking sides on the merits of the subject matter of the senator's speech.

Speeches Attacked Catholics.

But in his several speeches that preceded it Heflin wrapped this simple little resolution with oodles and oodles of his anti-Catholic attack. The Republicans, all save Sackett and Robinson, decided they just wouldn't stand for it. In view of the Democratic split the Republicans by this single gesture went far to getting back those elements that accuse the majority party of intolerance in the campaign—and after the Democrats went through so much in an effort to establish tolerance at the time.

The climax which Jones, of Washington, capped on the scene was most unexpected. The author of the five and ten law, he is, nevertheless a most mild and unobtrusive gentlemen and seldom says anything. He seemed, in fact, to be apologizing for his vote.

Recalling that Heflin had said that pressure had been exterted upon senators to vote against his resolution, th Washingtonian said:

"I have a confession to make. When I first saw the senator's resolution I objected to its consideration because I had not had the time to study it. There were several whereases in it—then the senator greatly modified it. I became convinced that in this modified form there was no reason why it should not pass. None of us hold anything but condemnation for mob violence.

"But preasure, as the senator from Alabama says, has been exerted upon me and I believe it has been exerted upon other senators. And that pressure has been the senator from Alabama himself."

"I'll fix you for that," Heflin hissed behind his cuffed hand as the monotonous discussion of the farm bill for which the session was called, was resumed.

Heflin told one good joke in his tirade. A man was caught stealing watermelons, presumably down in Alabama. He looked up to see the dazzling moonbeams playing upon a shotgun. He ran, and did he run? He stumbled and fell, falling across an old setting hen. The hen took one big peck at his ankle.

"Go ahead and shoot," he plaintively told his pursuer. "I'm snake-bitten and gonna die anyway."

BOY, 17, ACQUITTED OF MURDER OF FIVE

Jacob Vanderburg, Accused of Wiping Out Family, Is Cleared at Gastonia.

PARENTS AMONG SLAIN

Gastonia, N. C., May 1 (A.P.).—Jacob Vanderburg, charged with the murder of five members of his family, was acquitted by a jury in Gaston superior court tonight. The 17-year-old farm boy was free of police custody tonight for the first time since December 28, when the bodies of his parents, his two sisters and a younger brother were found in the ruins of their razed home on the outskirts of this city.

Judge A. M. Stack, presiding, completed his charge at 5:33 o'clock this afternoon, and the jury retired with the privilege of returning a verdict of first degree murder, as asked by the State, second degree murder, manslaughter or acquittal.

During the trial, which started eight days ago, the State attempted to prove that Jacob had hacked his sleeping kinspeople to death with a hatchet, dragged their bodies into the kitchen and set fire to the house. Alleged blood spots police said they found on Jacob's clothes at the time of his arrest, a bloodstained hand axe and incriminating statements attributed to him by State's witnesses were links in the chain of the prosecution's evidence.

Jacob was arrested on the night of the fire after neighbors had discovered him sitting beneath a tree, shotgun in hand, watching the flames.

Police said he told them of fleeing the burning house after making his way through the smoke to his mother's room, feeling her head and finding it wet with blood.

25 Years Given Teacher Who Shot School Patron

Benton, Ill., May 1 (A.P.).—Floyd E. Watson, a school teacher and a former candidate for the State Legislature, who shot and killed Charles Ritchason, a school patron, last fall in an altercation over the whipping of three of Ritchason's four children at a rural school, was convicted of murder by a circuit court jury today. He was sentenced to serve 25 years in prison.

Evidence in the trial was that Ritchason, was shot in the back although Watson pleaded self-defense. Ritchason had remonstrated against the whipping of his children. The school board voted last week to reemploy Watson to teach again next winter.

CHARACTER LOANS:

The following is an extract from an Editorial in the Washington TIMES of April 29, 1929:

"Extremely valuable work is done by big financial institutions that seek to encourage thrift and discourage the loan shark industry, by making what are known as 'character loans.'

"The borrower, honestly intending to pay and able to pay, needing a reasonable amount of money is able to get it on his CHARACTER.

"The test of character is a man's ability to persuade two respectable friends to add their names to his on a note for the money borrowed. He is allowed to pay gradually, is not required to put up any security, stocks or property or anything else. His own character, vouched for by two friends, is his security.

"Many make such 'character loans,' thus keeping out of the hands of the loan sharks."

The Morris Plan began making "character loans" in 1910, starting with one company in Norfolk, Virginia. There are now over 100 Morris Plan Banks and Companies, and since 1910 the aggregate amount loaned by all Morris Plan Banks or Companies has reached the amazing aggregate sum of over one and a quarter billion dollars.

Last year alone there were made in all Morris Plan Banks and Companies over 816 thousand loans.

There is a Morris Plan Bank in Washington under the supervision of the U. S. Treasury.

CONCESSIONS TO EUROPE.

Mr. Bridgeman, first lord of the British admiralty, who sabotaged the Geneva conference of 1927 by refusing to agree to parity with the United States in cruiser strength, is one of those conservative politicians of Great Britain who hail with delight the recent speeches by Ambassador Gibson, in which he proposed new methods of measuring naval strength and surrendered to the French demand for the retention of trained reserves and conscription in peace time. Mr. Bridgeman does not exactly know what Mr. Gibson has in mind in measuring naval strength, but he assumes that it is a valuable concession to Britain. As for the concession to France, Mr. Bridgeman hopes that it will evoke from France an equally splendid and unselfish gesture, preferably a willingness to abolish submarines.

For eight years, says Mr. Bridgeman, the British government has been in favor of abolishing submarines. It takes that position now. It would gladly take the lead in doing away with undersea craft, which did so much in the late war to make the British navy impotent in protecting British commerce. If France and Italy, in a burst of gratitude for the American concession which insures the maintenance of great armies in Europe, would now reciprocate by agreeing to abolish submarines, the welfare of the British Empire would be wonderfully promoted. It is not forgotten that Secretary Kellogg offered on behalf of the United States to abolish submarines if all other nations would do the same.

Mr. Bridgeman was not any too confident, however, that France and Italy would rise to the occasion. He noted that they placed great reliance in submarines as a cheap and effective means of defense against naval attack. He contented himself by reminding France and Italy that the United States and Britain had made a splendid gesture by agreeing to the maintenance of big armies in Europe—a gesture that plainly calls for a generous "counter-concession."

The French delegate at the Geneva preparatory conference experienced "profound emotion" when Mr. Gibson suddenly announced that the United States was willing to sign a treaty perpetuating the existence of huge trained reserves and peace-time conscription in Europe. Recovering with difficulty, the French delegate intimated that France would seek some means of making an equally generous concession. He could not think of any concession on the spur of the moment, however, and after the lapse of several days he is still silent. This long meditation may be taken as proof that France is thinking up some splendid reciprocal gesture, possibly an offer to agree to the conscription of American citizens in peace time.

At any rate, the concessions made by Mr. Gibson have filled the bosoms of European negotiators with elation and hope. Substantial progress has been made in preventing any genuine limitation of naval or military strength. A little more negotiation, a few more concessions, and it will not matter what the United States says or does.

A STRONGER MARKET.

In many respects it appears that the stock market crisis has passed. No one can tell, of course, what may be in the mind of the Federal Reserve Board. If it should again issue a warning in regard to the misuse of credit there would be another slump. But yesterday and the day before the market exhibited a firmness that has not been apparent for some time, and it weathered handsomely a credit stringency brought about by withdrawal of money for month-end commitments.

Three factors have influenced the return to firmness. During the week, an unnamed official of the Treasury was credited with a statement to the effect that current activity in the speculative markets was not overextending itself. On Tuesday, there was announced the organization of a company to operate independently in the call money market. In addition, first quarter reports of several big businesses, notably United States Steel, were most reassuring. Speculators took the statement that emanated from the Treasury as indicating that the Federal Reserve Board had decided not to interfere with the course of the market. They saw in the organization of the call loan company assurance that credit would henceforward be available, independent of the banks. They read from the first quarter reports indications that business is good. No more was neded to create a confident market.

PHILIPPINE INDEPENDENCE.

A commission appointed by the Philippine Legislature has arrived in Washington. When it left Manila its chairman stated that its first and primary object was to ask for "immediate, complete and absolute independence." The second object was to oppose tariff legislation that would place a limitation upon imports of sugar from the Philippines.

Since its arrival in Washington the commission has kept silence on the subject of immediate, complete and absolute independence. Apparently the commission has discovered that its two objects are incompatible—that if the Philippines are to have the economic advantage of free trade with the United States they can not have political independence also. It is reported that the commission was confidentially advised by Secretary Stimson to "soft pedal" the demand for independence, as such an agitation at this time would react unfavorably against the other object sought—continued economic favors from the United States.

The argument that the Philippines should receive the same tariff advantages as are accorded to "other dependencies" has no weight if the Philippines are to be made independent. Since the United States is pledged to grant independence to the Philippines whenever they are economically and otherwise capable of maintaining their independence, the logical policy for the United States to pursue is to contribute to the economic independence of the islands as a prelude to political independence. But if the islands are to be made and kept dependent upon the free entry of sugar into the United States, political independence will be indefinitely postponed.

These facts have dawned upon several influential Filipinos, notably Vicente Villamin and Pedro de la Llana, the latter formerly a member of the legislature. Both desire the independence of their country, but they perceive that economic independence must come first. Mr. Villamin believes that by gradually emancipating the Philippines from economic dependence upon the United States, by diversifying Philippine products and developing the country's latent resources, political independence will follow as a matter of course. Mr. de la Llana entertains similar opinions.

It would be well for the Philippine commission now in Washington to make its position clear. Is it demanding "immediate, complete and absolute independence," according to its proclamation when it departed from Manila, or is it demanding a continuance of economic dependence upon the United States, which would make necessary the indefinite postponement of political independence?

WASHINGTON AIRPORT.

Because of the position Col. Charles A. Lindbergh occupies in the broad field of aviation, Washington is singularly fortunate that he agreed to testify before the joint congressional commission formed to advise Congress in the matter of a municipal airport. Col. Lindbergh's word carries great weight. That he unqualifiedly indorses the project should convince doubters, if any there be, that the time has arrived for decisive action. He says that there should be a model airport at this Capital, superior to any that has thus far been constructed in the United States. He predicts that Washington will become an outstanding air traffic center. He wisely refrains from recommending a specific site, but his testimony unquestionably will serve to speed action on the project.

The congressional airport commission is winding up its investigation. Seldom, if ever, has a commission assembled an equivalent amount of expert testimony. Among its witnesses were air mail fliers, managers of metropolitan airports, Government officials and others interested in the project from the purely commercial standpoint. The commission has assembled an amount of data that will make possible a well-considered conclusion. It will be able to make recommendations to Congress based on a compendium of the experience of the outstanding flying experts of the country.

The commission must make three important decisions: First, where shall the airport be located; second, how large should it be, and, third, how shall its cost be divided as between the local and the Federal governments. Authoritative data are in hand by which each of these questions can be answered to the satisfaction of all.

DEMOCRACY REVIVED.

John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic national committee, has answered the most important political question that has arisen since the election last November. His statement issued here indicates that the Democratic party will not only survive its defeat but will rise to greater strength. If the present plans of the Democrats are carried out, the party will enter the 1932 presidential contest with vigor and confidence.

Last week the party called upon its representatives in Congress to formulate a constructive program on which the future policies of Democracy can be based. That movement is now followed up by the establishment of a business organization that will harmonize the efforts of the national committee, congressional and State leaders, and give the party the impetus of executive management the year round. Headquarters are to be established in Washington on a permanent basis. A research bureau that will furnish information to congressional leaders and committees is contemplated. "Everything will be done," Mr. Raskob's statement reads, "to build a strong, country-wide Democratic organization that will be a virile, going institution, functioning at all times in the interest of Democratic policies and doctrines, as set forth by such great Democratic statesmen as Thomas Jefferson, Andrew Jackson and Woodrow Wilson."

Coupled with this optimistic statement is the announcement that the party deficit has been reduced from $1,550,000 to approximately $800,000. Mr. Raskob predicts that another $300,000 reduction will be made within two weeks, and the prospects for wiping out this stumbling block in the way of future progress looks better than ever before. While the executive control of the party is to pass from the national committee to the smaller executive committee, Mr. Raskob will continue in his present position. No doubt he intends to make himself responsible for wiping out the remaining debt and financing the new headquarters on a scale that will make continuous activity possible.

The choice of Jouett Shouse, of Kansas City, as chairman of the executive committee is a happy one. He has had abundant experience to qualify him for the position. He is a former member of the House of Representatives and was Assistant Secretary of the Treasury under Woodrow Wilson. In 1924 he was a leader in the movement to nominate William G. McAdoo for the Presidency, and in 1928 he gave his entire time to the campaign of Gov. Smith. The nomination of a man who has thus worked consistently for the benefit of the party, rather than for one candidate or faction, should do much to cement the broken ties in the Democratic ranks.

The whole country is glad that the Democratic party is making such a determined comeback. If its efforts at organization are sound and the policies adopted are constructive, the party will command a following and fit itself for management of the Government.

WET AND DRY HYSTERIA

From the Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Last week in the House of Representatives certain members applauded the death by shooting of an alleged bootlegger. The applause was duly noted in the Congressional Record. A great many good citizens, both drys and wets, were appalled and shocked by this strange demonstration.

It was widely and justly criticized as savage and indecent. There was a flame of vindictiveness about it that startled the average American who is not yet willing to admit that prohibition is a matter of life and death or that rum-running is a capital offense.

On Monday the House was given an opportunity to strike from the Record the official notation of its cheering. Objections made by a Western member and a Southern member were raised. The move failed.

The House refused to expunge what an Eastern member described as "the bloodthirsty attitude of a hysterical moment." The record stands as a curious footnote to the history of prohibition in America.

Neither the applause in the House nor the refusal to change the record is of great moment, except as indications of the state of mind into which the country is drifting over prohibition. This hysterical partnership, both official and unofficial, is not healthy and it is becoming dangerous.

Each new incident is edged with a growing bitterness. The De King case in Illinois is a recent and typical instance.

When the I'm Alone was sunk by gunfire and with loss of life in the Gulf of Mexico, the facts were almost submerged by the twisted arguments and lying propaganda of both sides. The same thing happened when a Norwegian banana freighter was fired on while upon its lawful occasions in the Chesapeake. The same fires of controversy flamed when the Stuyvesant Fish yacht was boarded in New York harbor.

It does not help when a dry spokesman publicly "thrills" over the fatal sinking of the I'm Alone or when another dry finds killings "wholesome." Nor for the wets to minimize the thuggeries and felonies of the rum-runner and the racketeer, as is done on every possible occasion. All dry raiders are not careful and conscientious officers; enforcement agents are not right in every controversy, and certainly the bootlegger is no laudable and romantic figure.

One of the worst results of this partisanship and bitterness is the public's tendency to look with grave suspicion upon even the most official of official reports in many cases where violence is used. There is a belief that officialdom goes to great lengths in shielding those who break the law to enforce the law. The Niagara Falls case and a good many others of the same kind have not been forgotten.

Both wets and drys have lost their sense of proportion. Dry hysteria is equaled by wet hysteria. The mind of each is closed against the arguments of the other. They "see red." They walk in fogs of bitterness and resentment and the situation grows a little worse every day.

The Hoover commission, which will be named to examine the whole question of law enforcement, may be able to bring these partisans back to their senses. Everything will depend, first, upon its personnel and then upon the way in which it approaches the question. The slightest suspicion that it is "packed" to favor either side of the wet-dry issue will cripple its usefulness.

Meanwhile, there should be a truce of common sense and reason between drys and wets. Bloody-mindedness has no place in the debate. This Nation is trying to enforce prohibition, but it is not trying to start new graveyards.

Ask Us Another?

Hillsboro News-Herald: Where should a modest man look when a girl is climbing in a rumble seat?

Or Hot Dogs.

St. Louis Post-Dispatch: The Byrd party are having strawberries and ice cream. Our notion of a toothsome dessert down there would be red peppers smothered in tabasco sauce.

New Orleans Times-Picayune: Our New Orleans Association of Commerce will appoint a committee to study the effects of alcohol. Let's not all volunteer at once.

No Wonder.

Roanoke World-News: When you consider how many revolutionary heroes a Mexican schoolboy must remember, it's no wonder he turns rebel at the first opportunity.

Plenty Provisional.

Rochester Democrat and Chronicle: We are not intrigued by the thought of being a "provisional president" of Mexico. Being the real president has been almost too provisional at times.

What's the Difference?

Detroit Free Press: A good deal of the earnest attention that is being bestowed upon men who are losing their hair is misguided. They don't give a darn whether they are or aren't.

For Farm Relief.

St. Louis Post-Dispatch: The jumping cactus is a feature of the Southern California Flower Show. Now if it could be crossed with the jumping bean we might be on our way toward solving the farm-to-market problem.

It's Come to This.

There is supposed to be a new law in Italy to the effect that girls must wear below-the-knee skirts. "Goodness!" said a blasphemous old flapper, aged nearly 20, "I can remember when the knee was considered uptown."

Strings.

Kansas City Star: Marion Talley has been offered a farm in Labette County, Kans., the only condition being that she must live on the farm. That's always the way—there's always a string tied to everything. A poet offered us one of his books the other day, if we would agree to read it.

Poor Fish.

Syracuse Post-Standard: What chance has the poor fish? He used to have a fairly "even break" with the fisherman. But now he is becoming increasingly a victim of science and invention. The airplane has already demonstrated its ability to "spot" schools of fish in a way which was never possible for the fishing fleets which put out from our coasts. Now the Gloucester boats are to have the aid of radio in order that they may be given immediate news of the airplane observations indicating where the fish are swarming. Thereupon a concentrated attack will be made where business prospects are best. Efficiency is thus joined with fishing, a combination that is strange enough.

Soul of Business.

New York Herald Tribune: The old idea that corporations have no souls has been pretty well exploded since great business institutions have engaged in welfare work, taken part in betterment movements and got behind many reforms as to hours of labor and working conditions. Now it is announced that 41 railroad companies have agreed to carry blind persons and their guides for a single fare over any of their lines which are included in the area marked out by New York, Baltimore, Chicago and St. Louis. Four years' effort by the American Foundation for the Blind has brought about this result. The idea was originated by Thomas D. Schall, blind senator from Minnesota, who successfully supported an amendment which permitted the railroads to carry free a blind man's attendant without violation of the "antipass" clause in the interstate commerce act. It is highly probable that other railroads will decide to follow the example of these leaders in a fine benefaction.

Pounds and Guineas.

Baltimore Sun: That generous gift of £105,000 to the King Edward Hospital Fund in gratitude for King George's recovery is in the British manner. Those five extra thousands are the traditional bonus expected of charitable givers. To do a thing in style over there, one does not deal in pounds of twenty shillings each. One throws in another shilling and makes a guinea. The sum given counts as one hundred thousand guineas of twenty-one shillings each. Although the guinea (originally of gold from Guinea) has not been coined since 1813, to this day the genteel doctor or lawyer adds a shilling to every pound so as to render his bill in guineas, and charitable gifts of any size are so reckoned. It's a 5 per cent surtax on respectability and sentiment.

If Any Survive, the Defeated Army Didn't Do Its Utmost.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

NEARLY all failure may be attributed to the fact that men quit before they are whipped.

The late great Gen. Foch believed the will to conquer of greater importance than numerical strength.

"A battle is three-quarters won," said he, "if the troops know they will not be told to retreat."

Some years ago a mad ruler of Bolivia defied his powerful neighbors and for a long time snatched incredible victories from them, and the secret of his success was the fact that his followers knew they would be killed by him if they were defeated by the enemy.

Stonewall Jackson won immortality by the simple expedient of standing fast while others, equally able to stand, fled from the field.

It is a common belief that armies meet and struggle until one or the other is exhausted, whereupon the weaker retreats or surrenders.

But that is seldom if ever true, and fights to a finish are so rare that the few small forces that have fought and died to the last man are immortalized by historians and poets and commemorated in bronze and marble.

The truth is that every great and decisive battle in history might have had a different ending if the side that gave way had endured to the limit of its ability.

Read the details of any battle in which troops move here and there and you will find some hill or point of vantage taken and retaken.

The defenders hold out for a time and retreat; the new occupants repulse a charge or two and retreat—never holding on grimly until the last man is down, but taking to their heels because the attackers seem filled with a will to conquer and to face that will is to invite death.

The world's great conquerors won because their opponents, like the Persian hordes that faced Alexander's few, gave in without a struggle or ran away when the first few blows fell.

Battles seldom are won; they are given away by cowards who might win easily by standing fast.

In sport, the team that dreads the conflict is whipped before it begins and the players who are determined to win go on to easy victory.

And so it is in business, in love making, in politics, in whatever struggle man undertakes; the one who is determined to win at any cost does win because his opponent is not willing to pay the price of victory.

Perhaps one failure in a thousand is whipped; the others give up because they are yellow—give up while their skins are whole—whipped in spirit before they receive a scratch.

INDEPENDENT ICELAND.

In making common cause recently with Iceland in observing the tenth anniversary of the country's independence, Denmark showed its deep-felt interest in the progress that has taken place since the mother country and the one-time colony agreed to have separate governments under one ruler, the American-Scandinavian Review says. The Danish capital made much of the event, and the Icelandic Minister to Denmark, Sveinn Bjornsson, was the recipient of many congratulatory messages from other Scandinavian countries as well.

The Icelandic Society, Islendingafjelagid, took advantage of the occasion to invite a company of notables to join the members of the society in festivities, which were held in the rooms of the Society of Engineers. Here the Icelandic minister gave a graphic account of Iceland's history during the last thousand years, with special reference to the coming celebration in honor of the existence of the Alting, the old Parliament, during that long period. This event will take place next year.

Of equal interest almost with the observance of the first decade of Icelandic independence by Icelanders residing in Copenhagen and their friends were the many articles bearing on that historic event as published in the newspapers. In Berlingske Tidende, Dr. Knud Rasmussen wrote about "Young Iceland" and told of the remarkable progress made during the past twenty years in almost every direction. Trade, industry, fishing and shipping all proved, it was said, that Iceland had the qualifications essential to the conducting of a politically independent nation. In Politiken, Dr. Edward Brandes made the eightieth anniversary of Christopher Hage an occasion for a biographical sketch of the man who in his ministerial capacity had done much toward the maintenance of amicable relations between Iceland and Denmark during the years when the question of full independence for Iceland was uppermost in the public mind. As early as 1903 and as late as 1918 Christopher Hage was a link of invaluable strength in a relationship that culminated in Iceland's complete independence.

"While the political parties momentarily forgot their differences in paying their respects to Iceland, it was not long after that the Danish Rigsdag again resounded with debates revealing how far apart the parties still are on many major questions of the hour," the Review says. "In realization of this, Premier Madsen-Mygdal made a speech before the members of the Journalists Association in which he appealed for political cooperation to make Denmark take its proper place before the world. He pointed out that, small, as the country was, it had a great mission—to stand as an example of progress and political liberty. He impressed upon members of the press the necessity of working in unison along this line.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Local Money Everywhere Withdrawn and Sent to Wall Street to the Damage of Business Enterprises—Bonds at a Discount and Stocks Sky High.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: When the Federal Reserve Board and its twelve regional banks were legislated into existence the public was informed that all banking and business panics in the United States were ended for all time; that the twelve regional banks and their correspondents would largely invest, or loan, their investable funds for depositors or approved business enterprises in their own regional sections. This has not been done of late years, or, if so, only in a most limited way.

Not only has it not been done, but the banks have very largely sold their bond holdings and sent the money to New York City to be loaned as "call money," at 10, 12, 15 and 20 per cent, to the brokers of the Stock Exchange.

I am informed that one of the smaller Washington banks sold $300,000 of its bond holdings and sent the proceeds to New York City to be loaned as "call money."

Why should gilt-edged bonds be at a discount and stocks at a premium, with local money "tight," while business languishes, new enterprises are discouraged and unemployment reported in all sections of the country?

Civil Service Commission Criticized for Failure to Fill Vacancies With Eligibles.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Since publicity is being encouraged by the administration, why not apply it to the Civil Service? When there are long waiting lists of eligibles, why are temporary employes kept on hand month after month, year after year, and a statement of their status denied to those wishing to know why positions supposed to be vacant are not filled with the eligibles who have met legal requirements under Civil Service rules?

Why has not the hateful and harmful practice inaugurated in 1923 been repealed—the method of the Civil Service presenting the three highest eligibles for a vacancy and allowing the head of the department to turn down all of them if he chooses and retain the temporary employes who can not qualify by Civil Service examination and who are thus retained while those who have qualified are kept out of the positions? This has been done in the Civil Service Building itself, right under the commissioners' observation, and likely with their approval.

If the Civil Service Commission is worth retaining, a list of eligibles should be obtained by strict examinations, then when a list of eligibles is made up they should be appointed according to rating, irrespective of what section of the country they come from, whether they are backed by powerful congressmen or not. Merit alone should prevail or the Civil Service Commission is a piece of Government machinery that has failed of its purpose and should be scrapped along with the Mayflower, the White House stables, &c.

With the tremendous amount of money that has been spent to put in operation the machinery of prohibition, when the Civil Service Commissioner testified before a congressional committee that there were not enough people employed in the commission to examine the papers to finish them within two and a half years, I think that shows the uselessness of the commission. Millions of dollars spent to employ Federal agents, and not enough money to pay the necessary examiners to handle the papers of those for which the taxpayers were paying millions to obtain—and the commission remaining quiescent until confronted by its inconsistencies.

Roofs Over Parks!

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It is to be hoped that Mr. Harvey Wiley Corbett's idea of the future city, in The Post of April 26, will never be visualized in Washington. He said:

"It would be a city in which pedestrians move in ease and comfort through arcaded sidewalks, going about their shopping, never in danger of the automobile, which they have conveniently left below.

"The small parks of the city will be floored over at this second-story level. Would not it be possible to think in terms also of reestablishing that world-old idea of having the family live above the shop? Not the shop of one story, but a great modern shop of twenty stories, capped by a skyscraper modern apartment hotel of 40 stories above."

Imagine a park being floored over! I have visions of scrawny, back-yard, evil-smelling trees like those one sees in the tenement districts of New York City.

Far be it from beauty lovers to allow the National Capital to be ever desecrated in this way. We want to know that when

Spring is here, a symphony is heard
The music of the tree, and flower, and bird.
The orchestra, a brook with rocky bed,
Some ironwood horns, a fern, the fiddlehead.
The wind, a harpist who is world-renowned,
Makes wood and dell with melody resound;
With briar harp, another intrument
Whose lyric notes to symphony are blent,
Accompanies a thrush's matin lay
A solo that precedes the break of day.

Half to the Informer.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The newspapers are asking why Senator Norris is trying to unseat Secretary Mellon for violation of the old law prohibiting a Secretary of the Treasury from being concerned in business. The papers don't seem to understand why Senator Norris should rake up this old statute. But if they will read the law they will find that the fine of $3,000 levied against any Secretary who violates the law is to be split, one-half of it going to the informer. It is only right that Senator Norris should receive this fee of $1,500, in case Mr. Mellon should be found guilty.

Leaves Estate to Friend.

Under a will dated January 22, 1926, Mary R. Gale Davis left her estate to Francis Elizabeth Sayer and explained that failure to mention her relatives as beneficiaries was not due to lack of love and affection, but because of knowledge that the relatives are able to care for themselves. The value of the estate was not disclosed. John A. Logan Sayer was named executor.

PARENT-TEACHERS WILL MEET MONDAY

ARLINGTON RITES SUNDAY

Several thousand delegates are expected to attend the national convention of Parent-Teacher Associations, convening next Monday morning at the Washington Hotel and remaining in session for a week.

There are to be committee meetings Saturday, attendance at a religious service Sunday afternoon and preliminary speaking by senators and representatives in the hall of nations of the hotel Sunday night at 8 o'clock. The legislators will talk on pending bills on education, law enforcement and social welfare sponsored by parent-teacher associations.

Exhibits of visual education from every State in the Union will be shown as outstanding activities accomplished by parent-teacher work.

"Education for Worthy Home Membership" is to be the general theme of the convention. It is calculated to bring about better understanding of children and their activities, work, play and safety, and to concentrate parents' thoughts on the home. It is said there is a growing tendency for parents to leave everything regarding the child to the school.

A wreath is to be laid upon the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier by Mrs. S. M N. Marrs, national president, during the service Sunday, in the amphitheater of Arlington Cemetery.

The annual dinner will be held next Friday night. Russell Kent, Washington correspondent and president of the National Press Club will talk on "News and Publicity." Others on the program are Lewis Wood, chairman of overseas writers; Charles S. Groves, vice president of the Gridiron Club; Miss Ruth Jones, president of the Woman's National Press Club; Dr. Max Jordan, vice president, Foreign Correspondents Association; Edward Markham, vice president of the National Press Club; Harold Lane, vice president, Business Paper correspondents committee, and James D. Preston, superintendent of the Senate press gallery.

Mrs. J. N. Saunders, chairman of the Parent-Teacher publicity committee of the District, will preside. Paul Wooten, chairman of the board of governors, National Press Club, will be toastmaster and will speak on "Cross Section of a National Convention From a Newspaper Man's Standpoint."

Hoover Urged to Appoint Druggist on Dry Board

(Associated Press.)

Appointment of a member of the American Pharmaceutical Association as a member of the National Law Enforcement Commission was urged upon President Hoover yesterday by a committee representing that organization.

Members of the delegation said they had presented a name to the President but declined to make it public. They said druggists had wide experience in dealing with the practices of physicians in issuing prescriptions for narcotics and liquor, at least in technical violation of the Federal statutes, and that they could suggest safeguards for the future.

Day in Congress

SENATE.

Met at noon and recessed at 5:10 to noon today.

Defeated, 70 to 14, a resolution condemning the attack made on Senator Heflin (Democrat), Alabama, at Brockton, Mass., while he was making a Ku Klux Klan speech.

Majority Leader Watson and Minority Leader Robinson engaged in a spirited debate over the attitude of each toward farm relief measures.

Judiciary committee again considered the right of Secretary of the Treasury Mellon to continue in office without a reappointment, but took no action.

Chairman McNary, of the agriculture commmittee, set tomorrow for a vote on the farm relief bill.

Received from President Hoover the nomination of Horace P. Baster, of St. Louis, to be a member of the Federal Farm Loan Board.

HOUSE.

Met at noon and adjourned at 3:35 to noon tomorrow.

Wets and drys again debated the killing here of Ottmer Fleming, 21-year-old rum runner, by Policeman Clyde O. Crouse.

Representative Tucker (Democrat), Virginia, said the Constitution should be interpreted as excluding aliens from the census in determining representation in the House and in the electoral college.

Representative Crail (Republican), California, introduced a bill to reduce the House membership in 1943 to 240 members.

Representative Ludlow (Democrat), Indiana, introduced a resolution requesting President Hoover to invite the Nation to observe the 150th anniversary of the death of Gen. Pulaski, Revolutionary hero, on October 11 next.

Majority Leader Tilson announced that the tariff revision bill would be introduced either tomorrow or Saturday.

COL. MANN EXECUTES COUP ON PATRONAGE

group in his list, and it is even rumored that he tried to induce the Mann chairman, H. C. Hastings, to remain at the head, but that Hastings declined. The Postmaster General then decided upon Lindsey Hopkins, Coca Cola magnate, of Atlanta, another on the Mann roster, to head the organization.

Expect Brown to Yield.

Hastings led the march on the Capital, receiving assurances that the Mann organization was acceptable to the President. The Georgians feel that the Postmaster General has no particular objections to the personnel of the Mann organization, but wanted credit for the new set-up to go to himself rather than Col. Mann. Whatever minor adjustments are necessary will be made today.

The now somewhat pacified Georgians will not call upon the President personally unless they meet enough further opposition from the Postmaster General to necessitate a formal presidential decision. They do not expect Brown to invite upon himself such an official and public rebuff, although they are willing to make a minor change or two at the peace conference today to avoid further controversy.

Accompanying Hastings for the call on Mr. Newton at the White House yesterday were Barry Wright, who managed the Hoover campaign in Georgia on behalf of Democrats or Hoovercrats; L. G. Guiman, an Atlanta Democrat; Charles Adamson and Arthur Lucas.

PLANE PHONE LINKS WITH ORDINARY LINE

Reporter, High in Air, Calls Office; Fliers Soon Able to Get Any Number.

WORDS HEARD CLEARLY

Hadley Field, N. J., May 1 (A.P.).—The airmen of America were presented today with the means of speaking from cloudy peaks with their bosses, their sweethearts or any one else of the earth-bound millions who have access to a regular telephone instrument.

The Western Electric Co. demonstrated in a series of tests for the press an invention linking planes on the wing to the land lines of the commercial telephone system.

The first call was put through by an Associated Press reporter, who went aloft in the flying telephone booth at 11 a. m. and stayed up until noon. Wearing a regular telephone head set and speaking into a microphone held in his hand, he gave the telephone number of the Associated Press office in New York to the Bell telephone experimental radio station at Whippany, N. J., by wireless telephone.

A moment later he heard the Associated Press switchboard operator respond and was switched to the city desk, which in turn handed the call over to a rewrite man, who took the report of the demonstration from the flying reporter.

Though the reporter in the plane was sitting only 4 feet from the roaring engine, from which he was separated only by a thin pane of glass, he could hear the persons in the New York office as clearly as an ordinary phone conversation and his words were plainly audible in New York.

The takeoff was made in a driving rain, but the telephone plane rode above the storm and the demonstration was made while 2,000 feet over Plainfield, N. J., and while the plane was making about 100 miles an hour.

Radio telephony between planes and radio sets aground have been operated successfully for some time, but never before perfection of the present invention has it been possible to link planes to the regular commercial telephone system.

Fourth Dies of Poison Eaten in Sunday Meal

Lander, Wyo., May 1 (A.P.).—The fourth fatality in the family of Rudolph Vasco, miner, of Hudson, near here, occurred early today with the death of Mary Violet, 6, as a result of botulinus poisoning from home preserved beans eaten at the family's Sunday dinner.

Weather conditions and the lack of lighted airways prevented air transportation of serum to the hospital where the family was brought after being stricken. A quantity of antibotulinus serum was flown to Cheyenne from Denver late yesterday, but it was impossible to bring it here by plane from Cheyenne.

Chicago Night Club's Hostess Is Fined $100

Chicago, May 1 (A.P.).—Elsie Cole, Chicago night club hostess, has decided to pay a $100 fine for prohibition law violation. Miss Cole was charged in Federal court with having sold highballs at her night club last December to two Government agents.

The agents said they had sixteen highballs at the place and later returned with a search warrant. They found no liquor, but arrested Miss Cole. The hostess was for having a trial, declaring that the charges were without truth, but accepted her lawyer's advice to pay the $100 fine.

Marine Sergeant, Crack Shot, Quits

O. M. Schriver Is Honored by Officers and Men as He Retires.

Sergt. Oliver M. Schriver, of the United States Marine Corps, retired yesterday after 30 years' service. Capt. Stewart O'Neill, commanding officer of the Marine Barracks here, handed him his discharge papers before a large group of friends, officers of the post and enlisted men.

Sergt. Schriver was to have reviewed the troops during the morning, but bad weather prevented the outdoor ceremonies. They will be held this morning at 11 o'clock, provided the weather is clear.

Schriver was one of the most famous rifle and pistol shots in the country. He holds 150 medals and a dozen trophies, which he won in matches in the United States, Europe and South America.

Attending physicians refused to discuss his condition, but said he had been ill two days.

Vessel Towed to Port After Sending Out S O S

San Francisco, May 1 (A.P.).—The steam schooner Kadiak, which sent out distress calls after springing a leak off Point Reyes, near here, last night, was towed into San Francisco Bay today by the tug Sea Scout.

The cause of the leak and the extent of the damage had not been learned.

Bridegroom, in Holdup For Funds, Shot Dead

Kansas City, May 1 (A.P.).—Slain by a policeman's bullet, Carl C. Lobach, 21, was identified today as a bridegroom of only a few hours who attempted to finance a honeymoon by a holdup.

Lobach was shot and killed last night when, with an 18-year-old brother, Durward Lobach, he sought to rob a drug store. Earlier in the day he had married Marie Bothwell, 18, a dance instructor, who believed he was a motor-car salesman. Durward Lobach confessed today that he and his brother had been implicated in scores of robberies.

FLIERS DIE IN WILDS; DIARY TELLS OF AGONY

Bodies of Lieut. Anderson and Hitchcock, Southern Cross Rescuers, Are Found.

WRECKED IN AUSTRALIA

Sidney, N. S. W., May 1 (A.P.).—Suffering agony from thirst and exhausted by desperate efforts to take off from the ragged terrain, where they had landed, Robert Hitchcock and Lieut. Keith Anderson, of the airplane Kookaburra, died some time either on or after April 12.

The grim story of the fate of the two men who had taken part in the air search for the airplane Southern Cross was revealed in the notes of a diary scrawled upon the rudder of their plane.

First definite news of the deaths of the men came today with the report from a land party that had made its way over the rough country to the stranded rescue plane.

The land party was led by Lieut. Eaton from Wave Hill in an effort to solve the mystery of the fate of the two aviators, who had made a forced landing in the wild bush of the northern territory while searching for the then missing airplane Southern Cross and Capt. Charles Kingsford Smith.

Lieut. Anderson's plane was located in the wastes of the Tanimi bush on April 21, when a body was seen lying motionless under one of the wings. Little hope for finding either of the fliers alive had been held out.

A rough diary written on pieces of the airplane's rudder revealed that the two airmen were forced down by engine trouble on April 10. They repaired their machine and attempted to get off again, but found the run too short.

They were unable to find water and they steadily grew weaker from thirst until they were unable to make a further attempt after April 11. The diary's last entry was on April 12 and it was believed that they died on that date.

It was necessary to bury the bodies beside the machine, as climatic conditions and the arduous journey involved did not make it feasible to remove them to Wave Hill.

The horses of the rescue party had been 50 hours without water and consequently the party was unable to wait to make a runway for an attempt to fly the machine.

Italian Girls May Wed At 14 Years; Boys, 16

Rome, May 1 (A.P.).—Premier Mussolini, in the hope of increasing the number of Italian offspring, has caused the lowering of the legal marriage ages from 18 to 16 for the husband, and from 15 to 14 for the wife.

It is explained the governmental measure will have a sociological value, inasmuch as it will afford a means of combating the practices of common law marriage in industrial centers.

SPECIAL BIRTHDAY SHOWING of Carolyn Modes

Patou . . .

Of course! . . . is responsible for the clever "lingerie touches."

And certainly it requires Patou's skill to introduce them with the cleverness the smart mode demands.

This Miss Carolyn Mode shows that it was created by Patou in other ways, too—in the pose of the bow at the back of the shoulder—in the softness of its skirt and the gayety of its print. In white, black and blue; in white, navy and green crepe. Misses' sizes. $29.50

Summer Fashion gives full attention to the skirt . . .

Usually it is a full skirt, but if it can claim, in addition, a different way of attaining that fullness it is even more important.

This sleeveless Miss Carolyn print crepe frock has a full skirt, as graceful in effect as it is intricate in cut. The print is charming, too. In white, green and orange; or white, green and blue color combinations. Misses' sizes. $29.50

Chamber to Hear Allen Talk Tonight

WMAL Will Broadcast His Address at Banquet. Fox Movie Producer to Speak at 9 P. M.—Scotland Ballads at 9:30.

Station WMAL will broadcast two U. S. Chamber of Commerce programs during the day and evening, with a third one scheduled if rain should prevent the Washington-New York baseball game at 2:30 o'clock.

Senator Henry J. Allen, recently appointed from the State of Kansas, is the principal speaker of the annual banquet of the United States Chamber of Commerce, whose address will be broadcast on the coast-to-coast network of the Columbia Broadcasting System at 9:30 o'clock. "American Imperialism" is the topic selected by Senator Allen for this speech. The political spotlight of national prominence first shone on Senator Allen as the Governor of the State of Kansas, and during the last summer and fall he was in charge of press contacts for Hoover's campaign. Upon the election of the Republican slate, Allen was appointed by the Governor of Kansas to fill the unexpired term of Charles Curtis, the Vice President. Senator Allen recently returned from Europe, where he made a thorough study of the continental political situation.

Paul Shoup, president of the Southern Pacific Co., San Francisco, will be the toastmaster.

The speakers at the morning session, to be broadcast at 10:30 o'clock, will be J. Frank Grimes, president of Independent Grocers' Alliance of Chicago, "What Is the Future of Small Business;" and Christie Benet, of the Interstate Cotton Seed Crushers' Association, of Columbia, S. C., "The Trade Association and the Federal Trade Commission."

Robert P. Lamont, Secretary of Commerce, will be the principal speaker at the afternoon session, which will be heard if the baseball game is not played.

The dinner to be given Commander Ellsburg, of the U. S. S. Leviathan, will be broadcast by WMAL at 7:30 o'clock.

Other features for the evening include George Olsen and his orchestra and the Swanee Syncopators.

William Fox, outstanding figure in the motion picture industry, will appear as guest speaker in the Halsey-Stuart program to be broadcast at 9 o'clock.

Simple ballads of the Scottish lowlands, sung by Hugh Campbell, Laird of Stracathro, will feature tonight's presentation of the National Broadcasting and Concert Bureau at 9:30 o'clock. Featured with Mr. Campbell will be Kathleen Stewart, radio pianist, and Genia Zielinska, operatic soprano. The soloists will be assisted by a concert orchestra under the direction of Cesare Sodero.

The complete program for the Hour of Slumber Music follows:

Overture to "Norma," Bellini; selection from "Un Ballo in Maschera," Verdi; "Plurie d'Or," Waldteufel; "Kamarinskaya," Glinka; "Mozartiana," Tschaikowsky "Andante Religioso," Thome, and "Berceuse," Karganoff.

A group of request numbers will be sung by Jessica Dragonette during the Hoover Sentinels period earlier in the evening, among them "El Relicario," "Kiss Me Again" and "Moonbeams."

"How Do You Do, Miss Springtime," as set to music by Guion, will be sung by the Selberling Singers at 8 o'clock, through WRC. James Melton, tenor, will contribute "Hills of Home" and "Do You Know My Garden?" Haydn-Wood. The singing violins will play Drigo's "Serenade," while the quartet has selected also Bartlett's "A Dream" and "Aloha Sunset Land," by Kiawelo.

WRC, WMAL and WOL will broadcast a play-by-play description of the Washington-New York baseball game.

Carlton dinner music, "Amos 'n' Andy" and Florence Jane Adams, impersonator, will be heard during the early evening from WOL. Two hours of dance music will be broadcast between 10 o'clock and midnight.

WSJV features an address by Represenatice J. Will Taylor, of Tennessee, who will speak on "Our Public Schools." The Columbia Trio will be broadcast at 10 o'clock.

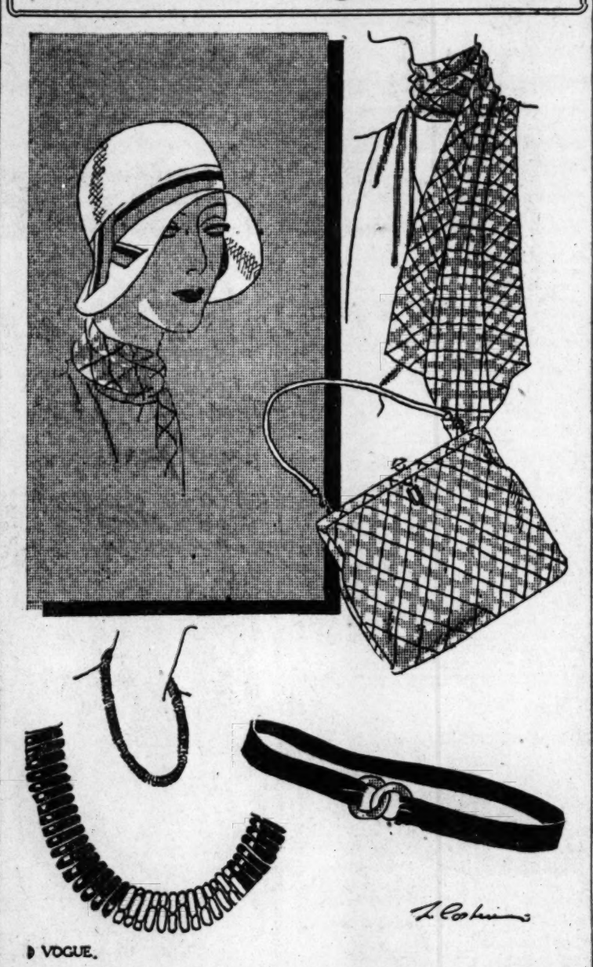
Color Accents Against White



VOGUE.

CABLES from Cannes say white—black and white, blue and white, almost any color and white, but always white. Almost universally, with white frocks and coats and hats, the smart cosmopolitans are wearing color accents that are effective against the resort background.

And they achieve these accents by ingenious means. For instance, one chic Parisian has a simple, small hat of white ballibuntl—the very finest stray and the most becoming shape she could procure. Making this seemingly extravagant hat an economy, she has a series of colored ribbon bands, which she easily snaps on to complete the particular costume of the day. The band in the sketch is the already popular good tri-color—blue, white and red.

Another woman achieves a note of high color in the costume by tying Chanel's printed scarf about her neck. The plaid of the print has a white ground with black and green crossbars. The bag designed to go with this scarf is quilted.

Navy blue and white is a classic combination, but this year it is as fresh as the spring. The choker necklace in the sketch is formed of handcut, irregular disks of navy blue and white bone, and the navy blue kid belt has two white bone rings for buckle.

N.B.C. Adds Hour Program To Radio Day

Stations Not to Suffer From Daylight Saving; Dance Music by New York Orchestras Will Be Heard.

Popular decision advanced the clocks one hour in several sections of the country last week-end, and increased the hours of effective daylight. It also lengthened the radio day. Programs of the National Broadcasting Co. distributed throughout the Nation have always ended at midnight, but the New York studios have now extended their schedule to 1 o'clock a. m., Eastern daylight time, which is midnight here.

The later hour was added not in the belief that New York stays awake longer in summertime, but in the interests of the NBC's associate stations which operate on standard time schedules. In this as in other program details, the advantage designed for member stations is shared by New York. One of the local outfits, WEAF, will remain on the air for the extra hour and the program it broadcasts will be heard here through WRC. An additional hour from 11 to 12 o'clock will bring 60 minutes of dance music from one of the big hotels or supper rooms. On Monday night it will be Phil Spitalny's music from the Pennsylvania Grill, Tuesday nights, Hal Kemp's orchestra from the Hotel Manger.

Tunes from the Palais d'Or feature the late hour Wednesday nights; Thursdays will bring Dave Bernie's orchestra from the Hotel Roosevelt, and Fridays, Ben Pollack's orchestra from the Park Central roof, and Saturday night schedules close with Rudy Valee and his orchestra from Villa Vallee.

Broadcasts of weather reports will be relayed to the chairmen who take off for the Gordon-Bennett balloon elimination race next Saturday during the first 24 hours of their battle with the elements. The contestants will receive their directions through stations linked with WJZ.

Custer's last stand at the Little Big Horn, in 1876, will be fought again before the microphones of the Crosley radio station WLW next Saturday night at 8:30 o'clock, as another of the station's historical highlights. It will recall that the whites, seeking to invade the Black Hills in search of gold, had been resisted by the Sioux under Sitting Bull, who refused to make his people stay on their reservations.

As spectators of the battle and plans, its WLW listeners will be able to see that the real reason for Custer's annihilation was his total lack of information about the strength and positions of the Indians. Custer, in command of the Seventh United States Cavalry, had expected to round up the Indians easily. Instead, he met a force three times his size, led by the great military expert, Sitting Bull, and armed with an accumulation of modern arms and ammunition.

A new service designed to protect radio interests in State and local legislation has just been ordered by the Radio Manufacturers Association, following their meeting at Cleveland April 26-27. A cooperative information service, for joint action between the radio manufacturing and distributing interests, in connection with State and local legislation will be established.

The legislative information service, which will secure complete data regarding all radio legislation proposed in various States and cities will be secured. With the assistance of Frank D. Scott, legislative counsel here, the legislative committee will take necessary action in conjunction with State and local radio jobbers' and dealers' local organizations to safeguard the interests of radio manufacturers and distributors in connection with local legislation.

The board was advised that nine State legislatures will meet in 1930 and legislatures of 44 States in 1931. Therefore the board ordered the establishment of a new legislative service in ample time for appropriate action to protect the interests of members and also jobbers and dealers and the industry generally in connection with new radio legislation throughout the country.

Jane Interprets the Mode

A graduation frock, which can be worn afterward for an afternoon dress by adding the matching jacquette and removing the jeweled belt and streamers. (A Dah-ray Design).

FOR some time now—or at least for two or three seasons—we have rather accepted the fact that while dresses were growing more and more feminine and fluffy, coats remained rather straight and simple affairs.

With the exception of the ever gorgeous evening coats and wraps in which the Paris Haute Couture delights, there has been little of the feminine note, properly speaking, in coats. Not that they have not been beautiful, for there is a very definite sort of beauty in the smart severity of a well tailored coat.

And at last there are definite signs of a change.

For the first time coats for daytime wear have begun to break away from their rigorous simplicity. The sports coat and the morning coat remain without substantial change, but the dressier types of afternoon coat are showing a definite movement toward the princess line. Many of them have as well a hemline which dips at the rear in the best princess fashion.

That's just it! A lovely boudoir doll, a truly lovely one, is just what you need for that corner of the grand piano in the sitting room!

Where can you get one? Why, you can make one—any one of the six we have designed for you in this week's illustrated leaflet, for which you may send a stamped, addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post. Our imagination and your execution, you see!

Secret de Beaute.

There is a disappearing, practically greaseless cream, which will keep your hands from both chapping and sunburn. You can get it anywhere. It is a bit more protective than hand lotions, as well as easier to handle. You can, you see, just rub it on the back of your hand, and this keeps the palms from being sticky!

And there is a really practical graduation frock—it is illustrated for you today! It is made of georgette or chiffon and the spangled or brilliant or beaded belt is removable—as well as the matching streamer, which either hangs down the back in two loose ends or ties in center back.

When these are removed and the little matching jacket, with its long sleeves, is worn you have an afternoon dress, you see. Nice?

The fashion letter appears in the Sunday issue. Look for it.

Au Revoir!

What Today Means to You

May 2.
By MARY BLAKE.

TAURUS.

IF May 2 is your birthday, the best hours for you today are from 9 a. m. to 11 a. m., from 12:30 p. m. to 2:40 p. m., from 5 p. m. to 7 p. m.; the danger periods are from 6:30 to 8:30 a. m. and from 9:10 p. m. to 11 p. m.

The unseen forces today will be dynamic in power; they will knock down many barriers to success, and lift up the fogs of despair. An exalted feeling will prevail throughout the day.

The child born today will be gifted with many talents, any one of which will be a desirable asset. It will probably use them all to a lesser or greater degree, instead of concentrating upon one.

You possess many staying qualities, courage, stick-to-it-iveness and a never ending energy. You will plod while others leap, you will walk while others fly; but in the end you will generally get there, missing few of the details on the way. Whatever you get, you retain for your memory is your prize asset: you seldom have to turn back.

Others may not always judge you aright, but you are capable of judging your own capacities. You are not afraid to try yourself out, you know your own limitations, never hurrying, never trying methods unsuitable to yourself. You never ease up in your efforts.

You accept with grace the gifts bestowed upon you, and you consider them ample to cope with whatever Fate has in store for you. There is not a particle of envy in your make-up. You are satisfied with yourself and life and are willing for others to get and to have whatever they may.

You are never too busy to place a hand beneath an aching back. As nearly as possible you practice the Golden Rule for living. In your quiet way you will gain considerable popularity, much of which will be unbeknown to you.

Successful people born May 2:
William L. Elkins, financier.
Albon W. Tourgee, author and journalist.
R. B. Birch, artist.
Clyde Fitch, author and playwright.
Harold McCormick, capitalist.
Norma Talmadge, movie actress.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

IN THE GARDEN.

Out yonder by my garden wall
There are no stocks to rise or fall
The morning-glories bloom and blow
And all the self-same fortune know.
Not one of them by chance can gain
A double share of sun and rain.

Among the song birds in the trees
I mark no differing degrees.
I do not see the birds divide
With poor and rich on either side
Or note one robin, red of breast,
That can outbuild his neighbor's nest.

The quiet garden hears no sigh
From luckless failures passing by.
There is no talk of shrewd and wise;
Of one who sells and one who buys.
The elm and maple and pine
Of envy never give a sign.

And so when wearied by the strife
And pain and scorn of human life,
'Tis good to walk my garden plot
Where petty differences are not,
Where each lives out its months or years
And never at another sneers.

With NELSON B. BELL

It is rarely the case that theater attendance records are broken at this time of year. With the first suggestion of spring temperatures it has heretofore been the practice of the cash customer to save his pennies and seek his relaxation in the open. The dialogue and sound pictures seem to have changed all that.

For example, there are at the present moment two screen attractions in the capital that have smashed all-time records—one is "Close Harmony," at the Metropolitan; the other, "Show Boat," at the Rialto.

"Show Boat" grossed more in the six days of its first curtailed week than any other film had ever taken in at the Ninth street box office. The pace has been held ever since, although it must be said that the slightly increased scale of admissions occasioned by making every seat in the house the same price has had something to do with it. The picturization of the Ferber novel and Ziegfeld musical will continue through a third week.

I am not so sure of the week's net at the Metropolitan, but I am assured that "Close Harmony," at least on last Saturday and Sunday, packed them in a little tighter than is ordinarily the case. Monday afternoon's attendance set a new high mark for future features to shoot at. This also goes another week, beginning Saturday.

While we are on the subject in a general way, it might be well to call attention to the fact that Douglas Fairbanks, in "The Iron Mask," likewise will occupy the screen at the Columbia through another seven-day period. If Mr. Fairbanks, in continuing as D'Artagnan through another succession of swashbuckling adventures, is willing anything short of his earlier magnetism at the wicket, it is to be attributed, it seems to me, to the fact that he adhered a little too rigidly to the formula that was in vogue up to day before yesterday. The public mind since then has become gaited to the conversational celluloids and, believe it or not, the oldtime silent picture seems just a little stodgy to the flapper and other masses. The titles slow it up, something terrible!

With three of the first-run houses in the business area accounted for, you might as well know what is in store at the others. The Fox, beginning Saturday, will offer "The Donovan Affair," an all-talkie camera rendition of the Owen Davis mystery play, with Jack Holt, Dorothy Revier and William Collier, jr. featured, and Agnes Ayres, Wheeler Oakman, Virginia Brown Faire, Ethel Wales and others of note in the supporting cast. The Palace announces "Gentlemen of the Press," Paramount's all-talking adaptation of the newspaper play by Ward Morehouse, starring Walter Huston. At the Earle, Baclanova, Clive Brook, Neil Hamilton, Lesley Fenton and Clyde Cooke are scheduled to occupy the screen in "A Dangerous Woman," a dialogue picture, and the Little will project "Krassin," the official silent film recital of the events surrounding the disaster that befell the Italia at the North Pole.

M. J. Cullen, managing director of the Loew houses in this city, on Tuesday midnight, was host to the ladies and gentlemen of the press at a special preview of "Gentlemen of the Press," probably as honest a depiction of the Fourth Estate in action as the screen has provided—which may or may not be high praise, according to the point of view. I mean it to be high.

In this odd combination of city-room comedy, high-pressure vamping and moderately stark tragedy there is revealed much that is authentic, a little that might happen but probably wouldn't, and a great deal that is funny. Since the play was written by one hard-bitten old newspaper man and its picturization supervised by another, it is not surprising that it should reflect this glamorous racket as accurately as it does.

All but the part about the drinking. Newspaper men don't drink—much!

It has come to my knowledge that Mirabel J. Lindsay, for many years organist at the Ambassador Theater, resigned last Friday to be married. My informant is a born reporter, having neglected no important detail of the event, barring the minor matter of the name of the groom. He is now resident in St. Louis, whither Mrs. Lindsay hastened, but it is my understanding that the future home of the newlyweds will be Chicago. Harold T. Pease, formerly presiding at the consoles at the Colony Theater, succeeds Mrs. Lindsay at Eighteenth street and Columbia road.

The Ambassador, by the way, is now equipped with the latest wrinkle in sound and dialogue mechanism—multiple-bell horns, loud-speaker public address system and the facilities for projecting either Movietone or Vitaphone features.

The new devices were broken in last Sunday with Richard Dix's first all-talking vehicle, "Nothing But the Truth," as ebullient a comedy in its audible screen version as it was upon the stage. It places Dix firmly among those who have made the transition from silence to speech successfully and is still on view and to be heard at the Earle.

Paul Rusher, formerly manager of the Stanley-Crandall Chevy Chase and York Theaters, resigned from the latter last week and was succeeded by Walter Cersley, transferred from the Home Theater, Northeast, to the Georgia avenue house.

And Mr. Cullen, of the Palace, tells me further that a new resident master of ceremonies is to be appointed to succeed Wesley Eddy after next week's farewell whoopee parties for the versatile lad who goes to Pittsburgh after 75 weeks on F street. The identity of the new major domo has not as yet been determined. That little bird has told me to guess that it will be Teddy Joyce.

Also, I am reminded that both Mr. Gilmer and I completely and inexplicably forgot Olive Thomas last Sabbath in commenting upon those of the motion picture industry who have made their last exit from this earthly scene. Miss Thomas, originally a Follies chorus girl, as the wife of Jack Pickford achieved full stardom and was genuinely mourned at the time of her tragic death in Paris.

Doesn't this "rain and colder tonight and tomorrow" business give you a pain in the coal bin? Me, too.

Jadwin Authorizes River Survey Fund

$150,000 to Be Expended on Planning Development of Potomac.

Maj. Gen. Edgar Jadwin, chief of Engineers of the United States Army, yesterday allocated $150,000 for the further study of the Potomac River Basin in connection with power development, flood control and navigation.

Gen. Jadwin made the allotment after approving a preliminary report submitted to him by Maj. Brehon Somervell, District Engineer of the United States Engineers, recommending a more comprehensive study. Somervell will direct the new surveys that will begin as soon as surveying parties can be gotten together. E. J. Merrick, jr., associate engineer, will have charge of the field work. Some 1,000 miles of the Potomac River and its tributaries above Washington will come under their scrutiny. The work will take between one and two years.

The study of the Potomac River was authorized by Congress last year in a comprehensive scheme, looking to the development of all the streams in the United States.

They say "Opportunity knocks but once." Every day the Classified columns of The Washington Post carry opportunities in most every line of business.

COMING TO THE THEATERS

NATIONAL.

An American comedy with an universal theme, "It's a Boy," the work of William Anthony Maguire, will be presented by the National Theater Players for the week beginning Monday, May 6, with the regular matinees Wednesday and Saturday.

Shortly after he had attained Broadway prominence by his successful play, "Six Cylinder Love," which is now being made into a musical comedy, William Anthony Maguire rushed into the metropolis with a second outstanding hit, "It's a Boy." In bringing this play to Washington, the National Theater Players carry out their original policy of presenting typical American plays that appeal to the honest emotions of all their patrons. This play, particularly, has a note of comedy running through it which is of such appeal that almost every one, married or unmarried, becomes absolutely wrapped up in the action. The play, as its title implies, has to do with the first born, the son and heir of a typical young American husband and father—the proud father who immediately walks on air when the nurse yells through the door, "It's a Boy."

In this play the new leading lady and the new leading man of the National Theater Players—Miss Edith King and Mr. Roger Pryor—will be seen playing opposite each other for the first time. They will be cast in the roles of young husband and wife, and there are notable character creations to be exploited by such recognized artists as Mrs. Hibbard and Mr. Hampden. "It's a Boy" has played Washington only once—more than five years ago.

BELASCO.

The presentation of Ibsen's "The Wild Duck" will be offered at the Belasco Theater for one week only, commencing Monday evening, May 6. This famous drama, numbered among Ibsen's greatest works, will be presented here by the Actors Theater, Inc., with Blanche Yurka in the starring role.

"The Wild Duck" is rightfully claimed to possess something more than Ibsen's usual gloomy symbolism and depressing pessimism. It is said to be a gripping, powerful tragedy of character in which has been embodied all the successful elements of the theater—not forgetting rich comedy, a rarity in many Ibsen plays.

A cast of unusual excellence will be seen in support of Miss Yurka in "The Wild Duck." Included among them are Dallas Anderson, Frank Monroe, John Daly Murphy, Edward Fielding, Florida Friebus, G. Pat Collins, Bette Davis and other players of note.

Matinees will be held on Wednesday and Saturday as usual.

STRAND.

Next week's attraction at the Strand Theater will be "Darktown Affairs," formerly "7-11." This show features "Hot Stuff" Jackson, Speedy Smith and Mae Brown. There are 58 colored entertainers in all. Scenery and lighting effects will be used to advantage.

POLI'S.

James B. Fagan's English comedy success, "And So To Bed," based on the "Diary of Samuel Pepys," will be seen at Poli's Theater, Monday, May 6.

The new "star," Eugenie Leontovich, will have the role of Mrs. Pepys; Walter Kingsford plays Samuel Pepys, himself; Roberta Beatty is the Mistress Knight, while Boyd Davis enacts King Charles II.

Pepys is famed not only for his diary but for the part he played in developing the British navy as secretary of the admiralty. However, it is not his serious side which is dealt with in this play, but rather the more human aspects of his character. Pepys was a great philander and the comic incidents of the play grew out of his acquaintance with Mrs. Knight, his wife's jealousy, and the untimely appearance of the kind when Pepys calls on Mistress Knight.

James B. Fagan, the author of this merry play, is an Oxford man; and he is no stranger to patrons of the theater, at least by reputation. He was represented on the New World stage for the first time by "Gloria," a drama in which Julia Marlowe starred. Douglas Fairbanks, then a young romantic actor, was seen a few years later in another Fagan play, "Hawthorne, of the U. S. A." Elsie Ferguson has toured in "The Wheel of Life," which proved one of her most popular vehicles, and other noted players were seen still later in the Fagan dramatization of "Bella Donna." This comedy of England's Restoration days, "And So To Bed," is the fifth of the Fagan plays to reach these shores.

HAYES' CONCERT.

Roland Hayes' coming appearance here tomorrow afternoon at 4:30 in the Belasco Theater will be part of his fifth tour of America, following upon a fifth season of concerts in Europe. His program is as follows, Percival Parham accompanist: "Per la Gloria" (Bononcini), "When I Am Laid in Earth," "Dido and Aeneas" (Purcell); "Would You Gain the Tender Creature," "Acis and Galatea" (Handel); "Adelaide" (Beethoven), "Le Repose de la Sainte Famille, from "L'Enfance du Christ," (Berlioz); "In a Myrtle Shade" (Charles T. Griffes); "Ships That Pass in the Night," "Dunbar" (Gerald Tyler), "Found" (Werner Josten), "Songs of Russia," "Pushkin" (Rachmaninoff); nocturne (A. Scriabine), "To a Wild Rose," "At an Old Trysting Place" and "From an Indian Lodge" (MacDowell); "Lammermoor" (Donizetti-Leschetizky); negro spirituals, "Wade in de Water," "Camp Meetin'," "Deep River" and "New Born."

ONE-ACT PLAY.

PROFIT TAKING CUTS SHARP EARLY GAINS

STROMBERG AT NEW TOP

New York, May 1 (A.P.).—Bulls began the new month today with such an outburst of activity as the stock market has not experienced since March, but handicapped by continued uncertainty over credit, were unable to move prices substantially higher save in spots.

Total sales of 4,688,900 were the largest in about five weeks, and more than a score of issues were sent up from 3 to nearly 20 points, but there was a rush to take profits which canceled many gains and depressed much of the list. The Associated Press index of 50 leading industrials recorded a gain of less than a point for the day.

The resumption of large scale operations for the advance were predicated upon the passing of the month end money pinch, and favorable industrial news, but bankers were unable to foresee any prospect of really easy money in the near future. Call money renewed at 11 per cent, against 14 yesterday, but got no lower than 10 per cent, the closing rate of Tuesday.

Credit Improves Little.

The New York Federal Reserve Bank, in its monthly bulletin, issued today, indicates that there has been little improvement in the credit situation since the call money crisis of late March. It points out that the reduction in brokers' loans has been in part offset by loans on securities at the banks.

"There has been some reduction since March 20 in the total demand for credit, though not sufficient to release any considerable amount of funds," the bulletin states. Pointing to the borrowings of the New York City banks as a barometer, it says, "In order to keep their reserves in balance, the city banks continued to find it necessary to barrow about $200,000,000, or about 30 per cent of their total reserves."

Stromberg Carburetor touched a new top at 101 in buying for the privileges of conversion into Bendix Aviation. American Bosch Magneto, Borg Warner, Murray Corporation, Weston Electrical Instrument and Wilcox Rich issues broke into new high ground.

Motors Rather Heavy.

Motors were rather heavy, save for Marmon, which jumped more than 8 points, to a new high for the year, and Willys-Overland, which was bought on large current sales reports. General Motors made a moderate gain in response to April sales reports, but lost it before the close.

Columbia Gas & Electric sold up about 3 points to a new high on rumors of a forthcoming issue of rights, and American Radiator & Standard Sanitary touched a new high at 50 on rumors of an association of interests with Johns-Manville.

Adams Express regained 25 of the 34 points lost yesterday. Ludlum Steel, Mathieson Alkali, Symington A and Texas & Pacific broke into new high territory.

American Telephone Off 5 Points.

American Telephone lost about 5 points in selling on the good news of the granting of rights. United States Steel lost about a point, indicating that the quarterly earnings report had already been discounted.

A break in Advance Rumely was an unsettling influence. After touching a new top at 104⅞, it broke to 95, and the preferred lost most of a 10-point rise.

In the commodity markets, cotton gained about $1 a bale on favorable weather reports. Wheat sagged on larger than expected May deliveries, but regained most of its loss.

Foreign exchanges were quiet and generally steady, save for the Spanish peseta, which dropped to a new 1929 low at 14.32 cents.

M'CARTHY WINS TOURNEY MEDAL BY RECORD ROUND

Rain Blessing To Huggins' Hurlers

Johnson Lays Losses to Poor Judgment of Hurlers in Pinch.

By FRANK H. YOUNG
(Staff Correspondent of The Post).

NEW YORK, May 1.—With his pitchers faring so poorly, it did not require much rain to cause Manager Miller Huggins to decide that the Yankees would rather not play the Nationals this afternoon, the game was postponed until the next visit of Johnson and his charges. As far as actual rain was concerned, there wasn't any, and hostilities were declared off shortly after the noon hour following several intermittent drizzles which hardly would have done the Yankee infield any harm even if left uncovered. An hour after the postponement was announced the sun was shining.

For a team which hopes to win a fourth consecutive pennant, Huggins' pitching staff is giving him plenty of cause for worry. In the ten games which the New Yorkers have played to date, seven starting pitchers have been pounded off the peak, and only one, Waite Hoyt, has gone the route, the singing undertaker having done so in all three of his starts and turned in a victory on each occasion.

Huggins is confident, however, that he will receive better pitching before long; in fact, he believes that Herb Pennock, his veteran southpaw ace, is just about ready to pitch winning ball now. "If we can win without good pitching, watch us go when our flingers strike their stride," he said tonight in a gabfest. "We've lost only four games so far, and every other team in the league has dropped that many. Poor as our pitching has been, we lost those games because we weren't hitting. A club like mine doesn't figure to have many off days in batting, and it won't be long before my pitchers get going—then watch us go."

Jones or Hadley to Face Pennock in Game Today.

Huggins intimated that he plans to use Pennock against the Nationals tomorrow in the final game of the current series here. Skipper Walter Johnson is undecided between "Sad Sam" Jones and Irving Hadley.

Although Shortstop Ossie Bluege declares he is ready to get back in the game he probably will not do so until the series in Cleveland, which opens the Washington Club's first Western invasion Saturday. Johnson remembers the trouble Bluege once had with his "trick" knee and would rather keep him out an extra day or two now than to take a chance on losing his services for a long period by calling on him too soon.

Pitchers Fail to Bear Down In Pinches, Says Johnson.

Manager Johnson has discovered several things which he did not know before he took over the reins as a big league leader. One is that players in the majors are not a whole lot smarter than their little brethren in the bushes. Some of his best pitchers, for instance, have been using mighty poor judgment since the season started and he can figure several losses due entirely to a wrong mental slant which has been adopted.

"The trouble is," Johnson said tonight, "that some of our pitchers who should know better and are rated as being 'smart' have taken too much for granted and have not borne down at the right time. We have lost several games through the hitting of weak batters. It is against them that a pitcher should work his hardest, but instead some of our hurlers have figured that they were easy, simply lobbed the ball over and it has cost us the game.

"When I was pitching I made sure, or as sure as I could, to get out the weak hitters whenever they came up with men on bases and took my chances of checking the sluggers. You can not figure that because a fellow is not rated as a good batter he will not hit soft pitching, but that's apparently how some of our men have figured, and

Few Rookies Make Grade in Big Leagues; Trio, Unheralded, Slip Into Regular Roles

By GEORGE KIRKSEY
(United Press Staff Correspondent).

NEW YORK, May 1.—Few recruits have made the major league grade this season.

Out of the army of youngsters who received tryouts this spring only fifteen are temporarily installed as full-fledged major league regulars.

Oddly enough, three rookies who attracted little attention during the spring have quietly slipped into regular roles. They are Coburn Jones, shortstop of the Pittsburgh Pirates; Johnny Watwood, right fielder for the Chicago White Sox, and Ed Phillips, first-string catcher of the Detroit Tigers.

Jones, only 22, who was with the Bridgeport Eastern League Club last season, has proved himself good enough to relegate Sparky Adams to the bench. Jones is leading off the Pirates' batting order and hitting at a .280 clip.

Watwood Reminds Chisox Fans Of Joe Jackson.

Red Faber persuaded Lena Blackburne to give Watwood his chance in the White Sox outfield. The big rawboned Alabama boy, who somehow reminds one of "Shoeless" Joe Jackson, has been flashing some of the greatest catches of the year and has made a great hit with White Sox fans.

Phillips, a former Boston College star, has surprised even Bucky Harris, who had no idea the Toronto youngster would win the Tigers' first-string catching job. Not only has Phillips handled the Detroit pitchers well but he has been hitting around .400.

American League clubs have been more fortunate with their young players than National League clubs. Detroit, Cleveland and the White Sox landed the best looking recruits. The Tigers have four rookies playing regularly and another bidding for a regular place on the pitching staff. Besides Phillips, the Detroit rookie-regulars are Dale Alexander at first base, Heinie Schuble at shortstop and Roy Johnson in the outfield. Prudhomme, young Toronto pitcher, bought along with Phillips and Alexander, may yet win a place on the pitching staff. Schuble's place is insecure, but he continues to hold an edge over Nolen Richardson, another youngster.

Outfielder and Young Pitcher Make Grade With Tribe.

Besides Watwood, the White Sox have Clarence Hoffman, from Sacramento, and Johnny Kerr, from Hollywood, installed in regular berths. Hoffman is playing center field and Kerr second base. Danny Dugan, St. Louis University rookie, may blossom into a pitching regular.

Earl Averill, $45,000 outfielder from San Francisco, and Wesley Ferrell, 21-year-old rookie pitcher, have landed regular jobs with the Indians. Ray Gardner, from New Orleans, is fighting hard to replace Jackie Tavener at shortstop, and may succeed.

Russell Scarritt, St. Paul recruit, has won a regular berth in the Boston Red Sox outfield.

The Yankees, Athletics and Browns landed no rookies capable of breaking into the regular line-up. The crippled condition of the Yankees' catching staff has given Arndt Jorgens, young catcher from Oklahoma City, a chance to divide the catching with Bill Dickey, temporarily. Tom Jenkins is considered a promising outfielder by Dan Howley, but hasn't been able to break into the Browns' outfield.

Charley Gelbert, the highly-touted Rochester rookie, is making good at shortstop for the St. Louis Cardinals.

Giants and Reds Struggle Along Without Rookies.

Harry Seibold, from the Reading International League Club, has won a regular berth on the Boston Braves' pitching staff. In his first start Seibold held the Giants to five hits.

Tom Angley, Atlanta rookie, is the Chicago Cubs' first-string catcher until Gabby Hartnett and Mike Gonzales recover from injuries.

Johnny Frederick, from Memphis, and Nick Cullop, from Atlanta, who was up before with the Yankees, are fighting for the center-field berth on the Brooklyn Club.

The Giants have no rookies. The Reds have released all but four of their young players, and none of those left are regulars. The Phillies' best youngster is Homer Peel, who formerly was with the Cardinals, and therefore hardly can be considered a rookie of 1929 vintage.

Goslin Maintains Lead As Rain Halts Big Six

(By the Associated Press.)

Rain forced the American League half of the Big Six into idleness yesterday, but the National League division failed to gain. Rogers Hornsby got two out of six in the long game at Cincinnati, but lost 5 points, to .365, while "Goose" Goslin remained stationary in the lead with .405. A semi-official revision of the figures left Lou Gehrig in third place with .306, while Jim Bottomley was fourth with .283 after getting only one hit against the Pirates. Paul Waner helped himself a bit with two hits, and gained .267.

Striking Horse Owners Ordered To Race or Leave Aurora Track

AURORA, Ill., May 1 (A.P.).—Striking horse owners who have caused at least a two-day postponement of the annual spring turf meeting at the Aurora Track, today were ordered to race or get off the track.

The ultimatum was issued by Clifford R. Trimble, general manager of the track, who warned that no further concessions would be granted the strikers and that thoroughbreds from other points would be invited to compete, beginning Friday.

Meanwhile, the strikers stuck to their demands that the track boost the minimum purses from $800 to $1,000, and that the track deduct 1 per cent from all first moneys from all events and turn that sum over to their organization, the Thoroughbred Horse Association. Some wavering was noticed in the strikers' ranks today, but generally they clung to their demands.

"I am certain the track will open with a fine card by Friday, at least," Trimble said. "We have quite a few entries now from several horsemen who do not agree with the association stand, and there are many stable owners at Louisville, Lexington and other points who will come over. The strikers have until 10:30 a. m. tomorrow to file their entries for Friday. If they do not, they will have to get their horses out of our stalls."

Trimble said he had been advised 200 horses, now laying up at Omaha, were ready to be shipped to Aurora as soon as stable room was guaranteed.

Macks in Orgy Rout Boston By 24-6

Foxx Hits 2 Homers; Athletics Score 10 Runs in Sixth.

BOSTON, May 1 (A.P.).—The Athletics staged a mad May Day party at the expense of the Red Sox here today. The Macks made a total of 29 hits, good for 44 bases, and won by the dizzy score of 24 to 6. They knocked Milton Gaston out of the box in the second inning, after having made a total of eight runs.

In the sixth the Macks scored ten times at the expense of Ed Durham and Billy Bayne, who relieved him in midinning. The drive consisted of seven singles, a double by Dykes, a homer by Simmons, his fifth hit, two passes and a hit batsman. Simmons also got one of the six-inning singles and Foxx and Miller got two each.

Simmons Misses 6-Hit Record By Watching Third Strike.

The two final Athletic drives were launched against Ed Carroll, who was assaulted for two runs in the eighth and three more in the ninth. Jimmy Foxx also got five hits, including two homers, and Hale collected four. Simmons missed a chance to tie the modern major league record of six hits by gazing at a third strike as it floated past him in the eighth.

Bob Grove held the Red Sox all but helpless through five innings, but Connie Mack substituted him at bat while the sixth inning orgy was in progress. Ossie Orwoll got himself into trouble and Bill Shores had to finish the game. The Red Sox used 21 men in the game. The victory gave the Athletics an edge of two to one in the series, with the fourth game to be played tomorrow.

The largest score ever made in a major league game was on June 29, 1897, when the Chicago National League Club beat Louisville, 36 to 7. The second biggest score registered in the majors was made by the Cleveland Indians when they beat the Browns, 27 to 3, in the first game of a double-header July 7, 1923.

Cards and Bucs Battle 13 Innings to 4-4 Score

St. Louis, May 1 (A.P.).—A two-run rally in the ninth inning by Pittsburgh forced the Cardinals and the Pirates to a thirteen-inning 4-to-4 tie here today. Sherdel went the route for the National League champions and was touched for sixteen hits, including a triple and three doubles and two bases on balls as well as a balk. The Pirates used two pinch hitters to good advantage in the ninth, when both Stoner and Riconda connected, the latter driving in a run.

The Pirates opened by scoring a pair in the first, while the Cards got to Hill for single runs in the second and third and drove him from the box in the fifth with two more runs.

Salo Leads Bunioneers Through Rain and Wind

Joplin, Mo., May 1 (A.P.).—Terrific winds and a cold downpour of rain failed to stop Johnny Salo, the flying cop, of Passaic, N. Y., from winning today the thirty-second lap of C. C. Pyle's pavement-pounding pageant.

He ran the 47 miles from Miller, Mo., to Joplin, Mo., in 5:51:10 hours, to gain slightly on Pete Gavuzzi, of England, leader in elapsed time. Gavuzzi finished sixth in today's jaunt.

Leads Trio in Tie for Second Place by Four Strokes.

Four G. U. Students in Title Fight; 18 of Scores Under 80.

By HENRY LITCHFIELD WEST.

MAURICE J. McCARTHY, of Georgetown University, intercollegiate golf champion, yesterday won the medal in the qualifying round of the Washington Golf and Country Club spring invitation tournament with a card of 35—35—70, the par of the course. McCarthy, a member of the Washington Club, won last year's tournament.

According to Dave Thomson, the club professional, McCarthy's score is the record of the course in competition. In the spring of 1926 Roland Mackenzie was credited with a 69 in an exhibition match and in September, 1927, McCarthy had a card of 35—31—66, but these scores were not made in competetive medal play.

McCarthy led a field of 268 contestants. The first pair, R. A. Hotze and H. Cooley, of the Hermitage Club, Richmond, Va., starting at 6:45 o'clock in the morning, and all the other players in the forenoon, were severely handicapped by a heavy rainstorm, although after 12 o'clock the skies cleared.

18 Players Score 79 or Better; McCarthy's Golf Brilliant.

The field was a fast one, for no less than eighteen players turned in cards of 79 and under, while no score over 89 qualified in the fifth and last sixteen. In fact, half a dozen competitors with 89 to their credit lost out in the draw, these unfortunates being Ray Chapin, Columbia; Dr. J. T. McClenahan, Washington; Warren L. Heap, Manor; Dr. R. N. Sutton, Washington; Joseph T. Sherrier, Columbia, and T. E. Sebrell, jr., Bellhaven.

As evidenced by his card, McCarthy played brilliant golf throughout his round. On the first nine he had two three-putt greens, the sixth and eighth, but the two lost strokes were equalized by birdies on the third and fifth. With a short approach on the fourteenth and an overapproach on the eighteenth, he was, nevertheless, able to play the second nine in even par by securing birdies on the eleventh and twelfth holes. His total of 70 was four strokes lower than any other card, R. H. Wilson, a fellow Georgetown student; H. J. Hiemenz, of Lancaster, Pa., and Dr. L. S. O'Tell, Indian Spring, each negotiating the round in the same figures—40—34—74. McCarthy's card:

Out..... 4 3 3 5 3 5 4 5 3—35
In..... 4 2 3 4 4 5 4 4 5—35—70

Four Georgetown Students Playing in Title Flight.

With eighteen players with cards of 79 and under, five tying at the latter figure for places in the first sixteen and with darkness covering the course as the last of the field came up the eighteenth fairway, it was impossible to play off the ties in the draw thus made necessary, J. P. Quinn and J. N. McBride, fellow students in Georgetown University, were forced into the second sixteen, leaving McCarthy, Flanagan, Wilson and Clancy, also Georgetown students, to battle in the championship flight for the honor of their institution.

P. W. Calfee, of the Washington Club, would have qualified in the first sixteen with a card of 78. On the third hole, however, while he was playing with Denise Barkalow, a fellow club member, and with both of them playing their third shots from a trap, Barkalow's ball collided with Calfee's ball, knocking it out of the trap. Calfee played the ball from its new lie, and when there was some difference of opinion as to the rule governing an incident of this kind, Calfee decided to avoid all further discussion by withholding his card.

MINOTAUR, PAYING $104, WINS $5,000 PIMLICO RACE

Benham Is Suspended After Silverdale Loses by Nose.

By CHARLES A. WATSON

PIMLICO RACE TRACK, Md., May 1.—Emerging from a closely bunched field, C. Graffagni's consistent Minotaur raced to a glorious triumph in the featured Rennert Handicap today, paying the longest price of the meeting, $104.90. The 3-year-old son of Sun Briar—Irish Lady II, with the Western rider, F. Halbert, in the saddle, scored in easy fashion when once clear of the bulky field of thirteen starters and won by three lengths.

Second to cross the line came My Sis, racing for William F. Scheid, to lead Samuel Ross' Too High to the wire by a scant nose. Another length and a half away came African, carrying the colors of R. T. Wilson, jr., to be fourth. Fair Bob, Chatover and Baron King were withdrawn at the last minute. The winner gained $5,240 for his owner, a new money-winning record for the event. Minotaur was clocked in 23 2-5, 47 2-5 and 1:13 for the 6 furlongs.

The morning rain did not dampen the ardor of the racing fans, who came out early and were rewarded by a warm sunshine all afternoon. Favorites went down in succession and liberal prices were recorded in the majority of events.

There was but little delay before the start. My Sis shot away from the field like a rocket, followed by Kopeck and Pagan Laddie. Twink, the top-weighted favorite, was in a jam soon after the break and Jockey George Fields kept him there all the way. Nearing the half pole, My Sis continued to lead with Lady Capulet in close attendance. Rounding the turn into the stretch, African was thirteenth and Minotaur eighth.

At the head of the stretch, the field was so closely bunched it was difficult to determine who was in front, but it appeared My Sis was still in command. Straightening out for the final run, Halbert went to the whip and Minatour responded under the drive to run over horses in the final sixteenth of the 6 furlongs. The race was not truly run and the best horses never had a chance after the break.

Drawing Board Gallops Home; Lawrence Throws Rider.

In a terrific drive Steve Judge's Capitol Stable scored by a nose over the McLean Stable's Silverdale when Freely outrode E. Benham in the stretch duel to pilot Water Lad, another outsider, to victory in the sixth race, one of the supporting features listed as the Monumental Purse. Vellas was third, Silverdale set the pace from the break of the webbing and Beau Wrack was close on the heels of the leader. Water Lad was third with the remainder of the field away off. Coming into the stretch, Silverdale bore out a little and Water Lad saved ground on the inside, a margin enough to gain the victory.

Jockey Benham, who had the mount on the McLean entry, was suspended for the remainder of the meeting and his badge taken up for unfair tactics at the finish when he extended his elbows to prevent the winner from coming through on the rail.

Cudgeller Scores in Finale; Collins Rides Bareback.

Racing in his best form and notwithstanding a furious drive, Guy Bedwell's Cudgeller won a nose decision over Miss Maryland, a long shot, in the closing race of the day. Third to finish was Pellegrino, with the rider, N. Collins, riding bareback and the saddle hanging underneath the Denham gelding.

Miss Maryland went to the front under her light impost and set the pace to the stretch, followed by Pellegrino and Cudgeller. Cudgeller was running under a slight restraint, with Jockey E. Benham astride, on the backstretch, and when the home lane was reached he attempted to come through on the rail, but was forced to veer between the two leaders to gain the purse.

St. Prisca Wins by Neck; Favorite Left at Post.

The 4-furlong event which ushered in the day's sport provided an upset for the talent when George D. Widener's St. Prisca won a close decision from G. T. Strycker's Tewsenelda and left the favorite, Radha, straggling far behind. Night Signal finished third.

Tewsenelda started off with a rush and held the lead to within a hundred yards of the finish, where the Widener 2-year-old came stoutly to win by a neck. Padha, with George Fields astride, was practically left at the post.

Isetta Wins Second in Romp, Jolting Favorite Players.

Another long shot popped home in the second race in a mile and sixteenth when Bill Irwin saddled a good thing in Izetta, racing for the Skinker boys' Flamingo Farms. Jockey G. Zatesio made no mistakes and after reaching the first turn sent the mare out in front to romp the balance of the way ahead of the field of nine other starters. Dragon was second with All Virginia leading the balance home for third place.

Dragon menaced the winning Washington-owned Miss at the head of the stretch but hung badly and lacked the speed to overcome the length lead which Izetta held to the wire.

IZETTA outrun her field to first turn, was rated in front, resisted opposition from ALL VIRGINIA and won handily. DRAGON moved into contention when ready and made a bold effort at last turn, but hung. ALL VIRGINIA raced well up and held on well. SAN DE ORO saved ground all the way. LINEN KING was taken up sharply soon after the break and was repeatedly bothered, then made up ground, but was too far back.

LIMBUS, away well, saved ground at the elbow, lost command momentarily to GUILDER, but came again and disposed of the leader and was drawing away at the end. GUILDER showed good speed from the wire, raced greenly all the way, and began tiring last sixteenth. AUDAX, away slowly, worked his way up steadily and was going strong at end. PROTEM could never reach leaders. GALLOWAY was outrun.

MINOTAUR, outrun first half, worked his way up on outside, finished strong and, wearing leaders down, was going well at the end. MY SIS set a good pace, shook off LADY CAPULET and held on with good energy. TOO HIGH had a lot taken out of her to reach prominent position and she faltered during the final furlong. AFRICAN, a slow beginner, closed a big gap. HERMITAGE was forced very wide in stretch, he worked out a mile. LADY CAPULET forced a fast pace for five furlongs and tired. TWINK was in tight quarters for half a mile. SUN BROOM had early speed. KOPECK stopped to a walk.

WATER LAD, racing close to the leaders, stopped on inside in final furlong and was up in concluding strides. SILVERDALE raced BEAU WRACK into submission, showed good speed, but he was allowed to loaf in final stages and Benham could not get him together in time to stall off the winner. VELLAS raced forwardly and showed a good effort.

HAILSTORM moved up with a rush rounding far turn and, taking command under hustling tactics, held on to outstay MASTER. Latter, forward from the start, responded well when taken to outside through stretch, but faltered slightly in final few strides. BILLY K. suffered from lack of racing room first quarter, but closed strongly when clear through stretch. CANNON CLUB showed a good performance. BILLIKEN had early speed, but weakened badly after three-eighths. DAR FUR went extremely wide on both turns and could never reach a contending position.

SADA, well up from start and under good rating, followed the pace to well into stretch, where, responding gamely, gradually wore MARY GARDNER down. Latter was sent into a long early lead and appeared the winner a sixteenth out, but faltered badly when challenged near end. LION HEART moved up steadily after three-eighths, came with a good burst of speed final eighth, and was gaining steadily on leaders near end. THISTLE MAJOR closed resolutely from a slow beginning. REPORTS NAME PIXLEE AS G. W. FOOTBALL COACH

Sports Chief May Direct Gridmen

University President Says Post Is Open to New Director.

To Confer This Month; Pixlee Successful as Grid Coach.

WITH the recent resignation of Coach H. Watson Crum, well-founded reports have designated James E. Pixlee, new professor of physical education and director of athletics of George Washington University, as coach of the Colonial Football Team next fall.

Pixlee, a star player on the gridiron for the University of Missouri from 1909 to 1912 and a successful mentor of the leading college spor' with various Western institutions of learning, will come to Washington some time this month to discuss his new position with Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin, president of the university. When appointed to the post last month Pixlee was advised in brief that his work here would consist of organizing and developing the athletic department of George Washington with complete charge of all athletic activities.

Pixlee Master of Own Duties, Says G. W. U. President.

At that time it was believed that Coach Crum would return to G. W. U. again next fall as football coach, thus enabling Pixlee to devote his full time at the beginning of his term to organization work. Now, however, it appears that Pixlee will add the football duties, although no official indication of that yet has been made.

Asked for confirmation of the report that Pixlee would direct the Colonial Football Team, President Marvin yesterday said: "I can not say what Mr. Pixlee will do about the football coaching just now, but since he will have complete charge of the athletic situation at George Washington he, of course, can coach the football team if he so desires, or he can select another coach."

Had Marked Success as Coach During Past 10 Years.

Pixlee has had marked success with football, basket ball, baseball and track teams during the last ten years. His Thirty-sixth Division Eleven played in the finals of the A. E. F. championship series at Paris in 1918. For two years after the war he developed winning teams at Oklahoma A. and M. College. Since 1922 he has directed and coached athletics at Westminster College of Fulton, Mo., and in the last three years his teams have won nine of twelve conference championships in football, baseball, basket ball and track.

Business Nine Defeats American U. in Tenth

Business High School's Baseball Team gained a well earned 5-to-2 victory over American University yesterday on the latter team's field. Three runs in the tenth broke a tie created in the sixth, when American University made a bid to sew up the decision.

A base on balls and singles by Newman, Lewis and Buryee, with an error included, gave the winners three runs in the tenth.

The score by innings:

				R.	H.	E.
Business	100	100	000 3	5	7	2

Western High Coach Protests Series Game

An official protest of an umpire's decision in the Western-Central championship baseball game of last Tuesday, which was won by Central, 12 to 11, in ten innings, was made yesterday to the high school authorities by Coach Dan Ahern, of Western. The protest will be considered by the principals at their next meeing, probably within a week, and if upheld will eventuate in the replaying of the game.

The protest centers about what the umpire declared was a ball on Player Owens, of Western, but which Coach Ahern and Owens claimed struck the player in the body, entitling him to take first base.

Tech-Eastern Nines Play For Series Lead Tomorrow

WHETHER Tech's hold on the chief laurels of public high school athletics will reach the state of a monopoly will probably be known by nightfall tomorrow upon the conclusion of the Manual Trainers' baseball clash with Eastern in the Eastern Stadium. The game will commence at 3:15 o'clock.

Thus far in the current academic year, Tech has captured two major honors, the football and basket ball championships. With track to be decided and the baseball title very likely hinging on the outcome of tomorrow's game, Tech already is near the proud position of dominating local schoolboy athletics.

At present Tech is tied with Eastern for the baseball series lead, each team having won two games and lost none. Central and Western have each won one out of three, while Business has yet to triumph. Each team plays a total of four games in the series.

Hence, the two leaders are so far out in front that it is safe to assume that the winner of tomorrow's game will win the championship. At worst, the winner tomorrow eventually will wind up in a first place tie if the loser wins its fourth game while some one of the outsiders defeats the winner later on.

Cubs and Reds Battle 13 Innings, in 4-4 Tie

Cincinnati, May 1 (A.P.).—The Cubs and the Reds fought through thirteen innings to a tie in the last game of their series here today, halting only when it became time for the Chicago players to rush to the station to board a train for Philadelphia. The game was called with the score 4 to 4.

The Bruins pounded Adolph Luque for four runs in the third on four hits, many of which were lucky. Cuyler got a triple in this round when Allen fell in fielding the ball, and Hack Wilson got his fourth home run when his drive to right rolled up the driveway. The Cubs failed thereafter to score, and got no hits off Ash and Rixey, who succeeded Luque.

The Reds tied the score in the ninth on doubles by Lucas and Critz, mixed with a hit batsman. Dixon opened the thirteenth with a double and Zitzman and Critz were purposely passed after Sukeforth had sacrificed Dixon to third, but Shaner popped out and Allen took a called third strike.

K. of C. Boxers Point For Baltimore Match

Coach Zube Sullivan is pointing his Knights of Columbus boxers for their final team match of the spring scheduled with the Baltimore Y. M. C. A. on May 10 at Carroll Hall. Sullivan hopes to have his crack heavyweight, Charles Marcellino, reinstated by the A. A. U. in time to appear on the program. Marcellino has been under suspension on charges of having fought professionally.

Present plans call for six bouts with the Caseys lining up as follows: Mickey Harris, flyweight; Ray Fisher, bantamweight; Nevin Barber, winner over Mike Tardugno of Jewish Community Center, featherweight; Leo Coveleskie, lightweight; Biff Barry, welterweight, and Charles McArdle, welterweight.

FOES' WEAK HITTERS ARE BEATING NATS

it has caused us plenty of trouble. I've been preaching this right along and hope in time that the idea will sink in."

Failures Against Weak Hitters Cost Nats Ball Game.

While Johnson would mention no names, the case of Tom Zachary might be mentioned. He came up in the fourth inning of yesterday's game with one out and men on third and second. Instead of "working" on Zachary, a notably poor hitter, Braxton grooved one, and "Ole Tom" lined a single to right, which emptied the bases and prolonged a rally, which netted four runs. Had Zachary been disposed of, all four of these tallies might have been prevented.

Another instance was the pass issued to Durocher in the tenth inning, which ultimately was turned into the winning alien run. The young shortstop is the weakest at bat of any of the New York regulars, yet Liska walked him on five pitched balls. It is in spots like this that Johnson believes his moundsmen should do their best work and poor pitching to this one batter, rated as a weakling throughout the league, cost the Nats their chances of winning after they had overcome a six-run Yankee lead.

HELEN WILLS BOWS AT COURT ON MAY 9

Tennis Player Among Sixteen American Debutantes to Be Presented to Queen.

SECOND COURT ON MAY 10

London, May 1 (U.P.).—Miss Helen Wills, whose skill has won her the world's highest honors of the tennis court, will be presented at court at Buckingham Palace May 9, the United States Embassy revealed tonight in announcing the names of sixteen American debutantes who will be received by Queen Mary May 9 and 10.

The girls who will realize the dream of formal presentation at Buckingham Palace represent all sections of the United States. Eight will be presented at the first court and eight at the second court. Wives of four United States diplomats also will be presented at the first court.

Queen Alone on Throne.

Miss Wills is now in Europe preparing for her widely heralded invasion of foreign tennis courts. Queen Mary, it is said, has been attracted by the California girl during various matches at Wimbledon.

Queen Mary alone will sit on the throne, recalling the reign of Queen Victoria, who received her guests as she sat on the throne surrounded by her suite, including the Prince Consort. The Prince of Wales will accompany his mother to the throne, but will then take his place with the royal family beside the throne.

King George is still at Craigwell House, Bognor, where he is regaining his strength. His majesty is not yet sufficiently recovered from his long illness to stand the strain of a formal affair.

Four courts will be held by Queen Mary. The dates of the third and fourth have not yet been fixed.

Dreams of many girls throughout the world will come true on May 9 for the following, besides Miss Wills:

Miss Virginia Willys, of Toledo, Ohio; Miss Elizabeth Behn, of New York City; Miss Alice Coonley, of Chicago; Miss Lillian Emerson, of Black Mountain, N. C.; Miss Jocelyn Pierson, of Baltimore; Miss Harriet Walker, of Piedmont, Calif., and Mrs. Albert Halstead, of Cincinnati.

Others to Be Presented.

The wives of diplomats who will be presented are:

Mrs. Raymond Cox, Mrs. Charles Wesson, Mrs. William Galbraith and Mrs. Frederick Lee.

The following will be presented May 10:

Mrs. George Barnett, Washington; Miss Mollie Cullum, of Pittsburgh; Mrs. Paul Grening, of San Francisco; Mrs. George Lawrence, of New York City; Miss Margaret McKittrick, of St. Louis; Miss Catherine Norcross, of Atlanta; Miss Margaret Tyner, of Highland Park, Ill.; Miss Adeline Winston, of Atlanta.

Ray Atherton, chrage d'affaires at the embassy, accompanied by members of the staff and their wives, will attend the first court. Atherton will attend the second court accompanied by only Harve Gerry, third secretary.

TODAY'S WOMEN

By EARL MINDERMAN

MAY 2.

ONE of the most famous women rulers in history, Catherine II of Russia, was born this day, 1729. Catherine became empress on the death of her husband, Peter III. During her reign Catharine promoted agriculture and commerce, improved the laws, dug canals, founded towns, hospitals and colleges and encouraged literature. In war she was equally successful and Russia defeated Turkey during her reign. With Berlin and Vienna, she arranged for the partition of Poland in 1772. She died of apoplexy at the age of 67.

Norma Talmadge, the famous motion picture star, was born this day, 1897, in Niagara Falls, N. Y. She began her career on the afternoon of her fourteenth birthday with the old Vitagraph Co. Her life is insured for $1,000,000. She starred in "The Isle of Conquest," "The Wonderful Thing," "Smilin' Thru," "The Voice From the Minaret," "Ashes of Vengeance," "Secrets," "The Only Woman," "Camille" and "The Woman Disputed."

Other famous women born this day include Margaret H. McCarter, American author, 1860, and Hallie Erminie Rives-Wheeler, American novelist, 1876.

The Return Of OLD KING BRADY

CHAPTER V

Old King Brady Makes Important Discoveries.

In chapter four Harry boards the Aldebaran as a fisherman, and is hired as an expert swimmer. The Aldebaran is disabled and the captain arranges for the Staghound to take them up the river. The prince and Mrs. Drake board the yacht.

JAKE and Harry were greatly excited. "I wonder what this all means?" Jake asked Harry after they were on board the Staghound. "Have you any idea?"

"Not the least," was the reply. "The captains have their heads pretty close, looks as though they were pretty well acquainted."

Capt. Belden came toward them just then. "Now, you boys want to get ready for business," he said. "We have been fortunate in getting on board this yacht so we can put our job through. I suppose you are wondering what it is all about?"

"Well, naturally," replied Jake. "I was told I was to do a lot of swimming. Is it to be done tonight?"

"Yes, are you ready? And you, too, Conors?" turning to Harry, who had given him that name.

"I'm all ready for anything, sir."

"Well, then, for your instructions. I shall have to take you into my confidence. This means an escape from Sing Sing. In a short time we shall be opposite the prison, where we shall drop anchor over by the west bank. We will then take Conors' boat and pull out into the middle of the river. You two boys will then undress and take to the water, swimming over to the prison wall."

"What about getting shot by the guards?" said Jake.

"We are expected at 1:30 and the guards on duty will be deaf and blind to what is going on. The only danger lies in delay."

"How are we to get our man?" asked Harry.

"He will be passed out of a small door which communicates with the prison wharf at exactly 1:30. He will conceal himself as best he can until he sees you, when he will drop into the water. You must be right on hand to catch him, for he is a large man and can not swim a stroke." The captain then went back to talk with Capt. Rowland.

Harry found opportunity to tell Old King Brady what he had learned. The old detective was not overpleased. "It is a terrible risk. If trouble comes, Harry, remember—save yourself. Don't forget it, either."

The yacht came to anchor under the shore on the west bank of the Hudson opposite Sing Sing. The position was a most favorable one, for discovery from the prison wall was almost out of the question.

The boat was at once made ready, and Capt. Belden and the boys pushed off.

Old King Brady Overhears a Lover's Plot.

Old King Brady called Capt. Rowland to him. "Do Whitesides and the woman keep close to the cabin?" he asked.

"They have, so far."

"Place chairs under the window here and make it a tempting place for a quiet talk." His foresight was rewarded after the departure of the small boat. Mr. Whitesides and the woman came on deck.

They moved forward and took the chairs which Old King Brady had ordered placed under the window. There was a sigh, and an "Oh, Charley," followed by a noise which sounded amazingly like kissing.

"Oh, ho!—This is the way the cat is jumping," thought the old detective.

"Don't, Charley. We shall be observed," said the woman. "Now for a minute's quiet talk. Oh, I feel so nervous about it all."

"Why should you, Julie?" answered the boy. "Everything is working as smooth as glass."

"You don't fear treachery from the inside, then?"

"Why should I? Think of the money the underkeeper has made through my Wall street operations under the direction of Mr. Drake. Your respected husband displays a wonderful knowledge of the stock market."

"Don't call him my husband, Charley."

"All right. That is to be my proud title as soon as this job is done."

"Yes, if you still think you want to marry a woman fifteen years older than yourself. But there is one condition which I have not stated yet."

"Julie, you alarm me. What is it?" "Put your arm around me—listen while I whisper it in your ear. It will never marry you while Stan Drake lives."

"What do you mean by that? You can't mean—When it comes to murder——"

"You crawl?"

"Julie, let us stick to our original plan. We will tie him up in the old house and make our escape. When he comes to himself he is bound to be recognized and then taken back to Sing Sing."

"Oh, well," replied the woman lightly; "I was only trying you, Charley, I wanted to see how far you would go for my sake."

There was more hugging and kissing, and a peace was patched up between them.

"There's a fiend," thought the detective. "I see it all now. This is a strike for Staniland Drake's hidden stealings, with a little matter of murder on the side."

The Escape From Sing Sing.

While Old King Brady was listening to the lover's talk, Harry and Jake were pulling the boat to a point opposite the gray stone walls of Sing Sing. Soon they reached a place where Capt. Belden called a halt.

Capt. Belden took a long look at the prison walls through his night glass. "I can see no sentinel. I don't altogether like this," he said. "However, dive in, boys, we'll make the best of it." Young King Brady and Jake dived and swam toward the prison wall. Sentinels appeared on the wall, but no challenge came. The swimmers were unobserved. Harry's eyes were fixed on the wharf, but no movement was noticed until they were very close, when a man's hand was raised above the string-piece. Harry pulled in close to Jake. They pushed on and came noiselessly up alongside the wharf. Neither of them dared speak. Young King Brady was entirely at a loss what to do, when suddenly a man's cropped head came over the string-piece and a frightened face looked down upon them.

No word was spoken. The convict began to lower himself, moving slowly and noiselessly, until he hung down by his hands. The boys clutched his legs as they trod water and lowered him down.

"Lie on your breast," breathed Harry. "Throw your arms over your head. Keep your legs close together, and don't move them on any account." The man gave homself up wholly to his conductors, and soon they were on either side of him, with his hands clutching them.

"Now, keep perfectly quiet, and we go!" breathed Young King Brady. It was slow at first, but they soon got used to it, and there was no challenge so far—the dreaded searchlight had not appeared.

"Not very," replied Harry. "We shall soon be at the boat."

"Heaven grant it," mumbled the man.

No more was said until suddenly the sound of voices was heard on the prison walls.

"The guard has been changed," said the convict then. "Now comes the dangerous time. At any moment my escape may be discovered. Are we out of range yet?"

"I don't know. I don't dare look around, but here comes the boat."

The convict murmured something inaudible and Harry could tell he was growing nervous by the way he clutched him. The boat soon reached them and they were hauled over the side. The convict immediately took off his prison clothes and put on others. He presented a very different appearance. As they reached the yacht the shrill croak of the prison whistle was heard and the searchlight flashed from the walls.

"My escape has been discovered," said the convict. "Captain, lose no time! No matter what money has been promised I'll add a thousand to it if you get me safely out."

"Trust me," replied Capt. Belden, and they ran alongside the yacht.

The Prince and Mrs. Drake were on hand to greet them as they came on board.

"Julie!" cried the convict, shedding tears and holding out his arms.

The woman submitted to his embraces and Drake shook hands with the Prince, after which they withdrew to the seats under the captain's stateroom window.

The Staghound was instantly got under way. They steamed rapidly down the river keeping close to the west bank. Harry, who had dressed on the boat, stood by the rail watching the prison. There was no boat in sight and the searchlight had not been thrown on the water again. "They didn't see us," he thought. "They know he has escaped but that is all."

Another chapter in this thrilling serial is in tomorrow's issue. Don't miss it! Old King Brady is going to trail the Prince right to the end.

CONVERTIBLE BONDS AGAIN LEAD ACTIVITY

OIL GROUP SHARES OFF

New York, May 1 (A.P.).—A bullish flourish in stocks today brought issues with conversion or stock subscription features to the forefront in the bond market today. Thrust aside in the scramble for semispeculative favorites, purely investment issues were dull, with prices showing little change.

Some month-end reinvestment of dividend and interest disbursements helped the general list but lagging sales indicated a falling off of the recent investment demand which accompanied the April recovery of bonds. This was attributed partly to the higher price levels and the reviving bull movement in stocks.

Trading in the convertibles started at a fast pace but tapered off in the afternoon. American I. G. Chemical 5½s, in point of sales as well as gains, still led the convertible group, finishing at a high of 103½, a rise of 3¼ points for the day and more than 7 points above the subscription price last Friday. The linking of American capital with German chemical enterprise represented by this issue and its strong sponsorship have proved a strong attraction to investors and speculators.

The biggest bond issue since the war—the $225,000,000 of American Telephone convertible 4½s authorized by stockholders yesterday—was admitted to dealings on the stock exchange this morning on a when issued basis and opened at 141, compared with the offering to stockholders at par. Trading started off briskly, prices advanced a point but fell back to 136½ and closed only a fraction above that price as the stock turned downward.

Between them, the new chemical and telephone issues contributed nearly one-eighth of the day's sales, which totaled a little less than $8,800,000. They are expected to bulk large in the trading for some time to come.

Alleghany Corporation 5s; American International 5½s and International Telephone 4½s were other active members of the convertible group but they slipped off a fraction toward the close after early firmness.

The rails were uneven. Demand was less apparent in the showing of the junior issues, save for Frisco 4½s, which gained a point on a sizable turnover. Insurance companies and banks are reported to have been doing most of the buying of this issue since it is within the New York State banking law.

Industrials as a group were easy, oils particularly tending a shade lower.

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

Washington will be the scene of elimination trials for contestants from the second national district of the American Institute of Banking for the public speaking prizes offered by A. P. CAPITAL STUDENTS, FOUND DELINQUENT, MAY LOSE DIPLOMAS

Drastic Penalty Is Urged for Those Held Guilty of Some Offenses.

EDUCATION COMMITTEE WILL REPORT ON PLAN

Two Boys Suspended From Classwork for Joining Unapproved Fraternity.

Adoption of a rule giving the Board of Education the right to withhold the diploma of any student in the junior, senior high or normal schools found guilty of immoral conduct, indecent language, violent or pointed opposition to authority, persistent disobedience or disorder, dishonesty, habitual tardiness, unauthorized absence, or uncleanly condition of person or clothing, was recommended to the board yesterday at its meeting in the Franklin Building.

The recommendation was made by Mrs. Philip Sidney Smith, chairman of the personnel committee of the board. It was unanimously agreed that the recommendation be turned over to the rules committee for study and report at the next meeting.

Any student found guilty of any of the above enumerated offenses would be subject to having his or her diploma withheld at graduation, despite the fact that such student may have earned all necessary credits in studies prescribed for graduation.

Offenses Regarded as Serious.

A diploma from a public school attests to the honorable completion of a course of study, and, inasmuch as character training should be an inherent result of the completion of every educational program in a public school, Mrs. Smith declared, the board should have the right to withhold a diploma from any student found guilty of the "offenses" named, which, she declared, were serious.

Suspension from further participation in classwork till the end of the present school term in June was the penalty imposed on Joseph S. Cochran and Joseph Neale, Central High School students, charged with making false statements in connection with their membership in unapproved fraternities.

Ballou Plan Held Too Drastic.

Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools urged the expulsion of the two students but the board members regarded this recommendation as "too drastic." The two students are members of the unapproved Pi Phi Fraternity.

Henry Gilligan, board member, recommended that the two students be permitted to rejoin their classes providing they make apology for their admitted misdeeds, to school officials, but this motion was defeated by a vote of 8 to 3.

At a meeting of the District of Columbia Public School Association last night at the District Building an uproar was caused by the presentation of a resolution by the executive committee stating that expulsion is too severe a penalty to exact from a boy belonging to an unapproved fraternity. The resolution was finaly tabled.

Ballou Backs Penalties.

Mrs. Carl Smith declared that "to throw a child out of school stigmatizes him" and tends toward criminality. Others expressed the opinion that while fraternities in the high schools are undesirable, there is no law that can keep children from belonging to them.

Dr. Ballou said that expulsion and suspension are the only forms of punishment for the offense that he knows of and that if any one has any other suggestions he would be obliged if they would communicate them to him at once.

The meeting was closed with a discussion by Commissioner of Education John W. Cooper on the history of education. He gave it as his opinion that the educational system of the Kingdom of Prussia is the best of modern times. Cooper predicted a great future for junior colleges, and declared that they would revolutionize education.

Dead Marriage License Clerk Praised in Court

William A. Kroll, marriage license clerk for the last eighteen years in the District Supreme Court, who was buried yesterday, was eulogized in open court yesterday by Chief Justice Walter I. McCoy.

"The highest to be accorded any man is that he has been found faithful," the chief justice declared. "This quality was shown in marked degree by Mr. Kroll throughout the eighteen years he has been in the employ of the court, and was exhibited by his attention to business almost until the end. He testified in this court on Thursday and was at his desk all day Friday. He had won and retained the respect and affection of all the justices of the court, who consider his death a distinct loss to the court."

Chauffeur, Who Fell Trying to Escape, Dies

A scramble to escape from a blackjack game when Policeman Emilous Barnett, of the Eight Precinct, walked into the chauffeurs' room at the Kalorama Garage, 1640 Kalorama road northwest, on Monday night at 10 o'clock and discovered fifteen men at the game, resulted in injuries which yesterday proved fatal to James Hamilton Hunter, colored, 52 years old, of 901-A Twenty-first street northwest.

Hunter, a chauffeur, fractured his skull in attempting to escape through a second-floor window, from which he fell to the ground. He died yesterday afternoon at Garfield Hospital.

Woman, 34, Succumbs From Effects of Gas

Mrs. Almira McCormick, 34 years old, of 3714 O street southeast, died at Casualty Hospital yesterday afternoon from the effects of gas poisoning.

Mrs. McCormick, according to her husband, inhaled the gas through a tube attached to a stove last Monday afternoon. It was her second attempt to end her life, McCormick said. Last January she jumped from a boat at Norfolk, McCormick told police. She was in poor health. Coroner J. Ramsay Hewitt signed a certificate of suicide last night.

Departmental Officers Heard by Legionnaires

Commander Harlan Wood and other departmental officers were among the visitors last night at the regular meeting of Sergt. Jasper Post, the American Legion, at the Thomas Circle Club.

The post voted to place a wreath at the monument to Sergt. Jasper at Charleston, S. C., Memorial Day, with the cooperation of the Charleston Post of the Legion.

JURY FAILS TO AGREE ON KIDNAPING CHARGE

Mistrial Results in Case of Trio Accused of Abducting Truck Driver.

REVENGE CALLED MOTIVE

A mistrial was declared yesterday in the case of Elmer Altizer, his wife, Sadie Altizer, and Helen Woznik, charged with abduction of Raymond L. Schwenk, ice cream truck driver, by Chief Justice Walter I. McCoy in the District Supreme Court when the jury reported after four hours' of deliberation there was no prospect of an agreement. The final ballot was 6 to 6, it was reported.

The defendants were accused of forcing Schwenk to take them in his truck to Penns Grove, N. J., last January 15. Schwenk testified that he met the three and agreed to drive them to Hyattsville, Md. Before starting on the journey, he said, they stopped at a house in the Southeast section, where the defendants obtained bedding and clothes.

Upon arrival at Hyattsville, Schwenk declared, a revolver was leveled at him and he was forced to proceed. During the remainder of the trip, the truck driver declared, he was covered by one or another of the defendants with a revolver. After arrival in Penns Grove, he said, he was given back his truck, but before leaving the town, he caused the arrest of the trio.

To questions by Abner Segal, of defense counsel, Schwenk admitted crossing the Delaware River on a ferry. Segal made a point of this to the jury, declaring the three could not have escaped if Schwenk had reported his abduction to officials while aboard the ferry.

The defense, conducted by Segal, Frank Kelly, George Naphen and James Farrell, contended Schwenk made the trip voluntarily and caused the arrests as the result of a broken bargain. The prosecution was conducted by Assistant District Attorney William H. Collins.

Tippett Jones Law Jurors Discharged

Suspended Policeman to Be Retried; Carter Faces Court Today.

Two suspended policemen went on trial before Justice Frederick L. Siddons yesterday in criminal branch of the District Supreme Court. Elmer Francis Tippett, 27 years old, suspended member of the Eleventh Precinct, was charged with larceny of an automobile and Curtis Carter, suspended patrolman of the Fifth Precinct, was accused of violating the Jones liquor law.

After 3½ hours' deliberation the jury in Tippett's case reported to Justice Siddons that there was a hopeless deadlock and no chance of an agreement. The jurors were excused and the case will be set for another trial.

Carter's case was continued until today when a panel of prospective jurors was exhausted. Two of the talesmen informed the court that they were opposed to the Jones law and were excused from service. Additional talesmen will be summoned today.

Four Christian Science Churches Named in Will

Miss Sophie Seibert, who died April 8, named four Christian Science churches of this city as principal beneficiaries of her estate, according to a petition for probate of her will filed yesterday in the District Supreme Court. Hospitals, charitable and religious organizations were also named to share in the estate.

The First Scientist Church was given $6,000, and the Second, Third and Fourth Scientist Churches were each given $5,000. The First Church of Christ, Science, of Boston was left $2,500; the Christian Science Benevolent Association, of Boston, $2,000, and the Pleasant View Home of Concord, N. H., $2,000.

Postmaster Age Limit Lowered by President

The age limit for first, second and third-class postmasters was lowered to 65 years yesterday by an executive order issued by President Hoover. Under the executive order of June 22, 1928, a person could make application for these positions up to 68 years of age, after which they were disqualified.

The new order, however, makes special provision for persons in the postal service who have been in the service at least two years. In their case the age limit is waived.

Husband Asks Police To Trace Missing Wife

Joseph K. Threm, of 1406 Hamlin street northeast, has appealed to the police in an effort to locate his wife, Mary M. Threm, who has been missing from her home since April 21.

Threm reported that a boy in the neighborhood saw Mrs. Threm leave in a taxicab on April 21. He says he knows no reason for her departure except that she had been of nervous disposition. Mrs. Threm is about 50 years old and when she disappeared was wearing a black coat with fur collar and cuffs.

CABINET MEMBERS SPEAK AS CHILDREN OBSERVE MAY DAY

Hyde Sets National Objective Over Radio as Health for Every Youngster.

MRS. HOOVER RECEIVES FLOWER-FILLED BASKET

900 Attend Special Clinics; Festivals Held at Various City Playgrounds.

Every child sound in body, mind and spirit was the national goal set up by one Cabinet member, while another called the occasion "a day of rejoicing for American labor," as the National Capital yesterday celebrated May day despite the inclement weather which prevented great demonstrations on the playgrounds of the city by the school children.

Arthur M. Hyde, Secretary of Agriculture, in a speech broadcast over a chain of eighteen stations, talked on "The Country Child—the Farm's Best Crop," as part of the "child health" program, in connection with the observance of May day.

Commenting on the labor situation in the United States, Secretary of Labor John J. Davis declared that employment this year has shown reassured improvement over the same period last year, and that, in addition to there being more men employed, pay rolls of firms were considerably increased. He added that business conditions at the present time offer some assurance that labor will continue to enjoy improved hours and rates of pay. Employment for still more workers "at the liberal wage which is now the policy of American industry" was forecast by Secretary Davis.

"Child Health National Goal."

"The ideals set forth in the President's proclamation of Child health day challenge every American," said Secretary Hyde in his radio address. "Our country's future depends upon and is in the keeping of the coming generation. Every child sound in body, mind and spirit—surely this is a lofty national goal.

"Country children get tremendous health benefits just because they are country children. Environment in most cities must to some extent be overcome by parents. In the country, environment is to a large extent working with the parent.

"In my judgment one of the finest new branches of home demonstration work is instruction in child care and training inaugurated in recent years by some of the States. Health is one of the four foundation stones of the 4-H Club system. More than 100,000 boys and girls last year embarked on the 4-H Club health project and every one of the 664,000 4-H Club members received instruction.

Clinics in Country Needed.

"People of the open country are striving to give children healthful homes and training. More is needed, however. Probably the point in the child's bill of rights most often and most flagrantly violated, so far as country children are concerned, is that of prompt and efficient medical attention and inspection. Two things must be done to secure this right to rural children. One is to provide full-time health workers in rural counties. The other is the establishment of rural medical centers, hospitals, clinics and out-patient departments.

"Here, then, are the chief challenges of this Child Health Day to the countryman: That he make his own home healthful, that he help his community make provision for health supervision, for medical centers to meet the exigencies of accident and disease, and for play places to give full vent to the spirit and sociability of the growing child."

Washington's portion of the Child Health Day program consisted of the start of the summer "round-up" of preschool children for physical examination at a series of clinics in every section of the city.

Doctors and dentists volunteered their services to examine the children, under supervision of Dr. E. J. Schwartz, assistant health officer. Dr. Joseph A. Murphy was in charge of physical examinations, while Dr. Stephen C. Hopkins was chairman of the committee of dentists.

Parents and Teachers Aid.

The District of Columbia Congress of Parents and Teachers played a prominent part in the health day round-up. The members took to the clinics some 900 children, who will enter school next fall. Thirty-five local chairmen worked under Mrs. H. N. Stull, State chairman of the summer round-up, which is the congress' child health activity. At some schools the parent-teacher organizations furnished doctors and dentists to examine the children.

Festivities marking the lighter side of May day began in the early morning, when a group of children called at the White House to present Mrs. Hoover with a basket of flowers.

Public and parochial schools enjoyed limited programs at playgrounds, all of these being curtailed because of the condition of playgrounds after the rain. Dances around May poles, drills and individual dances, which in many cases resulted in the award of prizes to the tiny performers, made up the schedule at most of these celebrations.

Sick and injured children in hospitals were not forgotten and volunteer clowns, musicians and entertainers of all sorts helped make the day a happy one for them.

ANNUAL RITES HAIL DEWEY AS SEA HERO

Capt. Curtis H. Dickins Delivers Eulogy of Admiral at Cathedral Service.

MANILA VETERANS ATTEND

That Admiral Dewey ranks with Themistocles, Nelson, John Paul Jones, Farragut and Porter as one of the greatest admirals in history, was asserted by Capt. Curtis H. Dickins, chief chaplain of the United States Navy, in a sermon he delivered yesterday afternoon at the annual service in Bethlehem Chapel of Washington Cathedral in commemoration of the hero of Manila Bay.

"Admiral Dewey was a man of the sea," continued Chaplain Dickins. "He did not court positions of ease and preferment ashore. He knew the voice of the sea. When what seemed a hard task in command of the Asiatic Squadron came to him, he accepted it as part of his life-long obedience to duty, and thus fame found him. It was not chance which made him the victor of Manila. It was the result of character building of the United States Navy and inherent traits which made Dewey great."

Chaplain Dickins rehearsed vividly the battle of Manila Bay as several of Admiral Dewey's captains in that famous fight sat before him and listened to the praise of their beloved commander of yesterday.

"Admiral Dewey was a man of splendid courage, splendid habits and ability," concluded the chaplain. "He was a gentleman of the first water, a man men were proud to salute, a man men were proud to call friend. God raise up more George Deweys among us to serve America, like him, in some hour of national need."

The Assistant Secretary of the Navy, Mr. Ernest Lee Jahncke, represented the Navy Department officially at the service and many of Admiral Dewey's comrades in the service and a number of leading naval officers were present. Naval organizations were represented by delegations and a particularly interesting group was composed of 20 bluejackets from the U. S. Naval Hospital who occupied specially reserved pews.

The service of commemoration was read by the Rev. Dr. William L. DeVries, chancellor and canon of Washington Cathedral, and the Rev. Dr. G. Freeland Peter, canon of Washington Cathedral. Special prayers for Admiral Dewey and the Navy were said and the hymns sung were those of national character or connected with the sea.

Among the floral tributes placed on the tomb of Admiral Dewey in Bethlehem Chapel during the day were a beautiful basket of flowers from Mrs. George Dewey, widow of the Admiral, a wreath from the Society of Manila Bay and a wreath brought there and reverently placed by the twenty bluejackets from the U. S. Naval Hospital.

16-Year-Old Bride Asks Court to Void Wedding

Mrs. Evelyn Mary Santucci, 16-year-old bride of six months, through her mother, Mrs. Hazel I. Donahue, of 626 Morton street northwest, yesterday petitioned the District Supreme Court to annul her marriage to Joseph O. Santucci, of Oak terrace northeast.

Through her counsel, John J. O'Brien, the girl declared she was only 15 years old on December 10, 1928, when she went through a wedding ceremony with the defendant in Maryland. The laws of Maryland require that the bride must be 18 years of age or more and the bridegroom 21 or more for a marriage, the plaintiff contends, and declared the ceremony in which she was involved was invalid. She declared she lived with the defendant until April 1.

BOARD WILL DECIDE 15 ZONE PROPOSALS AT MEETING TODAY

ROW-HOUSE PROJECT OPPOSED BY RESIDENTS

Numerous Other Development Schemes May Be Halted by Strong Protests.

Fifteen proposed changes in the zoning of various properties, considered at a public hearing by the zoning commission yesterday in the board room of the District Building, will be acted on by the commission at an executive session to be held in the District Building at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

Decision on one important amendment to the zoning regulations, advertised to be considered at the hearing yesterday, was postponed by the commission until its next public hearing.

The amendment would permit construction of fire houses, police stations and pumping stations, public playgrounds, public recreation centers and public swimming pools in neighborhoods zoned as residential territory. Consideration of this amendment was postponed at the request of Henry I. Quinn, of the zoning committee of the Federation of Citizens Associations, who said he also represented the Sixteenth Street Highlands Citizens Association. The organizations, Quinn said, had not had time to consider the proposal.

Realty Dealers Oppose Change.

W. C. & A. N. Miller, real estate operators, represented by Roger Whiteford, were the only opponents to the proposal to change the zoning of both sides of Massachusetts avenue, from Macomb street to the District line, from A residential to A restricted territory. The Millers owned the land along the south side of Massachusetts avenue from Forty-sixth to Forty-ninth street. Whiteford said his clients had bought the property as A residential and wanted it left that way to permit development under that classification.

Saving the avenue from row-house development was strongly urged by the American University Park Citizens Association, the Mount Vernon Seminary, the American University and representatives of the Glover estate, replying to the Miller opposition with a united front on the part of all other property owners affected.

Proposal to change from residential A, semirestricted, to residential B, restricted area, the lots facing Quintana place, on both sides, from Fifth to Seventh street northwest, advanced by Thomas Bones on behalf of Harry Wardman, was bitterly opposed by residents of the territory.

Monroe Street Change Protested.

Residents of Monroe street appeared in force in opposition to a proposal to change 1610 Monroe street northwest from B restricted to residential C area. The property is part of an estate and it was said the change was desired to permit construction of an apartment house on Sixteenth street of a sufficient depth on Monroe street to make it profitable, inasmuch as the rear, or Monroe street lot, belonged to the same owner.

Frederick J. Rice, owner of the Park Theater on Fourteenth street, between Buchanan and Crittenden street northwest, again pleaded with the zoning commission to change the zoning of the rear of his property from residential B restricted to first commercial, declaring that the theater was a failure and under present zoning the property could not be developed profitably.

Maj. D. A. Davison, executive officer of the commission, read into the record a letter from Ben T. Webster, of the Board of Trade, opposing a change from residential, 40-foot, to first commercial, 60-foot, part of two lots on the southwest corner of Davenport and Forty-first streets northwest. The change was urged by Mrs. Annie E. Byrum, owner, and met with no other opposition. The Board of Trade members urged that the land should be purchased and used as a park.

There were disputes on practically all of the proposals, with the battle of words waxing warm at times.

Bus Depot Hearing Called for May 15

Interested Persons Invited by Utilities Group to Present Views.

Efforts of public utilities commission officials to bring about construction of a modern, central motor-bus terminal were carried a step forward yesterday when the commission called a conference to be held in the board room in the District Building at 10 o'clock in the morning on May 15.

Notice of the conference was sent to representatives of the various interstate motor-bus lines operating in and out of Washington, and urged them to come prepared with whatever information they had which would help the commission in its efforts to develop the terminal it desires. Various persons who have submitted proposals to the commission in the course of the discussion begun some time ago by commission officials also were invited to attend the conference.

Orcutt, against the first and second floors of 1211 U street northwest. Robber and Girl Taken Here Get 15 Years Each

A man who admitted three robberies and a woman who confessed to aiding him in two of them, both of whom were arrested in Washington some weeks ago, were sentenced to 15 years each in the penitentiary in Baltimore Criminal Court yesterday. They are John Andrew Startt and Lena Parnanzini, also known as Lorraine Price.

The pair were arrested here and held for Baltimore authorities when they stopped a stolen automobile, in which they were riding at Fourteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest, to inquire directions to Richmond, Va. Patrolman Johnson questioned them and when the girl reached toward the pocket in the auto door, drew his gun and ordered them to Traffic Bureau. A revolver was later found in the pocket.

Revival of 60-Year-Old Law May Aid in Gambling Drive

Howard Says Police Would Have Search Powers Under Statute of Ancient Days, Which Vested Wide Authority in Superintendent of Force.

An old District law, enacted nearly 60 years ago, may be invoked to aid the Police Department in a drive to wipe gambling establishments out of existence in Washington.

Under an opinion said to have been given by former Corporation Counsel Andrew B. Duvall, who held office 26 years ago, the resurrected law confers on the superintendent of police authority to issue search warrants for suspected gambling places.

The law also gives the police authority to enter clubs, whether incorporated or not, when there is reason to suspect violation of the gambling laws.

That the old and forgotten law is being studied by police officials was disclosed yesterday by Clinton N. Howard, chairman of the National United Committee for Law Enforcement, after a conference with Maj. Henry G. Pratt, superintendent of police.

Howard said that, according to his information, it was believed that the forgotten law gave the police ample authority to issue warrants and search suspected gambling places and enter clubs, but Maj. Pratt subsequently refused point blank to discuss the question, declaring that he had "nothing to say."

The law was enacted prior to prohibition and makes no reference to liquor, being aimed at gambling, it was said. Whether the law still is applicable and should be employed by the police is understood to be under study by legal authorities. It is believed the question has been referred to the United States district attorney's office for an opinion, although police officials refused to discuss it.

That the old law had recently been discovered and was being studied was developed, it is understood, in the course of a discussion between Maj. Pratt and Howard over a program of liquor enforcement legislation which Howard advocates.

The first of these proposals is to clothe the entire District police force with authority to enforce the prohibition laws, which Howard said Maj. Pratt had agreed was "quite essential." Howard also wants the police chief and District prosecutor to have full authority to issue search warrants for liquor and to have them "be the determining factor as to the probable cause on evidence submitted." He also wants to clothe the Police Department with authority to enter clubs without warrants. He would have $100,000 appropriated for prohibition enforcement by the District police.

Auto-License Test Case Will Be Argued Today

Judge Robert B. Peter, in Montgomery County Circuit Court at Rockville today, will hear appeals on the test cases involving the use of District automobile license tags by Maryland residents employed by Washington firms who use automobiles belonging to their employers.

Attorneys for the American Automobile Association and the Potomac Electric Power Co. will present arguments to support their contention that drivers of this class of automobiles should not be compelled to purchase Maryland tags. They have presented four types of such cases which, it is believed, cover all of the problems involved. Convictions have been returned in the County Police Court by Judge Samuel Riggs, and the decision of the lower court appealed.

Man Falls Dead at Dance Of West Virginia Society

A. F. Goshorn, 67 years old, 1305 Juniper street, fell dead of apoplexy at the Washington Club, Seventeenth and K streets northwest, at 10:30 o'clock last night while other members of the West Virginia State Society were dancing at a meeting of the society.

Mr. Goshorn came to Washington about 30 years ago from Charleston, W. Va., his former home. For a number of years he was employed at the Bureau of Engraving and Printing.

When the dancing began, after the election of officers, in which he had served as a teller, Mr. Goshorn was standing with a group of friends engaged in conversation. Unexpectedly he slumped over. The Emergency Hospital was notified.

Dr. E. Gribouski answered the call. After an examination he said death was caused by apoplexy. Mr. Goshorn, according to friends, had complained once or twice during the evening that he was not feeling well. He made his home with a son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. William O. Bowman.
